DISMISSAL ACTION

Motions Filed For Angela

By MARY LEYDECKER

A staggering pile of motions aimed at having the indictment against Angela Y. Davis dismissed were filed yesterday in Marin Superior Court by her five attorneys.

The two-inch stack of documents submitted to the court attacked the evidence against her as flimsy, questioned the makeup of the grand jury which indicted her and called the charges political.

One of the motions also said it was impossible for her to get a fair trial in California because of pretrial publicity. A change of venue to another county was not sought, however.

Miss Davis and San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee are charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7 shoot-out at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died.

Arguments on the motions will be heard March 9 when Miss Davis and Magee appear before a judge assigned yesterday for pretrial matters. Five Marin Superior Court judges earlier bowed out of the case.

He is Judge John P. McMurray, 62, a retired Inyo County jurist, who yesterday termed himself "just a country boy" and said he hoped he would not be asked to hear the Davis-Magee trial when the case progresses to that point.

The motions filed yesterday disclosed for the first time testimony before the grand jury in which Asst. Coroner Eugene R. Fontaine said that he "took a sawed-off shotgun from the hands of Ruchell Magee" when the shoot-out was over.

In asking that the indictment be dismissed, Miss Davis's lawyers say that "neither close association by the accused (Miss Davis) with the obviously guilty nor presence by the accused at the scene of the crime" nor the use of weapons she owned were sufficient evidence to indict her.

Furthermore, the lawyers attacked identification of guns used in the shoot-out, saying several persons had handled each one after the tragedy and the "chain of evidence" was weak.

They also attacked testimony by Peter Fleming, a service station attendant, who had told the grand jury he saw a woman who looked like Miss Davis at the Civic Center on Aug. 6.

"The only traits he could remember with any certainty were a well built black woman with a natural hairstyle," the lawyers said. "The only distinctive characteristic (a gap between Miss Davis's upper front teeth) was never noticed by the witness," they said.

The motions also attacked the grand jury, saying it was not made up of a cross-section of county residents.

Miss Davis said that since she is a "non-theist" (a person who does not believe in God), there should be non-theists on the grand jury. The lawyers claimed that the required oath for grand jurors which includes the phrase "so help me God," eliminates persons who are nonbelievers.

They also said that Marin grand juries do not include a representative - number of black, poor and young persons.

Furthermore, the motion attacked the grand jury because the members were appointed by Marin County judges who were close friends of the late Judge Haley.

"These same judges, including the deceased judge, selected from among their friends and associates the very grand jury who weighed the evidence and voted the indictment," the motion said.

Miss Davis's attorneys accused the state and the Federal Bureau of Investigation of using illegal wiretaps and searches in the case and asked suppression of "testimony of all spies, provacateurs, informers and undercover police agents who obtained their evidence by deceit, trickery or artifice."

Additional motions asked Miss Davis's release on bail pending her trial and that she be allowed to act as a defense co-counsel.

Astronauts Leave Moon For Hookup

Perfect Liftoff By Team

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Moonwalkers Alan B. Shepard and Edgar D. Mitchell ended man's most venturesome and fun-filled visit to the moon Saturday and blasted off to rejoin their command ship for the long flight home.

A seven-minute, 10-second rocket blast on Antares' takeoff engine shot the two explorers into the black sky of space at 1:48 p.m. EST to link up with the command ship Kitty Hawk 70 miles above the lunar surface about two hours later.

It has taken other Apollo moon landing crews nearly twice as long to redock with their command ships. But with the experience gleaned from these missions, Shepard and Mitchell could rejoin the Kitty Hawk, flown by Stuart A. Roosa, on their first, rather than second, lunar orbit.

Shepard and Mitchell's record 33 1-2 hour stay on the moon was a thorough mix of fun and frustration, success and failure.

They picked up 109 pounds of moon rocks, slammed a golf ball for "miles and miles and miles" out over the lunar terrain, and set up a $25-million science station which, officials reported, was putting out steady weaker than normal signals for an unknown reason.

Their most bitter disappointment was in not reaching the top of 400-foot-high Cone Crater, where geologists believed there might be rocks dating back to the time the solar system was formed.

It was a personal more than a scientific disappointment for Shepard and Mitchell, because they did get to samples of the rocks that geologists wanted most desperately to see.

"I don't think we have time to go up there," said Shepard, a little breathless as he struggled up the dusty, gray slope which proved much steeper than expected.

"Ah, let's give it a whirl," Mitchell protested. "Gee whiz, we can't stop without looking at Cone Crater. It spoils everything if we don't go there."

At this point they were about three-fourths of the way up the crater in a field of truck-sized, brownish-gray boulders that scientists believe were blasted from the original lunar crust by a meteroid strike.

Setting in this field was one huge albino rock, surrounded by darker ones. Mitchell chipped off a piece of it and gathered up other samples which scientists believe will prove invaluable in filling in a missing chapter in the story of the universe.

Laotians Recapture Key Village

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Laotian troops driving up Highway 9, toward the South Vietnamese frontier today reported recapturing the village of Muong Phalane about 50 miles west of a main Communist supply depot on the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

A task force of 29,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops was massed on the South Vietnamese side of Highway 9 in the Khe Sanh area, and Saigon reports on the government-run television station tonight hinted that a South Vietnamese push into Laos was only a matter of hours away.

High-ranking military sources in the Laotian capital of Vientiane insisted today that neither U.S. nor South Vietnamese officials have disclosed to any member of the Laotian government any information regarding the intentions of the Allied task force in the Khe Sanh area.

The recaptured base at Muong Phalane gives the Laotians a jumping off point for an assault on Tchepone, a major Communist supply depot and transfer point on the Ho Chi Minh Trail—North Vietnam's lifeline to Communist forces in South Vietnam and Laos.

The Vientiane sources said the Laotian troops were intent on trying to hold Muong Phalane. They said there was no possible South Vietnamese invasion connected with the Laotian push up Highway 9.

Sources in Vientiane said they believe South Vietnam would not announce any incursion into Laos because to do so would force Premier Souvanna Phouma to protest under Laos' status as a neutral nation.

Souvanna seemed to lay the groundwork for unannounced South Vietnamese forays into Laos when he said Thursday that, "We have no control over the Ho Chi Minh Trail area."

The South Vietnamese hints of a thrust into Laos were made by a television commentator in Saigon.

The television commentator, in his broadcast tonight, said that while South Vietnamese

I-J Photographer Wins Top Award

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The dramatic photograph of Judge Harold J. Haley and other hostages being led at gunpoint from the Marin County Hall of Justice —taken by Independent-Journal photographer Roger Bockrath — has been selected as the top spot news photo of 1970 by the California Newspaper Publishers Association.

The photo won the award in the Better Newspaper Contest of the CNPA, whose annual convention ended here yesterday. Announcement of the prize winners was made today at an award breakfast by Charles T. Tyler, publisher of the Palo Alto Times and contest chairman for CNPA's 1970 awards.

In addition to the presentation of the annual awards, yesterday's closing day of the convention was highlighted by Gov. Ronald Reagan's defense of infiltration of organizations by government agents, even if they pose as newspapermen.

Reagan, in an address to the convention, said the practice is growing because of growing violence in the country. He said there have been 5,000 attempted bombings in the last 18 months.

Reagan's comments came at the convention's closing dinner at the Fairmont Hotel.

General excellence awards in the CNPA contest went to the Sacramento Union, the Santa Monica Evening Outlook and the Thousand Oaks News-Chronicle.

The Sacramento Union was selected from among newspapers in the 50,000 to 300,000 circulation category. The Santa Monica Evening Outlook was the winner for newspapers from 15,000 to 50,000 circulation, and the Thousand Oaks News-Chronicle was selected from those with less than 15,000 circulation.

Other first place winners among daily papers included:

Best Front Page: San Gabriel Valley Daily Tribune, Escondido Daily Times-Advocate, and the Tulare Advance-Register.

Prisoner's Phone Tap Escape Plot

A San Quentin convict plotted his escape and talked frequently with his girl friend in Los Angeles by tapping the private telephone of Warden Louis S. Nelson, it was disclosed yesterday.

Nelson made public the details of the short-lived escape of convict Ronald L. Kruger, 28, who was later recaptured.

The phone tap was discovered Jan. 7 — the day Kruger made his escape — when Nelson tried to place a long distance call but found his line "blocked" by the telephone company.

Associate Warden Wayne Bartels said today the phone company had discovered the line was tapped and had "blocked" the line until the tap could be found.

Bartels said the tapping incident is not closed.

"There are still some other phone numbers on the bill to check out," he said. "The tapping is still under investigation."

Bartels said that as bizarre as the tapping incident may seem, it was a "simple matter" for Kruger to tap into the private line.

"Kruger was a telephone repairman assigned to the prison's electronics shop," Bartels explained. "He had all the equipment and knowledge he needed."

Nelson's superior, state Corrections Director Raymond Procunier, complained, "I've learned that my so-called secret talks with the warden of my largest prison were not so damn secret after all."

State corrections officials indicated that with the aid of the Warden's line, Kruger, serving a term for receipt of stolen property, plotted his getaway by telephone.

They pieced the escape together this way:

He somehow fastened a telephone lineman's handset on the warden's line in the basement of the prison's main administration building. Its whereabouts wasn't learned until Jan. 7 — the day of the escape — when Nelson told his secretary to use his private line to make a call to Sacramento.

"But the operator told her service had been suspended because the bill hadn't been paid," he related. Suspicious, he called his wife but she told him she hadn't made any long-distance calls.

So, he went to the basement and began "crawling around looking for the tap." He said the convicts "heard that I was looking for a tap and must have

College District Officials Fear Taxpayer Bite For Two Projects

Marin Junior College District officials charged yesterday that the state's proposed austerity budget could add an estimated $608,400 to the Marin taxpayers' bill for two projects on the Kentfield campus.

The college spokesmen were stinging from news that Gov. Ronald Reagan has proposed trimming state matching funds for the Marin projects out of the 1971-72 tentative budget.

During a hastily called press conference, Supt. John A. Grasham also hinted the 1974 opening of the north campus of the College of Marin could be jeopardized because of the proposed cuts.

He was followed by Elizabeth M. Deedy, president of the board of trustees, who called for a flood of letters to Reagan protesting the budget cuts.

The governor this week proposed reducing the state's junior college construction budget from $43,643,440 to $10,510,959. Two College of Marin projects, construction of a new library and remodeling of Olney Hall and the chemistry and business buildings, were not of high enough priority to survive the cuts.

If the two Kentfield campus projects broke ground this year, they would cost slightly more than $3.5 million, Grasham estimated.

The state has been asked to contribute 40 per cent of the projects' costs. A $500,000 federal grant also is available for the library, but only if construction begins before Oct. 1, college officials pointed out. The balance of the cost would be paid by the district.

Construction costs would be raised 10 to 15 per cent for each year's delay, college officials predicted. Grasham pointed out that the delays would also stall other projects planned to follow completion of the library and Olney Hall work, adding still mroe to the taxpayers' woes.

If the two projects are deferred until next year, Grasham continued, construction costs will escalate "with a resulting increase to Marin taxpayers of $608,400 and a net increase to state taxpayers of $535,300 in matching funds.

"This is a situation where unless we get what is coming to us, the local taxpayer will be inadvertently affected," Grasham noted.

Further, if Reagan's slashes are not partially reinstated in the budget, a statewide jam-up of projects will occur, affecting future construction, he said.

This "snowballing" could affect the proposed north campus at Novato, he continued.

"We are assuming we can have the funds restored," Grasham said. He explained the best way to fight the cuts is to maintain the schedule on campus planning.

"At this point we are not going to say 'all is lost'," he added.

He acknowledged, however, that the staff for the California Community College Board has recommended state funds for the first phase of the north campus construction, totaling about $8.6 million, be deferred to the state's fiscal 1973-74 budget, a delay of one year.

However, he noted that in the past, the state chancellor and his board had supported opening the Novato campus in 1974.

Students Burn ROTC Building

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI)—A group of about 300 young persons set fire to the campus ROTC building at the University of California Friday but dispersed quietly after police took a "low-key" approach.

Authorities said the military training facility was set upon following an anti-war rally in the adjacent student community of Isla Vista, scene of three major riots last year.

The blaze was quickly extinguished but firemen reported "taking several rocks" while fighting the fire, which resulted in moderate damage to the wood-frame building. All of its windows had been broken.

The rock-throwing spree erupted when a group of about 500 persons moved from the Perfect Park area to a real estate office which housed the Sheriff's Department's newly established "foot patrol" program.

The front windows and a sliding glass door were smashed while four officers were inside. No action was taken. The foot patrol program was set up to provide communication between the community and law enforcement personnel.

The group then moved on campus to the ROTC building, chanting anti-war slogans and pelting the building with rocks before setting it afire. One deputy suffered a minor eye injury.

Less than 20 police officers patroled the area, urging the demonstrators to leave. The crowd broke into smaller groups and left the area quietly. The area was reported calm by dusk, although a second fire was set in another realty office in the student community.

During rioting last year, the Bank of America branch in Isla Vista was burned to the ground Feb. 27 and the National Guard was called in to restore order.

President Of Kent Hits Protest

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — A demonstration Friday by some 300 Kent State University students on campus against new military action in Laos was condemned by KSU President Robert I. White as "disturbing in many respects."

The demonstrators carried Yippie, Che Guevara and National Liberation Front Flags. They first assembled on the campus commons, near the site where four students were killed and nine were wounded last May 4 by Ohio National Guardsmen during a demonstration protesting the invasion of Cambodia.

The demonstrators abandoned the commons because it was covered with slush and moved to the administration building where they lowered the American flag and hoised their own.

"Today's antiwar demonstration on the front campus was disturbing in many respects and will undoubtedly be given more than ample media coverage," White said Friday night in an address on campus radio and television.

"At the same time, I do not think that this event poses a serious crisis or real threat to the university.

The shoreline property of Dominic Muzzi in Corte Madera was erroneously identified as the Mavey property in yesterday's Independent-Journal story on Central Marin ferry sites.

Four Killed, Two Injured In Manhunt

GRANTS, N.M. (UPI)—Police issued an alert Thursday when a 13-year-old girl, daughter of a former Green Beret major, was raped and killed in the Los Angeles area.

The search intensified Friday when an Arizona state highway patrolman was killed, another was shot, and a young married man was slain, his wife was seriously wounded and their car was stolen.

The case ended later Friday after a chase in the central New Mexico desert when officers shot and killed Bertram Greenberg, 38, a former mental patient. They charged Greenberg committed the crimes.

Police said Greenberg, an ex-convict, raped and strangled Mary Hill, a ninth-grader of Silverlake, Calif., Thursday. The girl, daughter of a former Green Beret major, was found sprawled on her back in Griffin Park in the Los Angeles area, her blouse and bra wrapped around her neck and her jeans in place but unbuttoned.

They said Arizona highway patrolman James Lee Keeton, 27, responding to a bulletin issued by Los Angeles police, stopped Greenberg Friday near Sanders, Ariz. in a stolen car.

Keeton was shot, but radioed a distress message before dying, they said. Don Allen Beckstead, another patrolman, was shot in the stomach. He was listed in serious condition.

Later, James E. and Karen Brown picked up a man, identified as Greenberg, near the New Mexico-Arizona border. Police said the man forced them to stop the car a short time later, tied Brown's arms behind his back. The man shot Brown in the head, killing him, police said. Mrs. Brown, 23, was reported in fair condition at a Gallup, N.M. hospital where she underwent surgery for three shots in the face.

Grants police said they spotted the stolen Brown car, gave chase and fired several shots, killing Greenberg. They said he had slashed his wrists.

Greenberg, who had been convicted of rape, robbery, kidnaping and assault, twice had been confined to the Atascadero State Hospital, a mental institution, police said.

Victim Of Leukemia Asks Crime Pardon

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—James Freed, a 52-year-old inmate of the Nevada State Prison, wants a pardon so he can go home to Los Angeles and spend the rest of his days with his wife. Freed is currently in the prison hospital suffering from terminal leukemia.

The state board of pardons has scheduled a special meeting Monday to hear Freed's case. Warden Carl Hocker says Freed, who is serving a 10-year term for robbery, wants the pardon so he can go home to Los Angeles and die.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Dies at 103

GRASS VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—Reginald A. Bradley, who battled Indians in the old West and fought for their rights in the modern West, died Friday at the age of 103.

He was believed to be the next-to-last surviving veteran of the Indian wars.

A rugged Englishman who loved the outdoors, "girls and 100 proof whisky," Bradley entered a convalescent home two months ago and died of natural causes.

The Veterans Administration says Bradley's death leaves just one survivor of the era, Fredrak W. Fraske, who fought in an all-black cavalry group. Fraske is now 94 and lives in Chicago.

Reagan On Youth

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan says he believes that granting 18 -year - olds the right to vote will not make them full citizens unless they are given other adult responsibilities.

In an address Friday to the annual YMCA "Model" Legislature in the State Capitol, the Governor told about 500 delegates, "I don't believe that you can become citizens at 18 with the right to vote and not become citizens in every respect."

Tours Off

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviets disclosed today they have canceled the concert performances of another Russian artist in the United States because of continuing harassment by "Zionist hooligans."

Nikolai Aleshchenko, director of the state agency that arranges foreign concert tours, said the February and March performances of cellist Natalia Gutman and pianist Yuri Lubimov had been canceled "in consideration of the continuing excesses committed by Zionist hooligans during the performances of Soviet artists in jamerica."

Busiest Week

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Stock Exchange Friday finished up the busiest in its history. Turnover for the week was 105.70 million shares with more than 20 million shares traded each day.

The previous record—set last week—was 100.9 million shares.

Volume for Friday was 20.48 million. The Dow Jones Industrial average rose 1.78 to close at 876.57.

Eyeing Rolls

LONDON (UPI)—Three British automobile companies are considering buying the profitable auto-making division of the bankrupt Rolls-Royce concern.

Jenson Motors, a small British manufacturer of custom sports cars, announced Friday it was trying to organize a consortium to buy the carmaking operation. He said Rolls engines and Jensen bodies would be a "perfect marriage." Jensen now uses Chrysler engines.

Aston-Martin executive Sir David Brown said he was also interested in acquiring the Rolls-Royce operation. "We haven't even had a board meeting about it yet," he said, "but we want it to stay British and not go to a company under American control.

British Leyland also indicated an interest in the firm.

Jobless Rate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —California unemployment rose by one-tenth of one per cent in January but still was one percentage point higher than the national average.

The Reagan Administration Friday reported the state's jobless rate inches upward to 7 per cent last month. The nation's rate dropped from 6.2 per cent in December to six per cent.

The state Human Relations Agency said unemployment in California increased by 67,000 to a total of 680,000.

The rate for a year ago was 4.9 per cent.

Swordfish Recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration has recalled 500,000 pounds of swordfish from A&P Stores throughout the nation because of mercury contamination, but about 300,000 pounds of it already had been sold.

Shouting Erupts At Conference On China

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A conference on U.S. policy toward mainland China turned into a shouting match Friday when a group of young historians accused liberal congressmen with failing to deliver on calls for a new American course toward the Peking regime.

Edwin O. Reischauer, Harvard professor of Japanese studies and former U.S. ambassador to Japan, said the charges by the historians made the conference, sponsored by Congress, "a ridiculous exercise." He said the group used the meeting for "their own political purposes."

The exchange followed testimony by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who joined other liberal members of Congress in calling for admission of Communist China into the United Nations and withdrawal of all U.S. military forces from Taiwan.

Richard M. Pfeffer, assistant professor of political science at Johns Hopkins University who appeared at the conference dressed in dungarees and with rolled up shirt sleeves, accused the United States of committing "war crimes" in Southeast Asia. He said liberal congressmen had preached the need for a new policy toward Communist China but had failed to achieve it.

This angered Rep. Spark M. Matsunaga, D-Hawaii.

"With helpers like you, who needs enemies?" Matsunaga shouted.

"Some of you looking on my face might think I'm Chinese. I'm not. I'm one of those lousy members of Congress. Some of you might be interested to know that I ran on a peace platform calling for recognition of Communist China a number of years ago when it was considered political suicide to do so."

Richard A. Falk, professor of international law at Princeton, argued that "there is an element of personal accountability for members of Congress who have not changed policy or made that policy explicit."

"Marginalism won't do," Falk said. "We need a new beginning. We need a repudiation of those policies which led us to Vietnam. It is not enough to say we build bridges, make changes or admit mistakes."

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., who has introduced a resolution calling for recognition of Communist China, also sharply criticized Pfeffer for making personal attacks during the conference.

"There is a certain arrogance in Mr. Pfeffer's remarks," Javits said. "He has a distinct advantage because he knows a lot more about us than we know about him."

Marilyn B. Young of the University of Michigan history department read a statement into the conference record accusing the United States of engaging "in a genocidal war expanding throughout Indochina, encompassing Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam." She said no new Asia policy could be enacted unless the Vietnam war is ended immediately.

Reischauer said the statement should be shown as the views of those who signed it and not as a consensus of the conference.

Judy Brown Loves Teaching.
(more important, she loves to see kids succeed)

Judy Brown is director of the new Marin County Sullivan Reading Center. She's taught in Marin County for several years, and for the past two summers she helped establish reading clinics. Judy Brown knows kids. She understands their learning problems.

"There are lots of reasons children can't read. Once we recognize the problem, we can tackle it. For the most part, the children just need more individualized instruction and they lack confidence in themselves. Well, the Sullivan Reading Program builds confidence as it improves their reading skills."

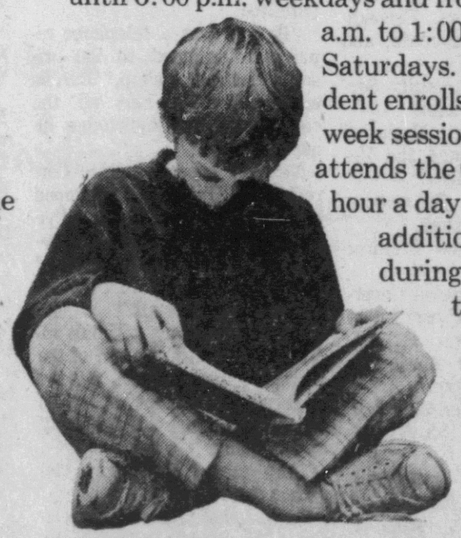
Why Johnny and Ginny and Judy and Jimmy Can Read. The Sullivan Reading Program has been improving children's reading skills for years. In fact, more than five million school children have used nationally acclaimed Sullivan Reading materials to supplement their reading courses in school. Now, Sullivan Reading Centers are being established to expand learning opportunities for children at all levels.

The new Marin County Sullivan Reading Center, fourth to be opened in the Bay Area over the past year, offers personalized reading instruction and self-paced small group instruction for each student. Classes are small — maximum of five students in each class and they are supervised by highly trained reading specialists selected for their genuine concern for each student's personal progress. The step by step Sullivan teaching program is built on this highly personalized relationship between student and teacher.

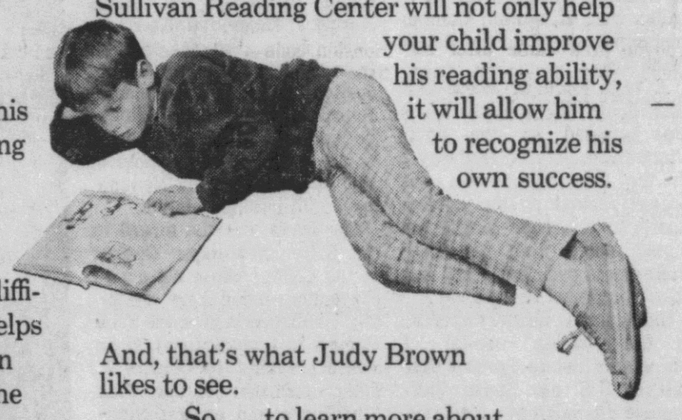
The child builds on his own success. Students with individual reading needs first undergo a series of tests to determine their levels of ability and to provide bench marks for measuring continued progress. Each student works at his own pace, experiencing success and strong reinforcement as his reading improves.

If certain word-sounds are easy for him, he works and progresses through the books rapidly. If he finds a difficult word-sound, his reading specialist helps him immediately. Each page of text is an upward step in his learning process. As he gets answer after answer right, he will learn to read simple words quickly and easily — and with confidence in his own ability.

Convenient times for Mother and Child. The New Marin County Sullivan Reading Center is open from 10:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. weekdays and from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Saturdays. Each student enrolls for a four-week session and attends the Center one hour a day. If he needs additional time during the course to make sufficient progress, he is given the extra time at no additional cost. Initial testing and all materials used by students are also included in the $60 fee for the four-week course.



More than a reading program, the Sullivan Reading Center will not only help your child improve his reading ability, it will allow him to recognize his own success.



And, that's what Judy Brown likes to see.

So . . . to learn more about the Marin County Sullivan Reading Center, just call 479-5318; oh, and ask for Judy Brown.

Belfast Is Scene Of Rioting

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Roman Catholics and British soldiers fought with machineguns, bombs, acid and rocks today in a bitter outbreak of violence that caused a number of deaths.

Four persons—one soldier and three civilians—were reported dead in the fighting in Belfast. A number of others were wounded.

All the dead were reported in the predominantly Catholic Ardoyne district. An Army spokesman said the soldier was killed when machinegun bullets raked a troop foot patrol. Four other soldiers were wounded in the same incident. In the answering gunfire, one civilian was killed.

In a second battle in Ardoyne, soldiers riding in an armored car lept into the street and fired back when they were fired on. "Army marksmen returned the fire and one of the snipers was shot," the spokesman said. "During the same incident, a man was seen to blow himself up while throwing a gelignite bomb. Where his remains are, nobody knows."

Police said 37 persons, including 11 juveniles, were arrested in Belfast and two persons were jailed in Londonderry.

The four days of violence in Belfast spread to Londonderry early today, where the army was called out to deal with gangs of youths who began smashing windows and overturning cars while chanting "we will wreck the town."

The fighting in Belfast was in a number of areas and caused injuries to both civilians and soldiers. A police spokesman said at least seven persons were hospitalized, six of them with injuries suffered in a bomb explosion in the protestant Shankill area and the seventh with gunshot wounds. An army spokesman said five soldiers had been hit in a sniper attack in Louisie Street and New Lodge Road. Two of them were in serious condition.

In the city-wide wave of assaults on troops, Roman Catholics armed with gasoline, acid and bombs packed with nails carried out attacks. A 16-inch pipe bomb was fired at troops in Herbert Street, heart of the Catholic working class district, and the fighting in the Ardoyne area came after six bombs were hurled at army patrol vehicles there.

At least one shot was reported fired in the Kashmir Road, scene of a clash Wednesday in which six soldiers were hit by machinegun fire.

In some areas, barricades were set up. Catholic priests and some women pleaded with the men to go home.

MOON

the mission was "more than successful in terms of accomplishing what we set out to do."

"I think we just entirely underestimated the difficulty of going that far and getting that high in such a short period of time," Mitchell told ground control after climbing back into the Antaros to begin the return trip to earth.

"It's a darn hard climb to try rapidly, and the soil is a little bit thin and mushy and suits are bulky," Mitchell said.

"It's all those problems rolled in ... it's just too ambitious," I guess.

The two explorers also found that it was very easy to get lost among the rolling hills of crater-scarred Fra Mauro.

"It's so darn undulating ... We couldn't even wee Triplet Crater (near the spot their spaceship landed). We knew it was there but you can walk in some of these undulations and get lost from each other if you're not careful. You just can't find where you are."

The fun portion of the moonwalk started after the two astronauts returned to the lunar lander and Shepard whipped out a golf club, rigged from the handle of a digging tool and the head of a six-iron he took with him to the moon.

"In my left hand I have a little white pellet that's familiar to millions of Americans," he told a world wide television audience. "I drop it down.

"Unfortunately the (space) suit is so stiff I can't do this with two hands, but I'm going to try a little sand trap shot here."

"You got more dirt than ball that time," Mitchell told Shepard after his first swing. Shepard agreed, and said, "here we go again.

"...there we go, straight as a die...miles and miles and miles," Shepard shouted when he finally connected.

"Fantastic," said Mitchell, but the athletic Shepard wasn't through.

He then picked up an aluminum pole used for one of their scientific experiments and gave it a mighty heave, marking the first javelin throw in space.

Shepard, who became America's first spaceman 10 years ago when he flew his Freedom 7 on a 15 minute suboroital trip, was in good spirits as he ended his stay on the moon.

He offered to hit a few rocks with his golf club as he started back into Antares, and asked Houston control whether scientists would like another bag of moon rocks before he left.

Apollo 14 likely will be the last flight Shepard will ever make. He is 47 years old, older than any other U.S. astronaut, and prior to this flight had been grounded for six years by an inner ear problem.

Israel In Slap To Suez Plan

By U.P. International

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said today Egypt's offer to reopen the Suez Canal was a device to get Israeli troops to pull back without a peace agreement.

Mrs. Meir consulted with key ministers today on the formal Israeli reaction to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's Thursday speech extending the cease-fire another 30 days. Sadat also called for Israeli troops to pull back from canal positions to allow reopening of the canal, which has been closed since the 1967 Middle East war.

"So what he wants is for us to begin to pull back," Mrs. Meir said in an interview with the National Broadcasting Co. (NBC), made public in Jerusalem. "There is nothing astonishing about that —that's exactly what he wants, without even a peace agreement."

The Suez Canal front remained quiet today, as it has been since a cease-fire was declared in August.

State Department officials in Washington have indicated Britain, the Soviet Union and France responded favorably to an American proposal for a Big Four guarantee to supplement any Arab-Israeli peace settlement.

The U.S. proposal would not include direct participation in the negotiations but only a Big Four agreement on guarantees to make sure the terms of a settlement are kept.

Officials said the U.S. willingness to participate in such Big Four discussions reflected a belief of Secretary of State William P. Rogers and others that there was finally some real possibility of progress in the peace talks.

Mrs. Meir said in the NBC interview Israel had no intention of calling off the peace talks being held under the auspices of U.N. negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring in New York.

"We are prepared to go on negotiating and trying our best to reach a peace agreement," she said.

Call For Improving Quality Of Work

VIENNA (UPI) — President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania has called on industry and workers to improve quality of their products in line with the country's drive to step up exports, the Romanian news agency Agerpress said today.

In a speech Friday at the close of a conference on Romanian foreign trade activities, Ceausescu said "The problem of quality must be a major concern of all producer enterprises. Measures have already been taken for strengthening quality control, for enhancing the efficiency and responsibility of the respective control bodies."

troops were not yet fighting in Laos "it won't be a fact deserving of surprise" if they did indeed cross the frontier and attack Communist basis in Laos.

"Though so far we haven't had anti-Communist (South Vietnamese) armed forces in Laos, if the Communists continue to invade this neighbor nation and continue to use it as a base to attack us, then if we fight the Communists on Lao territory—both to help our neighbor and to save ourselves —it won't be a fact deserving of surprise; less will it be criticizable.

"The North Vietnamese Communists must bear all responsibility for causing this situation."

There were no reports of significant contact with Communist forces by the Allied team operating in the Khe Sanh area today. But Communist troops tried to overrun a South Vietnamese base in Cambodia early today. Field reports said South Vietnamese defenders repulsed the attack in a battle that killed 91 Communists.

Meantime, state and telephone company investigators discovered that long-distance telephone calls had been made to Kruger's girlfriend in Los Angeles.

When Nelson learned this he demanded, "Get me Kruger." By then it was too late. Kruger was gone.

Abernathy In Challenge To Welfare Fund

SEATTLE (UPI) —The Rev. Ralph Abernathy, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, has challenged President Nixon and his familly to live on the $1,900 termed "adequate" for a family of four.

Abernathy said Friday he was "totally against" the welfare reform program proposed by the Nixon Administration. Instead, Abernathy backs the call for a $5,500 subsistence income proposed by the National Welfare Rights Organization.

He indicated he would like to see a new face in the White House in 1972 and mentioned especially the Rev. Leon Sullivan of Philadelphia, founder and president of the OIC.

Jury Unable To Reach Verdict

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—A jury reported itself deadlocked and was dismissed by the judge early today in the trial of a 55-year-old Episcopal minister who was accused of assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting of a college student.

District Court Judge Llewelyn A. Young dismissed the jurors when the panel reported shortly after midnight that it could not reach agreement after about seven hours of deliberation.

District Attorney Michael Fondi said he was undecided as yet about whether to proceed with a retrial of the charges against the Rev. Robert Pumphrey, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal church.

Pumphrey was arrested May 14, 1970, after Michael M. Wilson, 24, of Manhattan Beach, Calif., was wounded in the arm as he and a companion walked outside Pumphrey's home in the early morning hours.

New Policy On Reducing Welfare Rolls

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon Administration, in a move to drop 6,000 families from welfare rolls, has proposed a reduction in the amount of part-time work a man may accept before his family becomes ineligible for benefits.

Many of the dropped families then would become ineligible for free medical care through the Medicaid program for the needy.

But Mrs. Johnnie Tillmon, chairman of the National Welfare Rights Organization, immediately fired back that the change actually would increase rather than decrease welfare rolls.

She said a working father cut off from his supplementary welfare income "is going to just up and leave, and they're going to have to support the whole family."

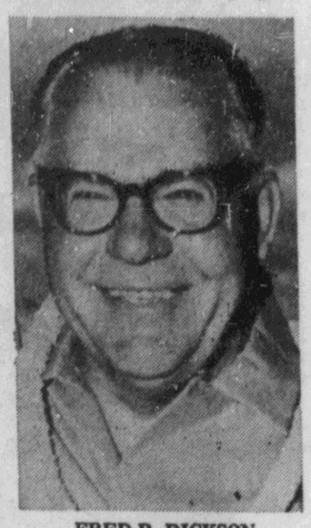
Filibuster Date

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A cloture vote aimed at stopping a senate filibuster will not come until Feb. 18, meaning no legislative floor action can take place during the first month of the 92nd Congress, which convened Jan. 21.

Retired Quentin Warden Dickson Succumbs At 70

Fred R. Dickson, 70, retired warden of San Quentin Prison, died today at a local hospital, apparently of a heart attack, according to Deputy County Coroner Jack D. Darblay.

Dickson, of Vacaville, was admitted to the hospital yesterday and had been under a doctor's care for some time, Darblay said.



FRED R. DICKSON
Former warden dies

Dickson had a 44-year career in penology, starting at the Nebraska State School for Boys. He served 24 years in the California Corrections Department.

He served as warden at San Quentin for seven years, 1957-64, taking over from Associate Warden Louis S. Nelson, then acting warden, and now warden.

Dickson had served as an associate warden at San Quentin from 1944-46 under Warden Clinton Duffy.

He arrived at San Quentin from the California Institution for Men at Chino, where he was named "Warden of the Year" by the Wardens Association of America in 1956.

After leaving San Quentin, Dickson was appointed to the California Youth Authority and retired as authority chairman in 1967.

A native of Nebraska, he was graduated from Nebraska State College and became a teacher and coach at the State Industrial School at Kearney, Neb. in 1919. He served there two years.

Dickson was director of recreation at Napa State Hospital from 1921-22 and then returned to Nebraska, where he eventually became superintendent of the Industrial School for Boys, leaving in 1944.

After his two years at San Quentin from 1944-46, he was assigned to Chino where he served as assistant superintendent and business manager from 1946-54.

In 1954, he took a leave of absence for a year to reorganize the State of Washington's institutional system at the request of Gov. Arthur Langlie and in 1955 became superintendent at Chino.

Dickson served as president of the National Conference of Juvenile Agencies in 1940, was a past exalted ruler of Elks Lodge 984, Kearney, Neb; past state president of the Nebraska Elks Association, and a grand esteemed loyal knight of the Grand Lodge in Nebraska.

He was a member of the American Correctional Association since 1930 and a member of the California Parole and Probation Association. He also served on the Boy Scouts Executive Council in Nebraska from 1930-40.

Surviving are his wife, Laura; two sons, Fred R. Dickson Jr. of Texarkana, Tex., and Lindbergh B. Dickson of Riverside; two daughters, Betty J. Denker of Honolulu, and Dorothy Kent of Vacaville, and a brother, Carl L. Dixon of Nevada, Mo.

Arrangements are pending in Vacaville.

JAMES O'HARA

Requiem Mass for James J. O'Hara, a long-time resident of San Anselmo, will be said 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Anselm's Church in San Anselmo.

O'Hara died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 81.

Born in Peru, Ind., he came to California 35 years ago and was a veteran of World War I.

A carpenter for 68 years, O'Hara was last employed with the Crown Development Co. of San Francisco. He was a member of the Carpenter's Union Local 35 of San Rafael.

A resident of Marin for over 25 years, he resided at 11 San Rafael Avenue, San Anselmo.

He is survived by four daughters, Lillis Thompson and Rita Crone, both of San Rafael, Helen Lindelli of San Anselmo and Marguerite Kelly of Fairfax; two sons, Paul O'Hara of San Rafael and Edwin O'Hara of San Anselmo; 22 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Spiritual bouquets or memorial gifts to the American Cancer Society are preferred.

Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

GARY LEWALLEN

Funeral arrangements were pending today for SP/5 Gary Gene Lewallen, 21, of Petaluma, who died Thursday in an automobile accident near Fort Lewis, Wash.

Details of the accident could not be obtained. Lewallen, a native of North Carolina, had lived in Petaluma for seven years with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Lewallen, 1312 Pacific Avenue.

He was a graduate of Petaluma Senior High School and had served in the Army three years, including a tour in Vietnam. He was a member of the First Southern Baptist Church of Petaluma.

He is also survived by two sisters, Sharon and Dianne Lewallen; a brother, Wayne Lewallen, all of Petaluma; and a grandmother, Ruth Lewallen of Excelsior Springs, Mo.

MRS. DIOGUARDI

Bessie Dioguardi, a one-year resident of Marin County, died yesterday after a long illness in the home of her sister, Antoinette Laregina, at 4 Butterfly Lane, Kentfield.

Mrs. Dioguardi, 78, was a native of Italy. She had lived much of her life in Sacramento before coming to Marin to live with her sister.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Monday in St. Sebastian's Church, Greenbrae, followed by burial in Italian Cemetery, Colma. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

LILY McCANN

Funeral for Lily McCann of San Jose, mother of Gloria North of Corte Madera, will be held 11 a.m. Monday at the Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

Mrs. McCann died Thursday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

A native of Minnesota, she spent most of her life in California, living in Chualar, Monterey County and San Francisco before settling in San Jose. She was the wife of Eugene McCann, a retired employee of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Mrs. McCann was former president of the Santa Cruz Chapter of the Women's Benefit Association and belonged to the Pioneer's Club of Aptos.

In addition to her husband and daughter, she is survived by two sons, Niels Boysen of Sebastopol and Vernon Boysen of San Bruno, and two grandchildren.

Burial will be at the Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael.

MRS. DREUSIKE

Funeral was held today in San Francisco for Sophie P. Dreusike, 93, who died Thursday in a Marin convalescent hospital.

Mrs. Dreusike, a former Larkspur resident who later moved to San Francisco, returned to Marin County a year ago. She is survived by a daughter, Dorothea D. MacFadyen of Larkspur, two stepsons in Vacaville and Los Angeles, and a granddaughter and four great-grandchildren in San Anselmo.

She will be buried in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Why Do We Give Importance To Ourselves By Capitalizing 'I'?

DEAR HELEN:

How come we are supposed to capitalize "I" and we don't capitalize "you" or "he, she, they," etc.? You even write, "My mother and I," making your own self important, but giving your parent lower case.

Don't say it's because "I" is only one letter, as "a" isn't capitalized. — STUDENT

DEAR STUDENT:

Maybe it's to avoid "I" strain: Little "i" is hard to write and dot.

You'd be surprised how many young people no longer capitalize "I", however, Let's ask them and find out why. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Please print this letter because I'd like kids to know what I went through being married at 15, and how I don't regret it.

Tony and I had to get married. I was only a freshman and Tony a junior. My parents threatened to send me to a prep school but my grandmother said it was too late — they should have done it a long time ago.

Tony's parents kicked him out, then later on invited him back to discuss the problem with me and my folks.

News got around fast, and I quit school in my second month, mostly because of family reputation. I have four sisters and Tony has two. It would have been hard on them.

A so-called friend started spreading rumors that Tony was seen with a former girl friend just a few days after we were married.

I didn't believe them as he was working, going to school and coming right home to me afterwards.

As the months wore on, Tony and I realized how much the baby meant to us. We felt strange with our former school friends and were too young for married friends, but we managed.

Little Mary Elizebeth was born prematurely and died two days later. We didn't cry much because we told ourselves how could you love someone you never really had?

Right now Tony is 24 and I'm 22 and we are still happily married after seven years. Tony graduated from the univeristy last year and I'll be graduating from college soon.

We don't regret having been married, but I do advise all kids — don't marry in your teens. It isn't romantic fun. It can be hell — even if you love each other deeply. — NOT SORRY BUT WISER NOW

DEAR HELEN:

I'm in love with a boy named Gary. There's only one problem: He's in love with a girl named Diane. Diane is beautiful and, to top it off, she is my best friend.

There is one good thing though. She's in love with a boy named David who is going with a girl named Cindy.

What should I do? — HELPLESS

DEAR HELPLESS:

Hope Diane, being beautiful, attracts the perfect guy outside this fivesome. Then Gary might decide for you, Cindy could keep her David, and Diane and her new guy could be king and queen of the senior ball.

Well, you can dream, can't you? — H.

Vest And Blouse

NEW YORK (UPI)—One of the most striking fashion combinations for spring and summer puts sleeveless V-throated sweaters over long, full-sleeved blouses. New York's designer Norman Norell is an expert on doing this combination, showing, for instance, a red ribbed knit over white blouse with slim navy skirt. Add a wide belt and you're ready for any style parade.

SARA MILES

Control Of The 'Star Thing'

By CLIVE RUSSELL
London Express Service

Sarah Miles was 16 when she made her first film. She starred opposite Laurance Olivier and became a star.

By the time she was 20 she had appeared nude on the screen, and then she romped in a bed in Antonioni's "Blow Up" and discovered that she was sick of the whole film business. She was still in her early 20s.

"I had become disenchanted both with myself and with the business — the people, the disappointments, the lies, the cheating. I was going down with the business, and I was becoming just another actress mucking around. I didn't like the idea of that very much," she says.

So she quit.

Sarah Miles opened a pony breeding stud in the country, kept to herself and worked hard. Her premature retirement lasted nearly three years, until she married playwright Robert Bolt, and he wooed her back into the business to star in a $12,000,000 movie and a major historical play he had written.

"Ryan's Daughter" was the film. In it Sarah plays a young Irish girl taking her first steps into adult life at a time when events beyond her control — the Easter Rising and the First World War — are prejudicing her future.

It also stars Robert Mitchum, Trevor Howard and John Mills. David Lean was the director.

The play, "Vivat! Vivat Regina!", is already a triumph in London's West End and is bound for Broadway and the screen.

Sarah Miles is being tipped for an Oscar for both performances and to become a super star in the '70s.

At 27 she is still determined to keep control of the "star thing" when it starts all over again.

She made certain resolutions when she began filming "Ryan's Daughter."

"I no longer mix with theater people. I don't go to parties or have dinner with agents because I don't need them anymore. And it's lovely. I do my work and I go straight home," she says.

Home is a 12-room Georgian mill house in Surrey, complete with stables, a water mill and what seems like several hundred dogs.

"I've got five horses. I get up at the crack of dawn to feed them and muck them out," she says.

The horses and dogs all have impeccable histories — like Sarah Miles herself. Daughter of a wealthy steel-mill designer, she was educated and brandished hockey sticks at Roedean and studied to be an actress at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

She didn't enjoy school. She clearly remembers being teased about her ears ("They flapped in the wind") and her fuzzy hair.

She points out that this can do a lot of damage emotionally, as if explaining how she earned the temperamental and explosive public image that grew up at the start of her career and led to Robert Morley's muttering, "I'll say one thing for Sarah; she'll never lose her enemies."

She says that she is still outspoken and has as few friends now as she did during her schooldays and her early years as an actress. The difference is that now she is happy.

"My home takes up all my time, and I don't want to be involved with anybody else," she says.

The filming of "Blow Up" was the turning point, one scene in particular. She says she was supposed to be making love to somebody in bed and asked Antonioni if her partner was her husband or whether David Hemmings was. Antonioni said, "That is of no importance," and Sarah Miles thought, "Well, if this of no importance, what the hell am I doing here?"

"I found the thing so corrupting, that film, every aspect of it so corrupting," she says. "I decided once and for all that I was best out of the business."

It took the steadying influence of her husband to make her return — but she can claim that she in a way responsible for his magnificent play "Vivat! Vivat Regina!"

Before she married Bolt, author of "A Man For All Seasons" and the films "Laurence of Arabia" and "Dr. Zhivago", she told him he was a good playwright but not a great one because he hadn't written a really meaty part for a woman. She eats her words every night at the Piccadilly Theatre when she launches into the role of Mary Queen of Scots opposite Eileen Atkin's Queen Elizabeth I.

She admits that she was frightened by both the prospect of facing a camera and setting foot on stage again.

There is a double fear in the play because, "I've got to go out there and say, 'I'm worthy of this part even though my husband wrote it and you (the audience) think I got it the easy way."

But she enjoyed making the film which took a year, on location, in a remote part of Western Ireland.

"We had a lovely life there with just the dogs and Thomas (her three-year-old son) in a huge mock Gothic thing on top of a hill over the sea," she says.

It was there that Bolt wrote the play. It took him 10 weeks.

"He just buzzed around on a different planet from the rest of us and then ... bonk! It was finished," she says.

In Ireland she found the peace that she finds in her Byfleet home, the peace that has played such a major part in reviving and redirecting her career.

Plans For 350 To Attend Birthday And Class Reunion

By MOLLY MARIN

Mrs. Rita Raymond of Mill Valley will be hostess tomorrow at a combined birthday party and reunion of the Old Mill School class of 1935 at the Odd Fellows Hall in Mill Valley.

At 1:30 p.m. the reunion will be held. Twenty-eight of the 51 graduates have accepted invitations as well as two teachers, now retired, Miss Edith Ricommini of San Rafael and Mrs. Winifred Johnson Standard of Alameda.

At 3 p.m. relatives and friends of Mrs. Raymond will arrive to make up a total of 350 guests at her birthday party. Mrs. Raymond was born and reared in Mill Valley and has her own beauty salon there.

Mrs. Leo Duncan is doing the decorating and entertainment will include piano playing by Mrs. Robert L. Schultz.

A MORNING SHERRY will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Trieber of Belvedere on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. for the models who will appear at St. Hilary's Church's fashion show and luncheon on Feb. 19 at the church's Lydon Hall in Tiburon. A professional San Francisco model will demonstrate new modeling techniques.

The models are Mmes. Art Ross, John Jansheski, David Dooley, Lee Snyder, Fredric Speier, Jack Weber, Charles Holmes, A. Strotz, John Koenig, John Hart, Kimball Palm, Ivan Tomasi, Clyde Brown, George deUrioste, Lloyd Bentley and Alvan Sargent.

MRS. JOHN Maguire of Novato entertained at a luncheon at her home in Novato Wednesday honoring Mrs. Emile Patrick, who will celebrate her brithday on Sunday.

Fabric Breakthrough

There's a breakthrough in permanent press processing. American Laundry Machinery Industries says the new process adds permanent press qualities to apparel, increases resistance to wrinkles, and adds substantially to garment life. The new process produces softer, easier-to-sew garments that are more durable, more resistant to staining and retain their shape longer," said the firm.

Marci Rudolph Sets June Date

The engagement of Marci Joyce Rudolph to John Foreman has been announced by her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Timothy S. Rudolph, of Daly City, formerly of Ross.

A graduate of Redwood High School, the future bride attended the College of Marin and is now attending Skyline College.

John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Foreman of San Francisco, is a student at San Francisco State College and is youth minister and choir director of First Baptist Church in San Anselmo.

Leggings Back

The latest concept of the decorative leg takes inspiration from protoypes of grandmother's day but with dramatic difference. Leggings, the newest innovation in leg covering by Burlington, fit snugly under the instep and lead the eye upward to just below the knee with a variety of lively patterns and styles. It's the decorative boot look for both day and evening.

SEW SIMPLE

Stitch To Crease Knit Pants

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I love the polyester knits for my daily living, especially in pants. They are so practical for daily chores because of their easy care. The one disadvantage is that they simply won't stay creased, and I have always loved the pressed look in pants. What is the secret that we home sewers can sue for a permanent crease?

MRS. B.E.H.

DEAR MRS. B.E.H.,

Polyester yarns are very difficult to press permanently for the home sewer. When you see a ready-made garment with sharp creases, they have been pressed in with special factory equipment. One way of keeping that creased look is to machine stitch about 1/8 inch from the crease that you have pressed in the proper position. Be careful when you stitch and avoid a stretched look to this edge.

By using a matching color thread, it really won't look stitched but will look neat. If you will take a close look, some of your better ready-made clothes are stitched in this manner.

MRS. HAROLD Kerr, Telkwa, British Columbia, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion.

"I line my one year old son's winter pants with the good pieces cut from worn out circular knit thermal underwear. It is soft and absorbent and wonderfully warm for babies crawling on cold floors. Hope your readers will find this as helpful as I have."

DEAR READERS,

For many years I have had a close alliance with the companies who supply you with fabric, sewing notions, patterns and sewing machines. I have dedicated many years to research these items and pass on the very best information I can to help you.

Now I have a big favor to ask of you. Would you please take a few minutes of your time today and jot off a post card or note to me, answering the following questions. This will be a great help in finding out your actual needs and trying to do something about it.

1. How close to your home is your most complete fabric shop?

2. Do they carry a complete line of sewing notions, linings, interfacings, as well as fabrics for all seasons?

3. Can you find the quality fabric and selection for any garment you wish to make?

4. Is your favorite source of sewing information on construction techniques in the form of sewing lessons, books, or store demonstrations?

5. How many garments do you make in a year and approximately how much do you spend on fabrics, notions, patterns?

6. Where do you get your greatest inspiration for making a new garment, fashion magazine, pattern books, or whatever?

7. Are you completely satisfied with your sewing machine, what kind do you use, what improvements would you suggest to make your sewing easier?

As you know, I can never mention a product by its trade name, but your letters will be invaluable in helping bring you everything possible to make sewing the most exciting and rewarding adventure possible. Your letters will help all of us, so please drop everything and let me hear from you. Send your letters to me in care of the Independent-Journal.

DEAR EUNICE,

I don't do much of the fine dressmaking you write about in your column. My sewing is done mostly with church projects for bazaars. We constantly bind quilts, aprons, and pot holders with bias binding but can't seem to sew this on the machine and be sure both sides will be caught. The underside always seems to end up loose in some spots. Is there an easy way to do this detail?

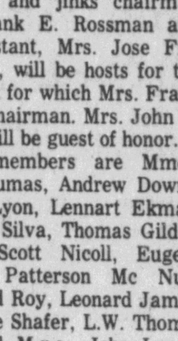
MRS. S.S.J.

DEAR MRS. S.S.J.:

If you only used this binding occasionally, I would suggest you baste it to the fabric and then machine stitch. Since you are using the bias binding constantly, you will have to get used to folding it slightly uneven for your stitching. Your eye will become accustomed to the correct width before you know it.

Instead of having the exact same width of binding on both sides, the under side will be slightly wider. In this way, there won't be any doubt about catching both sides when you machine stitch. The variation will be so slight that it won't be noticeable.

For your free Fabric Conversion Chart send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.



KRISTINE JEAN HARLEEN

Miss Harleen Is Engaged

The engagement of Kristine Jean Harleen to Robert Eric Krambs has been announced by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Carl Harleen Jr. of San Rafael. Kristine is a graduate of Terra Linda High School. She is attending Oregon State University at Corvallis and is the sister of James Harleen of San Rafael.

Robert, son of Mrs. Betty Krambs of San Rafael and Fred H. Krambs of Santa Cruz, is attending the University of Oregon at Eugene. He is also a graduate of Terra Linda High School. Michael Krambs of Washington, D.C. and Gary Krambs of Berkeley are his brothers.

The couple plan to be married next September.

ART REVIEW

Some Excellent Posters On Display

By MARY LOU STRIBLING

In certain circles, posters are automatically rated as second class graphics without regard for quality of design. Actually, their separation from other graphic arts is not based on aesthetics, but rather on intended usage and methods of reproduction.

Posters usually convey information or advertise something, while graphics are personal expressions. Posters are mechanically reproduced; graphics are printed by the artist.

But poster art is an art of its own and some excellent examples can be seen in Olympic Art 1972, which is displayed in the foyer of the board of supervisors chambers, Marin Civic Center. The Marin Museum Association is sponsoring.

The prints are designed by a distinguished team of international artists who follow their own stylistic preferences to interpret the Olympic spirit for the games of the 10th Olympiad. In several instances, the relationship is obscure, which is understandable since "spirit" is an abstract word which can be portrayed only through symbolism.

Color alone can be symbolic and is used with great skill by Victor Vasarely in a design of luminescent cubes. Piero Dorazio, who is equally well known for his color experimentation, weaves a few sweeping brush strokes into an illusion of swift, graceful movement.

More conventional symbols can be noted in a poetic horse and rider, by Mario Marini, and in a composition of muscular legs and overlapping circles by Allen Jones.

Oaskar Kokoehke's contribution is a study of a male nude and it is interesting to observe that no female figures are represented, nor are any of the artists female. (Women Libbers, arise!)

One of the most beautiful prints is by Polish artist Jan Lencia. It is refreshingly clean and direct, and manages to convey a great deal with utmost economy. Crisp lines of purple and deep blues blend into pale icy aqua to suggest a snow-covered slope. A single spot is p o i s e d just over the crest on the downward slant.

I was particularly delighted by a poster featuring nothing but a large pink foot, though I confess my enjoyment had nothing to do with art appreciation. Cartainly such a subject is related to strenuous competitive activities, but the impulse to label it "Athlete's Foot" is irresistable. I'm sure the artist had something loftier in mind.

Enough Signatures For Recall

A group of Reed School District voters has collected enough signatures to force a recall election against Gordon C. Wright, chairman of the district trustees.

Peter C. Myer, county elections officer, said yesterday his office found 1,629 valid signatures on the recall petitions circulated by a group headed by Ann B. Goff and Carolyn S. Hunter. Only 1,140 valid signatures were required, Myer said. He added he was "amazed" that "over 92 per cent of the 1,773 signatures" submitted were valid.

"That's wonderful," Mrs. Goff exclaimed when she heard the results yesterday. "We still have to find somebody who'll run" for Wright's seat.

What happens next may be complex.

Meyer said his office would officially notify the Reed School District by Monday that the recall election will be required. The district trustees must set the election for 60 to 75 days after the notification. April 20, the regular election date on which two other Reed district seats are up for election, falls within that period.

Candidates who might run for Wright's seat cannot file until the board sets the special election date. If it is to be April 20, filings will close Feb. 25, Meyer said.

Should no one file, voters still might oust Wright. Either a write-in candidate might be elected or — if none appears — the district board itself might have to fill Wright's seat by appointment, Meyer said.

Appeal Filed Over Dismissal Of Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — An appeal claiming that a Marin judge erred in dismissing a $5 million suit filed by the Independent-Journal against three Democratic leaders has been filed in the state court of appeal.

Attorneys for the I-J say in an opening brief that a pamphlet supporting striking printers was not a "privileged" document and contained libelous statements.

The flyer, mailed to many Marin Democrats in May, urged party members to cancel subscriptions to the I-J, cease advertising in the newspaper and boycott businesses which continued to advertise in the paper.

In depositions given in the case, the three defendants — Roger Kent, former Democratic State Central Committee chairman; Nancy S. Swadesh, vice president of Americans for Democratic Action, and S. Robert Politzer, chairman of the Marin Democratic Central Committee — said they took most of the material used in the pamphlet from union officials.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court ruled that "members of the public as well as management, the union and union members have an interest in management-union disputes and their such interest is entitled to protection of the First Amendment . . ."

The I-J's attorneys say that the privilege of fair comment is limited to members of the union and does not apply to residents of the community, such as the three Democrats.

Furthermore, the Judge erred, the I-J claims, because even if the pamphlet were "privileged," it contained "malicious" statements not allowed under privilege laws.

Among the contentions of the pamphlet was that the I-J wanted to "destroy the union (striking International Typographical Union 21" and that the paper had begun strike preparations more than a year in advance.

Scott, Ali McGraw Are Judged Best

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—George C. Scott and Ali McGraw were honored as best actor and actress in the Foreign Press Association's 28th Annual Golden Globe presentations here Friday night.

Miss McGraw received her award for her part in "Love Story." Scott was selected for his part as Gen. George Patton in "Patton."

John Mills was honored as best supporting actor for "Ryan's Daughter." Maureen Stapleton and Karen Black tied for best supporting actress. Miss Stapleton was in "Airport." Miss Black was in "Five East Pieces."

Named as best motion picture of 1970 was "Love Story."

Peter Graves of "Mission Impossible" was selected as best television actor and the best actress was Peggy Lipton of "Mod Squad."

Flip Wilson and Mary Tyler Moore won golden globes as best actor and actress in the television music comedy category.

Lobbyist Is Hired By Guards

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Directors of the California Correctional Officers Association have hired a lobbyist to press the prison guard group's campaign for higher pay and other benefits from the Legislature.

The hiring and other stepped-up activities were decided after the association's 3,600 members agreed by a more than 2 to 1 vote to increase monthly dues from $1.50 to $2.50.

At the directors' monthly meeting here this week, the board also agreed to appoint a public relations director, and to continue retaining an attorney.

Last September, Barney Apfel, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 960, reported that his union had signed up half the guards at San Quentin. Arnold Thompson, president of the 516-member San Quentin chapter of the correctional officers' association, said he and 10 others of the 13 chapter presidents voted in September to poll all the membership on affiliating with the Teamsters' municipal employees division.

However, the poll never was held. In November, the CCOA directors reversed their stand and voted to c o u n t e r the Teamsters' recruiting with stepped-up activity in the officers' association.

The directors this week appointed Darrell Moulton, a former guard, as legislative advocate. He was instructed to work for equalization of salaries with other law enforcement employees in the state. Moe Comacho, president, said in December that prison guards' pay lags other lawmen's salaries by 30 per cent.

The association's 1971 program also will include efforts for time-and-one-half overtime pay, uniform allowance, shift differential and other benefits, directors said.

Jury Finds Man Guilty Of Burglary

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Wesley A. Johnson, once accused in the slaying of a San Francisco policeman who lived in Ignacio, yesterday was convicted on four other felony charges.

Johnson, 31, rarely saw the jury that found him guilty at the conclusion of his 10-day trial. Superior Court Judge Joseph J. Karesh excluded him from court for "refusing to behave" early in the trial. Twice daily, the judge had Johnson brought into court and asked his promise not to harangue the jury; twice daily Johnson refused. The jury was out of the courtroom each time.

Johnson, of San Francisco, was found guilty of burglary, attempted robbery, assault on a peace officer and of being a felon in possession of a gun. The charges arose from a holdup attempt at a San Francisco telegraph office in November 1969. A co-defendant, Willie York, pleaded guilty to a burglary count and was sentenced to Soledad State Prison last year. Judge Karesh set Feb. 25 for sentencing Johnson.

Johnson, while a fugitive on the holdup charges, became a suspect in the fatal shooting of police officer Richard Radetich last June. The charge later was dropped, and has not been reinstated.

Charles, Anne Off For Tour In Kenya

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles and Princess Anne left today for a two-week visit to Kenya and trips to game and wildlife parks in the former British colony.

As the son and daughter of Queen Elizabeth left in a Royal Air Force VC10 jetliner, flags flew on public buildings in Britain and horse artillerymen fired a 41-gun royal salute to mark the 19th anniversary of the Queen's accession to the throne.

Health Officer To Give Bolinas Talk

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, will address the Bolinas Beach Improvement Club at 8 p.m. today at the Bolinas Mesa clubhouse.

Dr. Albrecht's talk on how the health department operates will be preceded by a potluck dinner at 7 p.m., according to Alice Silva, publicity chairman for the club.

Trading Stamps For Attendance

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Officials at McClymonds high school will soon be giving trading stamps to students with perfect attendance records.

"Our culture is trading-stamp oriented," says Vice Principal Ralph Griffin. "It is sure to work."

Students will be given 45 stamps a day plus monthly bonus stamps. The stamp incentive was one of a number of ideas proposed within the Oakland school system which are being funded with special grants.

DANCE REVIEW

Carvajal Is Winner At Grace Cathedral

By MARIE RAMEAU

SAN FRANCISCO — Dance in religion and religion in dance — this has for several years been an engaging and controversial topic for churchmen and choreographers alike. Thursday and last night the San Francisco Dance Theater made its first attempt to reconstruct these ancient ties in performances at Grace Cathedral.

The attempt succeeded because its point of departure was primarily aesthetic instead of didactic.

Last night's program got off to a rather pallid start with Penelope Lagios-Johnson's "La Sera." This was a lyrical mood piece set to several Scarlatti harpsichord sonatas, barely audible even in the front rows of the huge cathedral. The dances were, on the whole, unmusical, as Scarlatti's brilliant ornamentation in the elegant rococo manner found no parallels in the choreography.

The dancers, too, appeared poorly groomed, and their bare feet in cut-off tights were as incongruous here as pointe shoes in a Hungarian czardas.

To Carlos Carvajal belong the honors of the evening, even if his "The Way" smacked a little of Berkeley Buddhism.

Essentially a philosophical work, this ballet reiterated the concept that finding oneself must lead to unity with others. As a moral point expressed in dance, the idea became somewhat hollow simply because as a philosophical medium, ballet has only very limited possibilities.

But Carvajal's choreography was seen in an ideal setting, as the cathedral's vast dimensions lent themselves well to his characteristic approach to spatial problems in dance.

Seldom has San Francisco seen anything so macabre as Carvajal's "Totentanz," focusing on the equality of all men in the face of death. Consisting of rich pageantry as well as dancing, the work was the product of Carvajal's extensive research into the ''Dance of Death," so prominent in Medieval Christian liturgies. With death as the figurehead, processions through every aisle converged on an altar draped in black.

It was not, however, the action alone which distinguished this dynamic dance-drama from other attempts on the same subject. Most importantly, this work represents one of the few serious efforts in the direction of dance as history and, as such, is a groundbreaker for further endeavors in that field.

It is difficult to pinpoint Carvajal's originality, for he is at once prolific and versatile. But last night he wove a spectacular tapestry of dancing, lighting, f a r - o u t music — and history. His forte certainly lies in achieving a total effect, and in the grandiose yet intimate atmosphere of Grace Cathedral this quality of his was so far seen at its best.

Asks Case End

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI)—The government asked a federal court Friday to dismiss a $400 million damage suit filed against Lt. William Calley Jr. and others in a civil claim that grew out of the alleged My Lai massacre.

Center On Reading To OpenMonday

The center, to be directed by Mrs. Clyde R. (Judy) Brown of Belvedere, will open house on its first day from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Classes will follow Mondays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., with students enrolled to attend three hours per week for four weeks.

Purpose will be to provide personalized reading instruction to children from preschool through high school, based on the programmed learning materials developed by Maurice W. Sullivan of Palo Alto, which have received wide notice since being put on the market a few years ago.

There will be no more than five students in each class, said Mrs. Brown, and classes will be supervised by a reading specialist.

Mrs. Brown has taught at St. Hilary's School in Tiburon, has been a substitute teacher in Marin County public schools, and assisted her husband in setting up the Brown Reading Systems program, which is in use in various private and parochial schools.

The Marin c e n t e r is the fourth Sullivan Reading Center opened this year by Behavorial Research Laboratories of Palo Alto.

Eight Injured As Ski Chairs Plunge 10 Feet

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif., (UPI)—Eight persons were injured, one seriously, Friday when several chairs on a ski lift dropped 10 feet to the snow-covered ground at Squaw Valley, the site of the 1960 winter Olympics.

Three of the injured were hospitalized. The others were treated at a physician's office and released.

Richard Johnston, area manager of the state Park and Recreation Department, said the accident occurred at the top of 8,700-foot Emmigrant Gap when a "cable came off the top of the (lift's) bull wheel." The lift stretches 3,200 feet up the picturesque mountainside.

20 Rescued From Foundering Ship

LONDON (UPI)—Helicopters from the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Forrestal rescued 20 crew members and passengers from a foundering Panamanian ore ship about 100 miles east of the tip of Sicily Thursday, a U.S. Navy spokesman here said today.

The master of the 1,700-ton Panamanian-registered S.S. Flamingo requested the Forrestal's assistance to rescue the 18 crew members and two women passengers from the ship which lost the use of its engines in 25 foot seas and winds gusting more than 60 miles an hour.

The Flamingo remained afloat today and the U.S. destroyer Ingraham was standing by near the ship, the spokesman said.

Swim For Help

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Hungry refugees from last week's cyclone are swimming through flood waters to reach Quelimane in a search for help, the Mozambique Red Cross said in an appeal for assistance from its Portuguese counterpart.

NEW EQUIPMENT INSTALLED

Creek Panel Urges More Flood Study

The Novato Creek Committee has decided to draft a letter to the Army Corps of Engineers urging more study of an alternative to the engineers' plans for flood control work on Novato and Warner creekds.

Leroy T. Gerner, co-chairman of the committee, reported some of its members still hope the Army might be persuaded to pipe floodwaters beneath Novato Boulevard.

The engineers have produced plans for lining Warner Creek with concrete, leaving Novato Creek open. Gerner noted that the Army had held the Novato Boulevard pipe was not feasible in terms of benefit-to-cost ratio. "I had sort of put it out of my mind, but some of the committee members had not," he said.

Final wording of the committee's request letter is to be settled at next Thursday's weekly committee meeting. The committee hopes to hear from the engineers by the following meeting, Feb. 18, he said.

"We still have to find out" the opinions of residents of the lightly-populated Warner Creek area as to the present Army plan, Gerner pointed out.

Marinite Must Appear Again In Melee Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Kentfield attorney arrested in a post-game melee at Kezar Stadium Jan. 3 has been ordered to appear in municipal court Feb. 18 for further arguments in his case.

Thomas H. Thorner, 38, of 98 Kent Avenue, presented arguments in his motion for discovery — to inspect evidence gathered against him — at a hearing Thursday. He had pleaded innocent on Jan. 21 to charges of inciting a riot, disturbing the peace and assaulting a peace officer.

A second Marinite among the 20 persons arrested at the stadium earlier was ordered to appear Wednesday for preliminary hearing. Wayne M. Clark, 27, of 111 Rafael Drive, San Rafael, pleaded innocent Jan. 14 to charges of disturbing the peace and assaulting a police officer.

Nixon Planning News Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will hold a news conference this month as part of a plan to increase contact with the news media, the White House says.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler did not set a date for the planned news conference, nor did he outline other ways contact with the news media would be expanded. But Ziegler told reporters who have complained about Nixon's inaccessibilty, "we're going to do things differently."

Queen Winner Gets The Boot

HILO, Hawaii (UPI)—Seventeen-year-old football player Norman Wessels may not rule as Hilo High School's homecoming queen after all.

Wessels, who entered the queen contest as a joke with the backing of some of his schoolmates, swept by five female contestants in the balloting. But a number of irate students and adults protested Friday over his victory.

Principal Richard Matsunaga says reports of Norman's victory may be premature because the homecoming committee has not officially announced the winner.

Smaller Space Program Predicted

ASHLAND, Ohio (UPI)—Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Oregon, predicted Friday once the manned space shots were completed, the nation's space program would be narrowed.

He also said the government will have spent between $2 billion and $3 billion on the space program by the end of the present fiscal year.

Today is Saturday, Feb. 6, the 37th day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn. Those born on this day are under the sign of Aquarius.

British actor Sir Henry Irving was born Feb. 6, 1838.

On this day in history:

In 1778 Massachusetts ratified the Constitution.

In 1941 the new Japanese ambassador to the United States arrived with a statement: "There is no question whatsoever outstanding between the two countries that cannot be settled in an amicable manner through a timely display of statesmanship by the respective peoples of both sides."

In 1943 Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was named commander of the Allied expeditionary forces in North Africa.

A thought for today: American statesman Henry Clay said, "If you wish to avoid foreign collision, you had better abandon the ocean."

Pot Case To Superior Court

Charles C. Garcia Jr., 33, of Kentfield, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of possessing marijuana.

He will be arraigned Monday along with three other men bound over earlier.

They were arrested last June at the Bermuda Palms Motel in San Rafael after drug agents followed Garcia's car to the motel and allegedly saw him sharing a marijuana cigarette with another man.

East's Incorrect Diamond Leads South To A Victory

"You look like the sort of man I can trust," said Warmhearted Willie. "I'll give you a trick just to show how much I like you." For your information, WW would give away ice at the North Pole. Take a look at today's hand and see if you can discover what trick he gave away with this little speech. (WW was South.)

LOTS OF HEARTS

West opened the jack of hearts, and declarer won in dummy with the queen. Don't get suspicious about the hearts. Generous as he is, Warmhearted Willie would find it very difficult to give away a heart trick.

Willie led a low diamond from dummy at the second trick, and East began a signal by playing the three. Does the light dawn on you? Willie made his speech and took a deep finesse with the seven of diamonds.

West won with the nine of diamonds, and the ball game was over. No matter what West did, declarer could surely take four diamonds, three hearts and two spades, winning the game and rubber.

NOT SO GENEROUS

South was not so generous when he took that deep finesse in diamonds. His object was to give up one diamond trick to West to make sure that East could never win a diamond trick. Thereafter, the ace, king and queen of diamonds would clear the suit; and dummy's last diamond would be good.

If South played the diamonds normally, taking the ace, king and queen, East would win the fourth diamond with the jack. East would shift to the jack of clubs, and West would defeat the contract with the good clubs.

UNUSUAL PLAY

Incidentally, East should have played the eight of diamonds when declarer first led that suit from the dummy. This unusual play couldn't cost anything, and as the cards lay it would prevent South from ducking the first diamond to West.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - Q J 10
♥ - 7 4 3
♦ - J 8 3 2
♣ - J 10 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

You have only five points in high cards, and no points at all for distribution, but you should count an extra point or two for the spade honors. High cards in your partner's suit are surer values than high cards in any other suit. The hand is just barely worth a raise.

Reduced Count In Car Theft

A reduced misdemeanor charge of car theft has been filed in Marin Municipal Court against Stephen Kent Solon, 26, of Larkspur.

Solon had earlier been charged with two felony counts of car theft stemming from the disappearance of a car from a Mill Valley rental agency last month.

CODE NAME 'JESUS'

Now A Mushroom Tale

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Want to get your name in the newspapers? Here's a sure-fire way: All you have to do is write a book or article making some bizarre statement about Jesus.

The traffic over this short-cut to notoriety is becoming quite heavy. Within the past year, Jesus has been depicted in print as a hippie, a revolutionary, a married man, a homosexual, a visitor from another planet, an early apostle of women's liberation, and a mushroom.

The mushroom idea, which is only slightly more grotesque than the others, was advanced by John Allegro, a British author who once was a Methodist lay preacher.

In a book called "The Sacred Mushroom and the Cross," which has outsold many good religious books in recent months, Allegro develops the thesis that early Christianity was a colossal deception invented by an cult of Palestinians who venerated a species of mushroom known as Amanita Muscaria, which possessed narcotic and erotic properties.

Allegro contends "Jesus" was the code name which the cultists used for the mushroom from which they got their kicks.

If Allegro takes first prize in the science-fiction category of religious "scholarship," runner-up honors must be awarded to a Soviet writer named V. Zaitsev.

According to the government newspaper Itzvestia, Zaitsev has published an article "revealing" that the Star of Bethlehem, which heralded the birth of Jesus, really was a spaceship from another world. Jesus, he said, was aboard.

"Jesus was a newcomer from space, a representative of a higher civilization," he said. "We should refer to him as 'Cosmonaut Jesus Christ.'"

It was a prelate of the Church of England, Canon (now Bishop) Hugh Montefiore, who suggested that Jesus may have been a homosexual. He based this notion on the biblical indications that Jesus never married.

But an American professor of religion, William E. Phipps of Davis & Elkins College, is out with a new book which contends that Jesus was a married man.

Phipps modestly acknowledges some uncertainty about the identity of Jesus' wife —who is nowhere mentioned in the Scriptures —but seems to feel that the most likely candidate is Mary Magdalene.

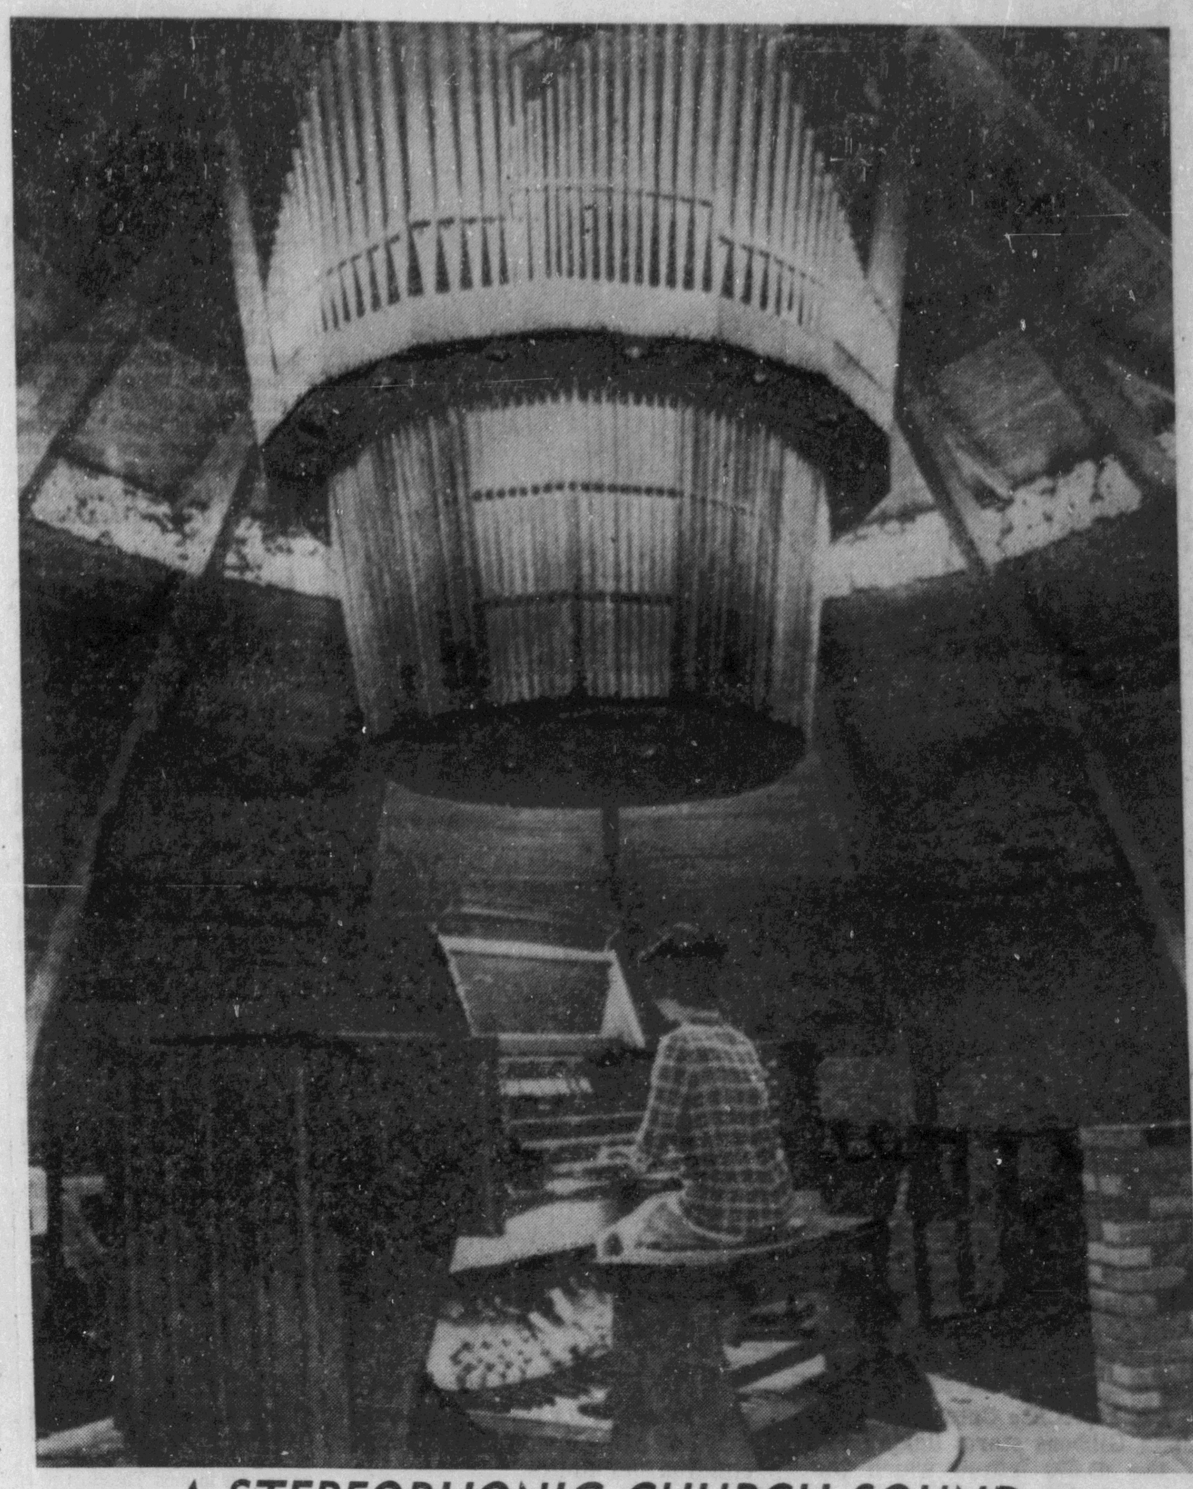
Now comes Prof. Leonard Swidler of the Temple University religion department, with a cover article in Catholic World magazine, describing Jesus as a "radical feminist" who was crusading for women's lib 20 centuries before Betty Friedan or Kate Millett waded into the fray.

Swidler says that in First Century Palestine, women were regarded as so unreliable they were not allowed to serve as witnesses in any trial. But, Jesus chose to make his first appearance after his Resurrection to a group of women. This, he says, "could not have been anything but deliberate." It was the most dramatic way in which Jesus could have rejected the whole idea that women are second-class citizens.

The curious thing about all novel Jesus-theories is that their proponents feel free to ignore any part of the gospel record which plainly contradicts their idea, while placing complete reliance on the literal accuracy of any minor detail which may seem to support their view. This approach to biblical interpretation might be called "selective fundamentalism."

It's doubtful whether these far-fetched theories influence anyone's religious beliefs. Their chief effect, probably, is to create a short-lived sensation that will sell a few books or magazines.

But they do amount to an impressive left-handed tribute to Jesus. No other figure in history has had such an enduring grip on the imaginations of men. After 2,000 years, people are still trying to find some "natural" explanation for his extraordinary life and personality.



A STEREOPHONIC CHURCH SOUND

The largest pipe organ in the Pacific Northwest has been installed in the Agnes Flanagan Chapel on the Lewis and Clark College campus in Portland. The organ is unique in one respect — it is the only one in the world where the pipe chamber is suspended directly above the audience for total sound. The organist sits at the keyboard and the sound flows around the chamber suspended from the ceiling. Cost of the organ, including installation was $144,000, and was made in Canada.

Series To Be Offered In Marin

"Youth and Values: What Happened?" will be the subject of the annual Lenten lecture series of the Archdiocese of San Francisco to be presented by St. Anselm's, St. Raphael's and St. Hilary's Catholic churches in Marin County.

The series of eight lectures is designed for parents of children of all ages and will attempt to deal with current problems of the generation gap, the authority crisis and other parental concerns.

A preview of the series, to be offered on closed-circuit television on sets at the churches' three schools, will be held Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. at St. Anselm's and St. Hilary's and on Thursday at St. Raphael's. They will deal with outlines by each speaker on his subject.

Panelists for the series will be Rev. John P. Heaney of Marin Catholic High School; Helen Hansen, MSW, San Jose Catholic Social Service; Dr. Robert Terry, a general physician; Dr. Michael Cavanagh, a clinical psychologist; John Galten of Presentation High School; Rev. Thomas Madden of the University of Notre Dame and Brother Carl of St. Mary's College.

According to the Marin series committee, a small fee will be charged for the series with the specific dates to be announced later.

SEMINARY GUEST — Dr. Howard Thurman, founder and minister emeritus of the Church for the Fellowship of All Peoples in San Francisco, will be guest lecturer during the third annual H. I. Hester Lectureship on Preaching for three days, beginning Tuesday on the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary campus at Strawberry.

Pastors To Hold 2-Day Conference

American Baptist pastors of the North Coast, including Marin County, will hold their first retreat since reorganizing for closer ties on Monday and Tuesday at Tomales Bay.

Editor Of Monthly Journal Is Announced

SPOKANE (UPI) — Rev. Kenneth W. Baker, S.J., former chairman of the theology department at Gonzaga University and later president of Seattle University, has been appointed editor of the "Homiletic and Pastoral Review," a monthly journal for Catholic priests.

The announcement came from Most Rev. Robert J. Dwyer, archbishop of the diocese of Portland, who is president of Catholic Polls, Inc., publishers of the Review.

Church Aided

SITKA, Alaska (UPI) — A campaign to raise funds to rebuild historic St. Michael's Cathedral in Sitka got a $12,000 boost when the National Bank of Alaska contributed $10,000 and two bank officials each gave $1,000. The Russian Orthodox church, constructed in 1848, burned to the ground New Year's Day, 1966. The fund raising goal is $100,000.

Way To Enter Monastery: By A 60-Foot Rope

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The only way that monks can reach Ethiopia's Debra Damo monastery is by climbing a 60-foot rope, says the National Geographic Society.

According to legend, a holy man chanced on the table top mountain more than 2,000 years ago and chose it as his place of prayer and penance. Climbing to the heights was impossible so, as the legend goes, God commanded a snake living among the rocks to uncoil itself and lift up the monk.

In gratitude, the monk founded the monastery of Debra Damo, now Christian. A ramp the builders used was torn down after construction of the monastery. From then on it was decreed that only a rope would serve to get up and down the cliff in remembrance of God's help with the snake.

MODERN 'CRUSADE'

War Prisoner Plan Outlined

ST. LOUIS (LMS) — Dr. J. A. O. Preus, international president of the three-million Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, has issued an appeal for other religious leaders around the world to join him in a modern "crusade."

The "crusade" announced this week is a visit to Hanoi and other Communist nations to intercede on behalf of American prisoners of war being held by North Vietnam, Viet Cong and the Pathet Lao.

In his statement, made in Washington, D.C., Dr. Preus acknowledge that he, like most other church leaders, had been so busy with parochial concerns that he had neglected to speak out on vital moral issues facing our nation and "humanitarian concerns all over the world.

"It is for this reason that I have chosen to become involved in an effort to do what I can to help obtain humanitarian treatment for American prisoners of war in southeast Asia and ultimately to hasten their release," he said.

The Lutheran church president said that the Geneva Convention of 1949 concerning humanitarian treatment of prisoners of war should be followed to the letter "not only because it is a recognized legal agreement between nations but because it contains the most basic provisions of humanitarian behavior that must be respected by civilized nations."

"Listing prisoners promptly," he continued, "releasing the sick and the wounded, humanitarian treatment of the prisoners (such as allowing them to correspond with loved ones at home on a regular basis) are very uncomplicated principles that could easily be followed by civilized nations."

The churchman pointed out that his concern, like his training, was pastoral rather than legal or philosophical.

"I feel a compassion for any of our men who are suffering cruel and unreasonable treatment in POW camps," Preus said.

"I know something of the anxiety and the heartaches experienced by the wives, the sons and the daughters, and the parents of the men who are missing in action, because they don't even know if their husband, father, or son is dead or alive."

Dr. Preus outlined a five-point program he intends to follow:

1. He is declaring a Day of Prayer for American POWs Sunday, March 14, in the 1,000 congregations under his presidency.

2. He is directing a sustaining program of education and prayer in all of the congregations of The Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod in behalf of the American POWs for a one-year period.

3. He is inviting the heads of all major Christian denominations to undertake a similar program in their congregations and urging religious radio and TV programs to include special prayers for the POWs.

4. He is urging all Lutheran leaders in all the countries of the world who accept the Geneva Convention of 1949 to use their influence to bring public opinion in their countries and in their governments to bear on the Communists in Indo-China in order that they may be moved to follow the humanitarian treatment of prisoners of war as stated in the Geneva Convention of 1949.

5. He is endeavoring to organize a group of church leaders from all over the world to ask the president of North Vietnam and other Communist leaders to allow them to inspect the POW camps in order to give an unbiased account to the American people and the people of the world of the conditions that exist in these camps.

Spirit Renewal Conference Set

An End-Time Spirit Renewal Fellowship Conference will be held next Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Church of God in Marin City sponsored by the Interracial, Non-Denominational, Involved With Christ Crusade 70s.

Speakers for the conference, according to Rev. Fred Small, director, will be Rev. Horace W. Sheppard of Philadelphia, Rev. William E. Pickthorn of Palo Alto and Rev. and Mrs. C. J. de Cille of Jamaica.

Friday's session will begin at 7 p.m., Friday; 7 a.m. Saturday, and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Catholic Order Doing Well

BUDAPEST (UPI)—Magdolna Karpat is one of the more successful school headmistresses in town. That she is a Roman Catholic nun and her town —Budapest —is the capital of a Communist country tells a lot about the state of religion in Hungary today.

Mother Karpat, a pleasant woman of about 40, is the mother superior of the Teaching Order of Notre Dame. The order flourished in Hungary from 1858 until the Communists came to power. It lost the right to teach until after the 1956 uprising, but has done well since then.

The order has 25 nuns now, housed in a dingy grey stone building on Budapest's Knezits Street. Within that building, the nuns teach 400 girls everything from the Bible to the Russian language.

"The number of applicants is growing every year," Mother Karpat said. "We even have to turn some away. We are not advertising our school and still the applicants grow. So the state authorities do not impede our work."

Few of the students go on to become nuns. The school's diploma is acceptable at any Hungarian university and many girls take colege courses after graduation.

The Vatican requires the teaching of the Bible. The government requires the teaching of Russian. Where the two conflict —in biology, for instance —the school uses the state textbooks but has the right to supplement them with explanations of the church's position.

This sort of religious education is believed to be unique in Communist Eastern Europe.

Hungary has always been a strongly Catholic nation. But, as in the other nations, the first years of Communism were hard on the church.

The liberalization that followed 1956 also affected the church. In 1964, Hungary became the first East European state to sign an accord with the Vatican —an agreement that set up machinery for appointing new Hungarian bishops. This was followed by the appointment of new archbishops, bishops and apostolic administrators.

Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty, the head of the Hungarian church, remains in self-exile in the American embassy here. But both church and state have decided to go on without him. Churches are opening and full. The state still discourages religion, but permits the sale and display of religious items.

In Russia, religious education is banned. In Hungary, the state pays half the salaries of the Notre Dame teachers —the church pays the other half —as part of its annual subsidy to the church.

If the state has not conquered religion, the church also has realized it must live with the state. This has resulted in many small compromises, such as the agreement that allowed the state to celebrate its 25th anniversary last year on the same day as the festive 1,000th birthday of Hungary's patron saint, St. Stephan.

As long as this arrangement allows her to teach, it keeps Magdolna Karpat happy.

"I think," she said with a smile, "that our order has a future."

— BIG STACK - Camp Fire Girl Linda Gibbons starts licking one of the 63,000 letters which the Easter Seal Society will send out this month during its annual drive to raise funds for crippled children and adults.

Deadline On Big Mailing Draws Near

By Feb. 23, 63,000 letters must be addressed, stuffed with letters and seals and then carted to the San Rafael Post Office.

This effort of hundreds of volunteers will launch the annual Easter Seal Drive for crippled children and adults in Marin.

Students of Marin high school typing classes and typing students in Marin Economic Opportunity Council classes were the first to donate their time for the project.

"The envelopes for addressing went to the clerical classes in October," said Phyllis Widdershoven of the Marin Society for Crippled Children and Adults. "By the end of December, they were back ready for stuffing and mailing."

Now the younger girls have taken over, she said.

One room in her office at 1601 Second Street, San Rafael, is usually filled with Girl Scouts, or and Camp Fire Girls, dressed in their uniforms, seated on the floor amidst stacks of letters and Easter Seals, and chatting as only little girls can chat, while they stuff the envelopes with letters and seals.

The scout troups are helping as part of their community service projects, Mrs. Widdershoven said. But older girls from the Rainbow group or other church groups as well as adults have also volunteered to stuff envelopes.

"But volunteers are still needed to help cart the 63,000 envelopes to the Post Office," Mrs. Widdershoven said.

Former Policeman Wins One Round

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Former Petaluma policeman Robert C. Blagborne won a round in his reinstatement hearing yesterday when Judge Kenneth M. Eymann denied the city's motion to dismiss the case.

Eymann told Petaluma City Atty. Edouard E. Robert that more testimony must be heard and more questions answered before a decision can be reached. Eymann continued the case until Feb. 19 at 1:30 p.m. to permit Robert time to prepare a defense and recall witnesses.

Blagborne, through attorney Paul Neuer, charges he was fired because of his part in labor negotiations last fall.

Robert told the judge he felt "not a shred of evidence has been presented to sustain the allegations." The judge, however, said he wanted more information about why the recommendation of Blagborne's sergeant, Jimmie Matthews, to give him permanent status had been rejected and additional testimony about personal problems said to be one cause of Blagborne's dismissal.

Testifying yesterday, the third day of the hearing, was Robert Morris, a former Petaluma policeman now with the Pacifica Police Department.

Morris said the major reason he quit after 18 months with the Petaluma department was poor departmental morale. He said Blagborne had not contributed to the low morale as was alleged by the city, but that it was caused by "poor procedures" within the department.

Morris said he felt bad morale was the main reason so many officers had left the department since the labor dispute last summer.

Forgery Case Arraignment

A 23-year-old Guernewood Park man was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of forging a prescription.

Donald Robert Brant is to plead Monday to the charge.

He was arrested at 6:36 p.m. Thursday after picking up a prescription order at the Novato Pharmacy, police said.

Police said Brant's prescription left with the druggist at 1:10 p.m. aroused the suspicion of the pharmacist because it was from San Francisco.

Homestead Valley Group Sets Session

Last Tuesday's meeting of the Homestead Valley Community Association board was postponed to next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Brown's Hall, according to secretary Virginia Spalding.

She said directors wanted to allow more time for tabulation of votes from valley residents on the sale of Brown's Hall, which the association is considering selling to pay back taxes on the structure.

Percy Suffers Muscle Spasm During Flight

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen. Charles A. Percy, R-Ill., was rushed by ambulance from O'Hare International Airport to a hospital today after he suffered severe back pains on a flight from Anchorage, Alaska.

Percy, 51, was returning from the Alaskan city where he and his wife attended the funeral of Lawrence Fanning, a former Chicago newspaper editor.

Percy complained of the back pains on the flight and was unable to get out of his seat in the plane, Press Aide Claudia Bourne said.

A two-hour examination in Evanston Hospital's emergency room showed Percy was suffering from a muscle spasm in his back and would be able to leave the hospital on foot within a few hours, a hospital spokesman said.

San Rafael Surprises Marin Catholic

Letting a little power go to your head can be a dangerous thing. For the San Rafael High School Bulldogs, however, it proved a blessing last night as they mowed down Marin Catholic, 54-40 for their second straight basketball upset.

The Bulldogs, who won their first Marin County Athletic League game after six losses last Friday night in an upset over Novato, pulled the rug out from under the Wildcats of Kentfield with a disciplined, ball control offense led by Jim Thorne.

An indication of things to come, two Marin Catholic turnovers in the first half minute of the game, gave San Rafael a 4-0 lead; they never trailed. Thorne, a 5-foot-7 guard, hit for 16 points and was the bulwark of a Bulldog defense that shut off all but one of the Wildcats' skilled shooters.

That one was Bill Donellan, who could be headed for all-league recognition. He tightened his grip on the third place spot among league scorers with 22 points, on six field goals and as many free throws. But Tim Stone and Jim Sullivan, who have to score in order for Marin to win, were held to just two and four points, respectively.

In the course of the game, San Rafael, which earlier in the year had been plagued by ball control errors, made only eight, while Marin committed a total of 18 turnovers. That, more than any other factor, tells the story.

Behind Thorne for the Bulldogs came Duke Bessee with 12 points, and after him center Wayne Lechner with nine.

The Wildcats are now 3-5 won-lost in league play.

San Rafael - Molinari, 3-3-9; Thorne, 5-6-16; W. Lechner, 3-3-9; Bessee, 4-4-12; B. Lechner, 4-0-8. Totals - 19-16-54.

Drake Pulls Upset Over Terra Linda

The Drake High School Pirates dominated in every way possible last night to upset the Terra Linda High Trojans, 54-44 in a Marin County Athletic League basketball game at Terra Linda.

In winning their third game of the MCAL season, the Pirates of San Anselmo shot phenomenally from the field, and stymied the Trojans with an air-tight zone defense. Bob Gregg, a senior forward, led the winning attack with 20 points, all from the floor.

Drake led all the way, cinching the victory by outscoring Terra Linda by eight points in the final quarter. Coach Bob Fitzhenry's boys produced their most balanced and impressive performance of the year, hitting on 48 per cent of their field goals. Dave Wilkinson backed up Gregg with 11 points, while Jit Singh had eight, Mark Daubenfeld seven and Jim Forni six.

The Trojans fell prey again to the cold shooting that has bothered them all season; they managed to hit on only 7 of 32 shots in the second half. Bill Berry led the losing effort with 13 points, followed by Joe Casteel with 12.

The loss was the third in a row for Terra Linda (4-4), and virtually eliminates the Trojans from contention in the MCAL race. Drake is 3-5.

Redwood's Streak Now 35 With Victory Over Novato

Super forward Scott Trobbe scored 11 of his 22 points in the third quarter last night to signal a runaway as the Redwood High School Giants downed the Novato High Hornets, 57-45 in Larkspur.

Redwood coach Dick Hart went to his bench liberally to prevent a rout as the Giants chalked up their 35th straight Marin County Athletic League basketball victory, and their eighth of this year.

The Hornets, now 3-5 in MCAL play, were playing for the first time without hot shooting forward Marty Moroski, who is out for the season with a broken wrist, and they never challenged the champions. Joe DeMaestri got a game high 24 points, but the rest of the club was stopped cold.

As has been their custom all season, the Giants won the battle of the boards convincingly, with 41 rebounds to 26 for Novato. Trobbe and center Steve McGee both at 6-foot-6, had a definite height advantage over their visitors.

Coming in behind Trobbe for Redwood were Sam Farb and John Hunter with seven points apiece. Hunter, a junior transfer from Bellarmine, was eligible to play for the Giants beginning last night, and he appeared to be a welcome, if not much needed addition to Hart's arsenal.

Garner Sparks Tam '5'

Will Garner matched Dana LaFerriere point for point in a battle of the Marin County Athletic League's No. 1 and 2 scorers, and the rest of the Tamalpais High School Indians backed Garner up in style last night to earn a 74-65 MCAL basketball victory over San Marin High in Novato.

The Indians of Mill Valley broke the game open with 10 straight points to start the second half, and cruised to their sixth win of the MCAL campaign against two losses. For San Marin, the loss was the fifth in eight games.

Garner, a 6-foot-3 junior, was simply amazing as he wore out one defender and gave another fits while scoring 27 points. Brad O'Riley, a 6-foot-4 forward, fouled out guarding him, and he went over the 6-foot-8 LaFerriere almost as easily. He also fought the tallest player in the league to a rebounding standoff.

The Mustangs made a game of it in the first half, on the strength of a superb performance by sophomore Hoza Wright. He accounted for 19 points in the game, 13 of them in the first half. But Tam pulled ahead midway through the second quarter as John Earl Huff hit three breakaway layups, and the issue wasn't in doubt after that.

LaFerriere, who like Garner finished with 27, didn't get the hot hand until after the intermission, when he scored 18. But the rest of the Mustangs went flat. He and Wright ended up the only players on the Novato team in double figures.

Huff, who did not enter the game until the second period, finished with 13 points, Jared McFerrin had 12.

10,000 See Seals Lose To Montreal

By United Press International

John Ferguson showed Friday night why the Montreal Canadiens were so anxious to get him out of retirement earlier this season.

Ferguson, who was induced to end his short retirement after the Canadiens faltered early in the season, scored two goals in the last period to help Montreal record a 3-2 National Hockey League victory over the California Golden Seals before a crowd of more than 10,000 at the Oakland Coliseum.

Ferguson scored early in the period on a 20-foot screen shot to break a 1-1 tie and added his eighth goal on a power play with less than six minutes to go. That proved to be the winner when the Seals' Ron Stackhouse scored at 17:39.

In the only other NHL game, Ron Schock scored with 2:55 remaining to earn the Pittsburgh Penguins a 2-2 tie with the St. Louis Blues. Tim Ecclestone had given the Blues a 2-1 lead in the first period.

BRODIE MISSES CUT BY JUST ONE STROKE

HONOLULU (UPI) — If you think there are only golf fans at the Hawaiian Open, you're mistaken.

There are a lot of football fans taking in the play of the 147 golfers in the $200,000 Hawaiian Open at the Waialae Country Club, and most of them were following John Brodie, quarterback of the San Francisco Forty Niners and the NFC's outstanding player.

Brodie, a top-flight amateur golfer, shot a 75 in Thursday's opening round and a 71 yesterday, missing the cut by only one stroke.

"I really don't start playing well until April or May," he said while relaxing before playing in Friday's second round. He added he doesn't practice much on the course.

"But if this were my living, I'd be on the practice green right now," he said.

The veteran signal-caller who led the NFC in passing this past season said he entered the tournament "just for the fun of it."

ASTROJET GOLF

Mays, Gossett In Front Of Pack

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)— First impressions between Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants and Bruce Gossett of the 49ers have to be good.

The two athletes from the Golden Gate City met here for the first time Friday and teamed to take the first round lead in the American Airlines Astrojet Golf Classic.

Playing with handicaps of 10 and 11, Mays and Gossett collaborated for a net best-ball round of 12 under par 60 over the 6,469 yard Goodyear Golf and Country Club course. Mays carded a one over par 73 scratch and Gossett an 81.

Trailing the leaders by two strokes was the Hall of Fame team of Joe DiMaggio and Otto Graham. Donn Clendennon of the New York Mets and Joe Kappo of the Boston Patriots were tied for third place at 63 with Bill Mazeroski of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Andy Russel of the Steelers.

Six teams were tied at 64.

Mays, who played with John Brodie of the 49ers last year, said he felt it was better to play with someone with a slightly higher handicap, getting a chance to pick up strokes by parring a hole rather than having to birdie it. He said he and Gossett teamed well—that they talked with each other and tried to help one another's game.

The two agreed the four par-three holes on the course were tough, noting they bogeyed two of them but still finished 12 under for the day. They got two strokes back on the per four, 274 yard 17th when Mays had a natural birdie that went for an eagle.

Mays said he likes to play baseball in a full stadium, but golf galleries scare him.

"Any time a guy gets in a situation where he isn't sure what he's doing, the more people there are the more scared he gets." says Mays. "Like try putting a professional golfer in a ballpark."

The 54-hole tournament, pairing a professional baseball player with a professional gridder, ends Sunday with the first place team winning $2,000.

Hayward Coach To New Mexico

Davis, who will leave immediately to assume his new position, succeeds John Levra, who resigned to become athletic director and head football coach at Stephen F. Austin College in Texas.

Since the 32-year-old Davis came to Hayward State in 1966, his teams compiled a 28-12-1 record. The Pioneers won the Far Western Conference championship in 1969 and were co-champions with Chico State last season.

Davis said he had two goals when he came to Hayward State.

"One was to win the Far Western Conference championship, and the other was to play in the Oakland Coliseum. We accomplished both," he said.

Davis Leads Bowl Finalists

Dave Davis of Miami, Fla., led a field of five finalists in the televised $75,000 Ebonite Open Championships at San Jose's Saratoga Bowl today.

After qualifying rounds, Davis led the field with a 227 average in 40 games. Other finalists were John Petreglia, Brooklyn, Earl Anthony, Tacoma, Wash., Skee Foremsky, Houston, and Larry Lichstein, rookie of the year last year.

Tom Shaw Is Leading Arnie In Hawaii Open

HONOLULU (UPI) — Blond Tom Shaw, the smiling swinger from Oregon, put on a dazzling putting show to score a 5 under par 67 Friday and take the halfway lead away from Arnold Palmer and dark horse Dewitt Weaver in the $200,000 Hawaiian Open.

Shaw, 28, winner of the Bing Crosby Pro-Am tournament, checked in with a 36-hole score of 135 to lead by a stroke. Palmer and Weaver had held the lead for hours until Shaw finished in the late afternoon shadows.

The good humored Shaw, wearing a white wide brimmed straw hat he had purchased earlier in the day, applauded the shots of his fellow players and joked with the gallery during his round which included a series of spectacular putts.

He knocked in a 25 foot birdie on no. 1, a 20-footer for a birdie on 2, a 35-footer for another bird on 7 and a 30-footer for still another bird on 9. But perhaps his most sensational putt of all was a 60-footer for a scrambling par four on no. 16.

"I do it all the time," Shaw cracked when reporters asked him if he had ever putted as well before.

Weaver, a 31-year-old pro from Atlanta, Ga., was the model of consistency around the greens in carding his second straight 68 on the rambling 7,122-dard Waialae Country Club course in the morning.

Palmer had an excellent chance for a 135 which would have tied him with Shaw but lost a gamble and ended up in a deadlock with Weaver at 136.

Palmer said he made a mistake trying to hit a super drive on the 560 yard 18th.

Trying to take a shortcut and reach the green in two on the long dogleg hole, Palmer got into heavy rough and ended up taking a bogey 6.

Palmer, who has won 55 tournaments, the last the Danny Thomas Open in 1969, is the sentimental favorite here and was followed around the course by a gallery of thousands. He was spurred around by shouts of "Geev 'um, Arnie, geev 'um," an expression meaning go get them.

Following the three front runners in the race for the $40,000 first prize were defending champion Bruce Crampton at 138, PGA champ Dave Stockton, long-hitting Californian Bob Lunn and consistent money winner Miller Barber, all at 139.

First round leader John Schlee was in a group at 140 after slipping to a 4 over par 74. Gene Littler with a 67 was in a crowd at 141 and leading money winner George Archer was in a large group at 143. Billy Casper was in the 142 contingent.

Weaver, 31, who has never won a tournament in five years on the pro tour, hit all but three greens and sank five birdie putts.

Missing the cut by only one strokewere former San Rafael golfer Ron Cerrudo, now of Napa, with a 71-75—146, and San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie, 75-71—146.

Matson Wins His Specialty

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)— The world outdoor shotput champion, Randy Matson, turned in a 68-foot-4-inch put here Friday night to turn back the challenge of world indoor record holder Al Feuerbach.

Feuerbach, who established the world indoor record of 68 feet 11 inches in San Francisco, punched out a 66 foot, 7-½ inch toss on his final effort, but was not equal to the former Olympic champion from Texas A&M.

Matson had a 68 foot 8 inch heave at San Francisco before Feuerbach unleashed his world record effort.

Matson's winning toss came on his final effort.

One meet record was broken in the first night of the Fort Worth Coaches Association Indoor Games before 5,344 fans.

Houston University's Robert Mitchell, who missed a world record by one-tenth of a second at Albuquerque last week, cut the 300-yard dash mark by a tenth of a second with a preliminary run of 30.6.

Nate Benched With Flu; Warriors Lose To Blazers

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — With San Francisco center Nate Thurmond riding the bench with a cold for half the game, the expansion Portland Trail Blazers downed the San Francisco Warriors 123-117 last night behind the shooting of rookie Geoff Petrie.

It was the third win this week for the Trail Blazers over an established club in the NBA and the first time the Blazers were able to beat one of their four Pacific Division foes in 13 games this season.

Gary Gregor hit for 24 points and Leroy Ellis added 15 to aid the Portland attack. Gregor and Ellis each pulled down 20 rebounds

The Blazers went ahead for keeps 95-94 on a 20-foot shot by Gregor with 10:32 remaining.

San Francisco was only four points down at 110 -106 with 4:50 left when the Blazers reeled off seven straight points on a basket by Stan McKenzie, a three -point play by Petrie on a fine feed from Dale Schlueter, and another bucket by McKenzie.

Jeff Mullins paced San Francisco with 27 points while Jerry Lucas collected 24 points and 15 rebounds.

Center Thurmond sat out the first half with a thermometer in his mouth, ailing from the flu. But he played the entire second half, picking up 12 points and seven rebounds.

Joe Ellis bucketed 17 points and collected 16 rebounds for the losers.

PAC-8 BASKETBALL

Cal Demolishes Stanford

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)— The University of California rode a balanced scoring attack Friday night to demolish Stanford, 99-74, Pacific-8 Conference victory.

The Bears got double-digit scoring from their starting five, including a game high 18 points from forward Jackie Ridgle.

The win gave the Bears a 2-3 conference mark while the Indians are winless in five outings in league play.

The Bears jumped out to an early lead, taking advantage of 14 Stanford turnovers and the Indians' cool shooting in the first half, and moved on to a 45-25 margin at the midway point.

The Indians' high-scoring guards, Claude Terry and Dennis O'Neill, were unable to find the mark as Stanford only hit 42 per cent from the floor. Terry had 12 points while O'Neill only managed two.

Ridgle was followed by Phil Chenier with 16, John Coughran with 15, Charlie Johnson, 14, and Ansley Truitt, 12.

California now has a 10-6 season mark. Stanford is 4-11 for the year.

Wilt Wins His Duel With Lew

By United Press International

Wilt Chamberlain showed Friday night that Lew Alcindor may still have a few things to learn.

Chamberlain played a strong defensive game and keyed a third period Los Angeles rally that carried the Lakers to a 116-93 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Alcindor did manage to outscore Chamberlain 27-14 but the Laker center dominated just about every other department in the battle of the National Basketball Association's premier seven-footers. Chamberlain needed only 10 shots for his 4 points as compared to Alcindor's 21 field goal attempts and Wilt outrebounded Alcindor 14-10.

Chamberlain's defense and rebounding sparked a 15-2 tear in the third period that broke open a tie game and turned it into a rout.

Happy Hairston had 24 points for the Lakers while Jerry West and Gail Goodrich had 23 each. Oscar Robertson had 16 for the Bucks to move to within 11 points of second place on the all-time list behind leader Chamberlain and Elgin Baylor.

Elsewhere in a full schedule of NBA activity, Portland beat San Francisco 123-117, Detroit stopped New York 108-99, Chicago downed Philadelphia 114-102, Boston edged Cincinnati 114-110, Atlanta nipped Seattle 121-120 in overtime, Baltimore beat Buffalo 98-90 and San Diego defeated Cleveland 116-105.

BY HOOK OR CROOK

Henri Richard of the Montreal Canadiens got set to shoot for the goal when Dick Mattiussi of the California Seals employed a desperate tactic to stop him in the second period of last night's National Hockey League game at the Oakland Coliseum. The shot was good, however, and Montreal went on to win, 3-2.

San Anselmo Signups Scheduled

Signups for San Anselmo's 1971 youth baseball program will be held at Isabel Cook School on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., and on Saturday, Feb. 13 from 10 a.m. to noon. The evening session will also be a parents meeting.

The program, which includes little league, is open to boys from 10 to 16 years old residing in San Anselmo. Each boy must be accompanied to the signups by a parent or guardian, and must show proof of age. The fee for the program is $10 per boy.

Movies of the 1970 World Series will be presented at the Wednesday meeting, and refreshments will be served.

5 Undefeated Teams

Five teams are still undefeated in the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department's elementary school basketball program four games into the season. Nova Albion is 4-0 and Don Timoteo 3-0 in the sixth grade division, Don Timoteo is 4-0 and Coleman 3-0 in the fifth grade, and Nova Albion is 4-0 in the fourth grade.

Opportunists

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Opportunist Don Hultz of the 1963 Minnesota Vikings holds the record for most opponents' fumbles recovered in one season—nine. Joe Schmidt, now Detroit Lions coach, is right behind Hultz. He picked up eight in the 1955 season as a player for the Lions.

Six Bear Famers

CANTON, Ohio (UPI)—The Chicago Bears of 1940 lead all National Football League clubs in elected members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Six 1940 former Bears—Sid Luckman, George McAfee, Joe Stydahar, Danny Fortmann, Bulldog Turner and George Halas, the coach—are enshrined.

Jumper Sets New Record

TORONTO (UPI) — High-jumper Reynaldo Brown established a new Canadian open record with a leap of 7-feet 2 ½ inches at the ninth annual Telegram Maple Leaf Indoor Games Friday night.

Brown, a native of Los Angeles, Calif., brought the crowd of 14,039 to their feet as he soared over the bar, breaking his own record by 2 ½ inches. He later failed on three attempts at 7-4 ½, which would have tied the world indoor record.

The pole vault proved to be the second most interesting event as Southern California's Dick Railsback and Sweden's Kjell Isaksson each vaulted 17 feet, with Railsback gaining the victory because of fewer misses.

Miler Chuck Labenz of Los Angeles and Henryk Szordykowski of Poland provided the top race of the night with Labenz just nipping Szordykowski at the wire. Labenz was clocked at 4:05.8 to Szordykowski's 4:05.9.

Szordykowski's countryman, Andrej Bandenski, fared better as he took the 440.

In the three-mile event, Australia's Kerry O'Brien was never pressed, as he led from wire to wire in capturing the contest.

American runners managed to win all the sprints, as Herb Washingttn of Michigan State took the 50; Lee Evans of New York the 600; and Tom Von Ruden of Long Beach, Calif., the 1,000 yard race.

Marcus Walker of Denver, Colo., made it four in a row over world's record holder Willie Davenport from Baton Rouge, La., in the 50-yard hurdles.

In the women's events, Rosemary Stirling of England and Marilyn Neufville of Jamaica easily won the 800 and 300 yard dashes respectively while Mamie Rawlins of Chicago, Ill., won the 50-yard hurdles and Pat Hawkins of New York, a hurdler-turned-sprinter, took the 50-yard run.

Canada's lone triumph in the meet came when Vancouver's Debbie Brill high-jumped 5-10 to top a field, which included Barbara Inkpen of England. Miss Inkpen managed only 5-8.

It Takes 17 Feet To Win Knights Of Columbus Vault

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jan Johnson and Jim Green saw two different sides to winning in Friday night's Knights of Columbus Track Meet at Madison Square Garden.

Johnson, who was selected as the outstanding performer of the 52nd annual meet, eclipsed Bob Seagren's pole vault mark of 16 feet, 6 ¾ inches with a leap of 17-¼, while Green upended Dr. Delano Meriwether, the Baltimore hematologist, for the second straight week in the 60-yard dash.

"I enjoy myself," Johnson said after thrilling the fans with his 17-foot leap. "People pay to get in here and they don't want to see some grumpy guy out there so I make it a point to be happy and give them a good show."

Green, however, was not so happy after defeating Meriwether and then watching the press flock to his opponent.

"Maybe sooner or later people are going to have to start thinking of me as the best sprinter around," the Kentucky speedster said. "I'm not disturbed about the lack of publicity, though, as long as I keep winning races."

Marty Liquori, who elected to defend his 1,000-yard title rather than chasing another four-minute mile, staved off a determined bid from his new Villanova teammate Brian McElroy and, in the process, won his 12th straight race at Madison Square Garden.

McElroy, a transfer student from Kansas running for the New York Athletic Club, stuck close to Liquori but could not overhaul the Wildcat distance ace despite a slow time of 2:08.8.

A pair of Italians, Ermino Azzaro and Gianni Del Buono found the K of C meet much more to their liking than last week's Millrose Games.

Azzaro leaped 7-1 to capture the high jump and Del Buono won the Liquori-less Columbian mile in 4:04.6 over Villanova's Chris Mason and New Zealand's Dick Quax.

Rutgers' Tom Ulan outdueled Pete Schuder of Sports International in the 600, posting a 1:11.4 clocking and Iona's Ron Pascale bested Columbia's Dwayne Dahl in a 1:57.1 Downing half mile.

John Mason of the Pacific Coast Track Club won the two mile invitational in 8:50.4.

Seiler Gets 26 In Rancho Win

Ron Seiler poured in 26 points last night to bring the Rancho Cotate High School Cougars and 80-61 North Bay II Basketball victory over Healdsburg in Rohnert Park.

The Cougars used a fourth quarter surge, in which they outscored the Greyhounds, 23-13, to insure their fifth win in nine games. Seiler, whose offensive effort was high for the game, also led everybody with 23 rebounds. Steve Wlodarczyk helped the cause with 18 points.

Marin Hockey Team In Oakland Coliseum

The Marin Amateur Hockey League's Bantam team will play at the Oakland Coliseum tomorrow morning prior to the California Golden Seals Detroit Red Wings game, the club has announced.

The Bantams, composed of boys 12 to 14 years of age, will meet a team from Sun Valley, near Walnut Creek, in the exhibition contest, scheduled to begin at 11:50 a.m.

Miss Casals In Upset Loss

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI)—Second-seeded Rosemary Casals of San Francisco was upset Friday by Australian Kerry Melville in quarterfinal action of the Virginia Slims Tennis Invitational.

First-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., had to come from behind to defeat Peaches Bartkowicz of Hamtramck, Mich.

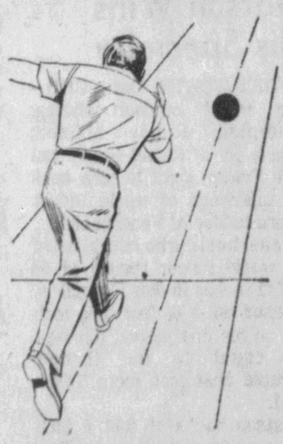
Melville won over Casals 4-6, 7-6 and 7-5 while King won over Bartkowicz 3-5 6-0 and 6-1.

This was the first time in the $100,000 Virginia Slims tour that Casals will not be in the finals.

Other quarterfinal results: Francoise Durr of France defeated Karen Krantcke of Australia 6-2, 1-6, and 6-4, and Ann Jones of England defeated Kristy Pigeon of Danville, Calif., 7-5, 6-0.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



Sometimes a bowling pro will speak of the importance of "trusting the ball." What he means is selecting a spot out on the lane and then rolling the ball toward it, counting on the natural hook to bring the ball into the pocket. If you subconsciously start "helping" the ball toward the pocket, you are likely to hit too much of the headpin and wind up with numerous splits.

Tournament Just Made For Laver

NEW YORK (UPI)—Rod Laver is really enjoying the winner-take-all format of the $210,000 Tennis Champions Classic.

The redheaded Australian has played eight matches inthe classic and earned $80,000. His eight opponents have earned exactly zero dollars.

Laver will attempt to make it $90,000 today when he meets Tom Okker of Holland in the $10,000 match. If things go as expected, Laver will win the money and Okker will have the consolation of having a tough workout.

If Laver goes unbeaten, he'll personally pocket $170,000 of the $210,000 in the prize pot.

Laver won seven matches in January, starting with a Jan. 2 victory over Ken Rosewall, and $70,000 for one month for one athlete is believed to be some kind of sports record.

In an elimination match before the main event, Roger Taylor of England and Roy Emerson of Australia will clash. The winner will not receive any money but will stay alive and have a shot at competiting in another $10,000 match. The loser will be eliminated from the tourney.

Rodola's Spree Paces Petaluma

Joe Rodola scored 15 points, seven of them in the last three minutes of play last night to boost the Petaluma High School Trojans past the Ukiah Qildcats, 58-54 at Petaluma.

The win kept the Trojans tied with Santa Rosa for second place in the North Bay I League, behind Napa, but until Rodola's heroics, the picture looked dim for them. They missed on all 11 field goal attempts in the third quarter, and, with Ukiah leading, 51-50, their sparkplug guard, Kevin Gillmore, fouled out.

Big Game Rated 'Even'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — University of Southern California puts its new-found basketball reputation on the line Saturday night against John Wooden's UCLA Bruins in a game that will determine the leadership in the country and the Pacific-8.

The Trojans were ranked first and the Bruins second in this week's UPI national coaches' poll.

"We'll have to put our game together," USC coach Bob Boyd said. "UCLA's strength is its board work and power up front. We have no way of matching that.

"We must utilize our strengths and minimize theirs. We must have good shot selection and get the ball inside with some finesse."

The Trojans go into the Big Game, which will be carried on national television, with a 16-0 record while UCLA is 15-1. Both clubs are 4-0 in the conference. national television, (including Channel 2, 8 o'clock), with a 16-0 record while UCLA is 15-1. Both clubs are 4-0 in the conference.

The odds makers in Las Vegas have rated the first of two USC-UCLA meetings this season as even although the Bruins have four starters back from a team that swept to the NCAA championship a year ago.

Wooden, who has guided the Bruins to four straight national titles and six in the past seven years, likes to think of his club as an underdog.

"It will be quite interesting to see how our team will react to the underdog role for the first time in a long, long time," he said.

"I have been a little disappointed in regard to our apparent desire in recent nonconference games but I can't imagine either a UCLA or a USC team lacking desire when opposing each other."

The Bruins' strength is up front—Sidney Wicks, Curtis Rowe and Steve Patterson. Wooden has been disappointed with the play of his guards—Henry Bibby, Kenny Booker and Terry Schofield.

Wicks, the man who intimidated Jacksonville's Artis Gilmore in last year's NCAA championship game, leads the Bruins with a 23.9 scoring average while Rowe, UCLA's other forward, has a 20.0 average.

The Trojan attack is led by Dennis Layton and Paul Westphal, the guards. Layton is averaging 18.5 points a game while Westphal has a 16.4 average.

Ron Riley, USC's 6-foot-8 center, will have to do the major share of the Trojans' rebounding against the 6-8 Wicks, 6-7 Rowe and 6-9 Patterson.

UCLA likes to run and has been averaging 90.1 to 72.3 for the Bruins' opponents. The USC offense has averaged 86.5 to 69.9 for the defense.

Basketball Players

GOERGETOWN, Ky. (UPI) — A bus carrying the Central State of Ohio basketball team from Dayton to Frankfort for a game against Kentucky State veered off U.S. 460 Friday and crashed, about seven miles West of here.

"There were some who suffered broken bones, such as a broken arm, but most of the kids were not seriously injured," a state policeman said.

Marketing Man

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Ted Sizemore of the Dodgers, who was the 1969 National League Rookie of the Year, has a degree in marketing from the University of Michigan.

Cobb Consistent

DETROIT (UPI)—Ty Cobb won the American League batting championship for nine straight years covering the 1907-1915 seasons, a major league record.

Marin To Host Skyline Quint

Floyd Jackson becomes eligible to play for College of Marin's basketball team tonight, and not a moment too soon. The Tars are going to need all the help they can get as they try to check their mid-season slide against Skyline Junior College of San Bruno at 8 o'clock, in Marin's Kentfield gymnasium.

The game marks the beginning of the second round robin in the Camino Norte Conference schedule; at this point, the Tars have lost three of their last four games, and reside in fourth place with a 4-3 record. This is an alarming situation indeed for a team that a month ago was fourth ranked among all junior colleges in California, with the state's best record, 18-1.

The addition of Jackson, a former star at Tamalpais High School, will give Marin much needed depth in the front line. He is reputed to be a super jumper, and an above average rebounder. Coach John Panagakis has indicated Jackson will not start right away, but don't be surprised to see him in the starting lineup before long.

Tonight's game will be another "out of the frying pan, etc." one for the Tars. While they were losing to West Valley Wednesday night in Campbell, Skyline was beating fourth ranked Contra Costa — a team that defeated Marin by nearly 30 points.

In their first meeting of the season, the Tars defeated Skyline, 64-58. That was the first game of the conference schedule, and Panagakis' crew had the momentum of a nine game winning streak. Now they are thrashing about, trying to discover the causes of their misfortunes, so call the odds on this game even.

West Quint Picked In All-Star Game

With the announcement of three more players yesterday, the cast for Monday night's first annual East-West College All-Star Basketball Classic is almost complete.

Coach Hal Fischer of the defending AAU champions announced that Bill Hawk, 6-8 center from Virginia, and Mike Murmen, Toledo's all-time scoring leader and a little All-American in 1969, would bolster the East squad and be ready for Monday's 8 o'clock tip-off at Terra Linda High.

Dick Millis, an all-conference forward in 1968 and 1969 from Southern Illinois, will join the powerful West club.

When contacted at Terra Linda High yesterday where both the East and West squads worked out to "get the feel of the court," Fischer commented that if a favorite had to be named it would be the West.

"The East will have a tough time stopping Darnell Hillman (SJS) and Jim Deathridge (Arkansas) inside," said Fischer. "The East probably has the best guards in Jim Oxley (West Point) and Brad Luchini (Marquette)."

However, the East's chances may have improved yesterday when it was learned that Ron Breedlove of the West, the nation's second leading rebounder in 1970, had suffered slight knee damage and might not play Monday.

Tickets will be on sale between noon and 3 o'clock tomorrow outside the Terra Linda High gym. Game officials announced last night that more than 600 of the 1300 seats had already been sold.

Tickets will also be on sale Monday at Taveggia-Brusati Sports Shop in San Rafael and Sportsland in Terra Linda Northgate Shopping Center. Admission is $1.50.

LSU's Coach McClendon Given New 5-Year Pact

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Louisiana State head football Coach Charles McClendon was given a new five-year contract Friday which includes a $4,000 annual raise and exclusive rights to telecast use of Tiger game films.

The contract, approved without objection by the LSU board of supervisors, raises McClendon's annual salary from $27,500 to $31,500.

Ten of McClendon's assistant coaches also got raises Friday, ranging from $1,200 a year to $2,000 a year. Athletic Director Carl Maddox also got a new five-year contract raising him from $26,000 to $28,500 a year.

McClendon, who still had four years to go on his old contract, guided the Tigers to a 9-2 record last year and the No. 6 ranking in the final UPI poll. During his nine years at LSU, he has compiled a 70-23-4 record.

Approval of McClendon's contract came despite objections from Rep. Parey Branton of Shongaloo that it violates a section of state law prohibiting use of public property for personal gain.

However, board attorney B.B. Taylor of Baton Rouge said the contract did not violate the law and he recommended that the board ignore Branton's request for a delay until Branton could check the legality with the state attorney general.

Two 700 Series Highlight Keg Scores In Marin

Augie Rivas' 716 three-game series at County Club Bowl in San Rafael, Terry DeYoung's 700 at Nave Lanes near Ignacio and Cecil Simpson's 697 at Greenbrae Lanes were the best scores of the week in Marin County league bowling action.

The week's honor roll:

COUNTRY CLUB BOWL

Bridge District Gets Kudos But Faces Opposition

THE DIRECTORS, STAFF and hired advisers of the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District deserve a profusion of bouquets for their work so far on the long-range transportation facilities plan.

Unlike too many studies paid for by the public's money, the long-range transportation studies seem to be the result of an honest attempt to find workable solutions to foreseeable transportation problems.

Too many studies turn out to be merely fact hunting expeditions aimed at marshalling arguments in favor of a previously adopted position. For avoiding that, a profusion of bouquets is due to all connected with the bridge district studies.

AS HAS BEEN adequately reported previously in the I-J and elsewhere, the studies to date have produced five separate apparently workable plans, plus a couple of alternates. Some envision rapid transit rail service, ultimately, and some would end up with buses on special rights of way where they would not be subject to ordinary traffic tie-ups. Some of the approaches would involve expanding bridge capacity; some envision an underwater tube crossing. Several contemplate tunnels for trains or buses under San Francisco streets.

The district already operates a ferry service which will be expanded and enlarged.

EARLIER THIS WEEK, the bridge district held its 22nd and final public hearing on these preliminary concepts and alternatives. This long, long series of widely publicized hearings has taken place at various strategic places throughout the six-county district.

The final two meetings this week — one in San Francisco and one in San Rafael — were held especially to get reaction from those who had attended earlier hearings and presumably had given thorough study to the plans.

Reactions varied widely, but there was one common point. There was almost unanimous approval of the way in which the studies were conducted and the way in which the results have been presented to the public.

Bridge Board, baby, you've you've come a long way! May you keep a-coming!

UNFORTUNATELY, SOME reactors, like the Sierra Club spokesman, while applauding the procedures condemned the resultant proposals.

If you heard the speaker at Tuesday night's hearing in San Francisco who identified himself as Lester Cohen of Sausalito, speaking for the San Francisco Bay Area chapter of the Sierra Club, you could only conclude that no matter what plan is offered, the Sierra Club will be opposed — unless it involves turning the clock back to 1930.

During the current year, the bridge district is obliged to report its findings and conclusions to the state legislature. Presumably this will involve recommendations to the legislature as to which of the choice of approaches should be adopted and pursued.

What happens then is problematical. It is a good bet that the Sierra Club and its ilk will oppose whatever is ultimately recommended.

It is probably also a good bet that those who have endorsed an approach other than the one finally recommended will join the opposition.

Certain members of the citizen advisory committees which have participated in the planning will probably wind up in opposition. The Sierra Club attitude could well prevail. Progress, as we know it, could be stymied.

It is easy enough to say that the way to solve the traffic program is to help it choke itself to death.

That is, do nothing — save possibly raise bridge tolls to discourage private passenger car use — and just let bridge traffic get to the point where it is unbearable and people will be forced to quit using the bridge.

THERE ARE TWO flaws in this approach.

First is that it doesn't take into consideration the damage and suffering it inflicts on those who must use the bridge to get to and from work to earn a living. As traffic grows worse, a growing portion of every working day must be devoted to travel to and from work. The present time required at peak hours is objectionable. Extending it would be oppressive; it would have the effect of reducing the amount of enjoyable lifetime that an individual has remaining to him. This is not an acceptable solution.

Second, when the situation becomes unbearable, a commuters' revolt will bring a demand for proper facilities. In the end, the Sierra Club dream of stopping growth will not work; attempting to make it work only means poorer planning or no planning at all for tomorrow's needs.

DOES ALL THIS MEAN that the outlook for the adoption of any bridge district plan for progress is black?

Not necessarily.

When school financing measures suffer setbacks, it is necessary for a citizens' committee to organize itself and see that the compelling affirmative arguments are publicized far and wide.

It is quite possible that before the bridge can ultimately move ahead, a citizens committee will have to be organized to work harder FOR progress than those who work against it.

Early Blossoms

Old Mother Nature has many secrets which she does not yield easily. Why, for example, do the acacias and plum trees bloom early in February some years (such as this one) and wait until the end of the month in others.

Obviously, the weather is the major factor. But exactly what about this year's weather was conducive to early blooming? Was it the warm mid-January afternoons? Did the unusually heavy November rains give them an early start? Did the persistent heavy fogs of late last month caress them into blossom? Or did all contribute to the unusual occurrence?

Anyway, the acacia and plum are lovely now.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to 15-year-old Daniel Weaver, who was awakened by fire Monday in the family home on Throckmorton Ridge, and took his 10-year-old sister to safety at a neighbor's before his father returned from driving his mother to catch a bus.

BRICKBAT to the Marin County Humane Society for this false statement in its solicitation for funds: "The society's only support is derived from memberships, donations and money raised by our women's auxiliary." Surely Humane Society officials are aware that the society's principal support comes from tax funds. Its share of the current county budget is $329,657, which includes taxes levied by the county and by the cities which pay the county for the Humane Society's services.

BOUQUET to James Looney, newly appointed executive director of the Marin branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, and best wishes for his success in the job.

BRICKBATS to those who try to make political capital out of the processes of justice.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Still Time To Save Right To Vote

In response to Jean Marchant's letter of Jan. 28 (Vote List Purge Figure Misleading) the figure of 20,000 given in the Jan. 22 I-J editorial is essentially correct. There is really nothing unusual about this figure since the number of Marin voters purged has fluctuated from 13 per cent in presidential elections to 19 per cent in off-year elections. (1966: 19.6 per cent purged; 1970: 19.2 per cent to be purged) The 1970 figure will not be final until Feb. 11, the deadline for returning reinstatement cards. Experience has shown that most purged voters re-register by the next major election, at a greater expense to the taxpayer than mailing back the card.

Some of the 20,000 were duplications or deceased, but this number is not as high as reader Marchant would have us believe. Clerks at the elections office regularly follow the obituaries, removing names of deceased persons from the rolls. Previous registration cards are pulled for those re-registering for any reason. Naturally, mistakes occur. Whenever there is doubt, the card is left in — better to have duplication than to disenfranchise a voter.

Remember, if you didn't vote on Nov. 3, be sure to return your card by Feb. 11 in order to remain on the list of registered voters.

One Reason Why Few Ride Buses

Perhaps I can offer a clue as to why the new Marin Transit System is carrying so few passengers. It isn't there when you expect it to be.

A bus is scheduled to be at Marin General Hospital at 4:44 according to the Dec. 29 I-J. For the past two Mondays I have looked for it, but not seen it as I drove over to San Rafael at that time. This week I determined to catch it when I saw the clearly marked bus stop by the Safeway parking lot. I arrived eight minutes early and just in time to see it sail by without stopping. I chased it over Wolfe Grade and managed to talk to the driver when he stopped for a red light on D Street. He said the reason he was running early was because he did not have any passengers and how could I expect him to stop on a freeway and hold up traffic to make up time.

If a bus only runs hourly prospective passengers have to plan in advance which one they want to travel on. Nothing is more infuriating than to arrive on time, wait 10 minutes thinking the bus is delayed and then discover it left 10 minutes early.

Maybe a short course in the art of dawdling and clock watching would be helpful to the drivers.

No U.S. Troops In Cambodia — They All Wear Seersucker Suits

WASHINGTON — Word from Cambodia is that U.S. military teams assigned to check on American military aid will be dressed in civilian clothes and attached to the U.S. Embassy at Phnom Penh. It has been made perfectly clear that these military teams are not advisers and that they are not violating the "spirit of the law" of the Cooper-Church Amendment.

If things continue the way they're going, Cambodia may soon have the largest American embassy in the world. I would not be surprised to read the following dispatches from this part of the world:

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, Feb. 12 — Five hundred commercial attaches arrived today at Phnom Penh Airport. U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank explained to reporters that trade with Cambodia has reached an all-time high and he needed the extra personnel to negotiate tariff agreements with Cambodian officials.

The 500 commercial attaches, all carrying brief cases and wearing identical seersucker suits, marched the five miles from the airport in double time, led by the U.S. Commercial Attache Band.

Phnom Penh, Cambodia, March 5 — One thousand USIA employees were flown in to Phnom Penh last night to beef up the 500 commercial attaches that were assigned to the American Embassy last month.

An American spokesman explained that the USIA was stepping up its information activities for school children in Cambodia, and that the 1,000 new employees would all be assigned to the new USIA library which was being built underground on the outskirts of the capital.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, April 30 — Five thousand cultural affairs officers were airlifted into this Cambodia capital today. On hand to greet them were Ambassador Emory Swank and Premier Lon Nol. The cultural affairs officers, all carrying violin cases, were lined up on the runway and reviewed in a jeep by Premier Lon Nol.

After the review, the chief cultural affairs officer, "Bull" Thorndike, told Lon Nol: "No country deserves culture more than Cambodia and my men are here to see that you get it. And we'll stay here until the dirty job is done."

Phnom Penh, July 12 — The State Department has broken ground for the largest U.S. Embassy building ever constructed. The embassy will comprise a 5,000-acre complex and the main building, shaped like a pentagon, will be able to accommodate 50,000 American Embassy employees now working in Cambodia.

The State Department explained that the reasons for expansion were the unusually heavy demand for visas and passports as well as the increase in embassy diplomatic communications.

"We found," said Ambassador Swank, "our former two-story chancellery was not large enough to handle all the embassy's business. The new building will allow us to expedite tourist requests as well as have a place where we can hold exhibits showing the American way of life."

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, Nov. 13 — A U.S. Marine guard detail composed of 100,000 men and officers was landed in Phnom Penh today.

Sec. of State William Rogers revealed the increase in the Marin guard detail was needed after two Cambodians had broken into the embassy PX and stolen three Japanese cameras.

He believed the new security measures would discourage any such thefts in the future.

He told reporters, "The security of a U.S. Embassy is the first consideration of this country and as long as I am secretary of state I will see that our brave diplomats have all the protection they need."

MAN BITES DOG

MARQUIS CHILDS

Balance of Powers Unbalanced; Too Many Cards Kept Secret

WASHINGTON — When Secy. of State William P. Rogers returned to his office after a four-hour closed session with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he expressed his pent-up frustration to staff assistants. You just could not get through to those people. They were so armored in their own prejudices that they weren't even willing to listen.

As he reported his experience to his associates, he had begun by proposing to read a prepared statement on the expanding air war in Cambodia. Chairman J. William Fulbright broke in to say it would be unnecessary to read the statement and it should be put in the record. Rogers protested that he was afraid it would not be read in the committee record and he wanted members to hear what he had to say in the hope their questions would be based on his presentation.

His protest was in vain. During the four hours he was interrogated, Rogers observed that three committee members were sleeping. The interrogation proceeded along the lines covered so often as the war has expanded into Cambodia and Laos.

THE FRUSTRATION on both sides of this committee table is such today that these encounters are becoming a dialogue of the deaf. The sense of futility of top men in government is matched, if not exceeded, by that of senators and the more aware members of the House when they confront the concerted power of the executive branch of government.

Their case is that with such vast issues as the Indo-China war, the executive holds all the cards and the hand is not revealed except to the degree that partial disclosure serves a particular purpose. The $76 billion budget of the Department of Defense conceals mysteries beyond the reach of any outsider, including members of Congress.

The secretary of state and his principal lieutenants come to the capital with knowledge contained in an array of intelligence reports denied to the Congress. They have what are presumably the facts about an expanded air war in Cambodia and a secret war in Laos, and they are able in testifying to feed out as much or as little of this background as they choose.

DOES THE EXPANDED air war in Cambodia violate the Nixon pledge of June 30? Does it come close to placing Americans in or out of uniform on the ground in violation of the promise that American troops would not be involved in the Cambodian war? Is massive American air support for the secret war in Laos a further extension of the Indochina conflict which Congress has never approved? Committee members say that they cannot get answers to these questions.

From the executive-witness side of the table the complaint is that members of Congress do not do their homework. They come to a session such as that with Rogers repeating charges out of the past, bent on getting testimony to support a long-fixed position. "Have you stopped beating your wife?" is the form most of the questions take.

THE FOUNDING Fathers believed that by balancing the rival claimants to power — executive, legislative and judicial —they would insure a free society. With a balance of powers no single authority could assert supreme control and the citizen would be free to make his individual choices in his own way.

A further cause of congressional frustration, particularly among those who try to cope with foreign and military policy, is executive privilege. Henry Kissinger and his highly organized little state department occupy a privileged sanctuary in the White House. Since they are the servants of the chief executive, they cannot be questioned by a congressional committee. As the Kissinger apparatus is credited in a widely publicized view with shaping foreign policy, Congress feels barred from the real source of executive power.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Unrest In Philippines Brings Growing Violence

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Manila, embattled university students stand off police from behind fiery barricades, and declares one: "The politics of the street has replaced the politics of the ballot."

A foreign diplomat declares, "The conditions in this country make it riper for upheaval than any other I have ever served in. If there is not a major attempt at reform—and soon—I cannot see how threat of violent revolution can be avoided."

Says another student: You can't be a nationalist without being anti-American."

But, says Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo: "go into the countryside and tell any farmer you are an American. You can be sure the farmer will kill his best chicken and kill it for you."

THESE ARE SOME of the elements making up daily life in the Philippines which its own president, Ferdinand E. Marcos, has described as a country "sitting on top of a social volcano."

In the countryside are the Communist-led Hukbalahaps, leftovers from an anti-Japanese guerrilla movement, small in numbers now but organized and capable of spreading terror. In Manila are the radical students, demanding that the Philippines establish an image of its own, beyond the shadow of the United States. They resent the special relationship between the United States and the Philippines since Philippine independence in 1946.

They are suspicious of the nearly $1 billion in U.S. investment in the Philippines and resentful of the $200 million spent annually there by the U.S. military, yet fearful of the economic results should it be withdrawn.

It was just a year ago that mounting student unrest exploded into an antigovernment demonstration which ended with at least five killed and more than 150 injured. The students demanded a promise from Marcos that he would not seek re-election to a third term, that he carry out promises to improve education and that a convention scheduled for June, 1971, to make changes in the Philippine constitution be representative of all the people.

Since then, student demands have widened, with the most radical demanding violent overthrow of the government.

Dissent has spread to Marcos' own administration. Vice President Fernando Lopez resigned from his cabinet post as secretary of agriculture and national resources after Marcos accused the powerful Lopez family of fostering a transport workers strike.

A primary source of Philippine unrest is the fact that the economy is dominated by an oligarchy comprising one per cent of the population, while per capita income stands at $50 annually or less. Another is chronic unemployment fed by one million potential new workers coming on to the labor market each year.

Four Sites For Station To Be Eyed

Sites for a central Marin terminal for the expanded San Francisco Bay ferry system will be discussed Monday by the county planning commission.

The all-day commission meeting will start at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center Administration Building.

Four sites for the terminal have been proposed to the Golden Gate Bridge district, which proposes extra runs to supplement current service from Sausalito to San Francisco.

The four terminals are in the Corte Madera marshland east of Corte Madera Wye, at the north edge of Corte Madera south and east of Greenbrae boardwalk, on the north side of Corte Madera Creek in Larkspur and at San Quentin Point.

Other items on the commission agenda include:

NEW ZONE — A public hearing on establishment of an A-1 zone, which would permit a variety of recreation and open space use and residential density of one unit per 20 acres. The county planning staff recommends the zone be applied to areas within the agricultural preserve.

EXCAVATION — Ghilotti Brothers, San Rafael contractors, wants to extend its permit for an excavation pit on the 498-acre Neil McIsaac property in Bowman Canyon in West Novato. The pit has been operating for six years.

FLEA MARKET — The town of Corte Madera will object to a flea market planned south of Corte Madera Wye on land formerly occupied by Indian Valley Lumber Co.

LAND DIVISION — Continued hearings on requests for land division by J. Thomas Caines, who has seven acres along North Dream Farm Road north of Inverness, and Charlotte Berkov, who owns about five acres at Indian Springs and Indian Valley roads in southwest Novato.

SCHOOL — The James Hall School (3-R) wants to add a classroom and swimming pool on its three-acre property at Las Gallinas Avenue and Merrydale Road, Los Ranchitos.

MARINVIEW — Allan Marin Co. will submit precise development plans for Marinview units 3-A and 4 on Tennessee Valley Road. Seventy units are planned on 28 acres for the two units.

ENGLISH PUB — Charles Felix of Muir Beach will submit a master plan for an English pub and inn on a half-acre lot at the entrance to Muir Beach.

HOUSING POLICY — The first public hearings will be held on a housing policy statement, drafted by a subcommittee headed by commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo. The statement, outlining goals and methods of be used in easing the housing shortage, is required to qualify Marin for federal housing grants.

Driver Bruises Ribs In Accident

Ralph Hicks, 45, of 200 Liberty Road, Petaluma, suffered bruised ribs yesterday when his car veered off Pepper Road south of Rohnert Park and hit a fence, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Hicks was treated at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma and transferred to Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital. The crash occurred at 4:45 p.m.

Sentencing Delayed In Big Drug Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Sentencing of two Kentfield residents, arrested in a $250,000 cocaine ring raid at San Francisco International Airport, has been postponed to next Friday.

Robert Bernard Ford and Mark Robert Shanahan, both 21, were to have been sentenced yesterday in federal district court. They pleaded guilty in January to conspiring to violate federal narcotics laws.

A total of seven Marinites were arrested last May 22 at the airport and in Sausalito as a result of lengthy undercover investigation. Only one defendant has been sentenced so far; the others' cases are wending their way through federal court.

Sharon Ann Needelman, 26, of San Anselmo, was sentenced to a year in federal prison on Jan. 15, after pleading guilty to conspiracy. She was ordered to begin serving the term Jan. 18. Maureen Booth, 24, also of San Anselmo, likewise pleaded guilty and was ordered to return to court April 23 for sentencing.

A bench warrant was issued for Marcia Freet, 27, of Sausalito, after she failed to appear for jury trial set for Monday.

Mitchell J. Howard, 22, of Marin City, and Steve Howard, 24, of Sausalito, pleaded guilty Monday to an amended complaint charging them only with sale of cocaine. They were ordered to appear Feb. 25 for sentencing.

All but the two Howards were arrested at the airport after federal narcotics agents allegedly purchased cocaine worth $250,000 from the suspects.

Black History Week Program Set Thursday

Black History week — Monday to Feb. 14 — will be observed with a special program at Manzanita Center in Marin City at 8 p.m. Thursday.

This will be the second annual Maadhimisho (Swahili for celebration) sponsored by the Marin County Library. Mrs. Alice Curry, who heads the Marin City branch of the library, will present a program of music, films, and talks.

On the program will be Gabe Jackson, drummer; James Toliver, special assistant in the Sausalito School District, who will show films on his 1970 African tour; Elizabeth Jones, who will read her own poetry, and talks by Marguerite Johnson and Rosa B. Ray.

Society To Hear Speech On Soils

Norman Stroyd of Fairfax will speak on compost and soils Monday at 8 p.m. during the Chrysanthemum Society of Marin's meeting at the Crocker Citizens National Bank, Fourth and B streets, San Rafael.

Also, Ivan Johnson of Novato will speak on starting standards and cascade forms and Joe Millet of Walnut Creek will show slides of chrysanthemums in Japan.

Wrong Name

Furs and other personal possessions valued at $9,000 were stolen Jan. 26 from the residence of Mrs. James A. Michael, 107 Golden Gate Avenue, Belvedere. The Independent-Journal incorrectly reported Jan. 27 that the burglary occurred at the home of James A. Mitchell.

Police Merger Plan Is Shelved

A proposal to consolidate the Cotati and Rohnert Park police departments has been dropped because of expected high costs to one of the city's in a merged operation.

The Cotati City Council, meeting Thursday, shelved the merger idea, saying the plan would greatly increase the cost of the department operation while not significantly improving protection.

A merger report prepared by Rohnert Park City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan indicated the consolidation would cost Cotati $50,000 per year to maintain, or about $20,000 more than is presently spent.

The council approved a resolution thanking Callinan for time spent on the study.

Russ Gardiner To Lead Novato High

Elected as senior class senators were Greg Griffin, Pam Johnston, Relda Jones, Marty McDonough, Lorna Shafer, Sharol Steele and Karen Hensley.

Legislator Hits Dental Pay Plan

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)— State Rep. Thomas G. Sharp, a Republican, said Friday he will introduce a resolution in the house to cancel a dental insurance program for legislators which he said costs taxpayers $30,000 a year.

The plan, enacted in the flurry of year-end business last year, provides payment of 80 per cent of dental bills for legislators and 50 per cent of orthodontist bills for their children.

Heart Fund Drive Opens

The 1971 Heart Fund Campaign has opened in Marin with a goal of $70,000.

Dr. James R. Dahl, president of the Marin County Heart Association, said the campaign will continue through Heart Sunday, Feb. 28.

A door-to-door appeal by 2,500 volunteers will be made on Feb. 27 and Feb. 28, he said. Volunteers will also distribute pamphlets covering heart attack warnings and schedules of the mobile units which test for blood pressure, blood sugar and cholesterol.

Proceeds will benefit heart research grants, community services and educational projects, Dahl said.

He Has Built A Better Planter Box

COVER PHOTO

A Disabled Man Keeps His Hands Active

Marinite Finds That He Can Still Do Fine Work With Redwood

By DON KEOWN

Time can hang heavy on the hands of a man forced by physical disabilities to give up his work and many other activities.

That was the case with Woodrow E. Slater of 2072 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, after he had suffered disabling injuries in a long series of accidents.

Once a logger and formerly a construction worker, Slater had labored with his hands and around wood for most of his life.

And he found in experimenting with a few handtools that despite back and other injuries, he could still do simple woodworking, providing he paced himself properly.

There was, however, a catch.

"WHILE I HAD always liked things made from wood," he explains, "I had never had any tools of my own with which to do woodworking. I was totally inexperienced."

Nevertheless, he began to putter around in his garage, using his simple handtools. And he decided upon his initial project — a planter box to be built of redwood and pretty enough for the indoors as well as the outdoors.

"The idea came to me because I remembered having worked for people who had mentioned they would like to have some such container for their houseplants," he says.

Slater has been making planter boxes ever since. And in that four-year period he has completed something like 50 of them.

Some he has given to relatives and friends. Some he had kept for himself and his wife Dorothy. And some he has simply discarded "because I wasn't satisfied with them."

WHAT HE WAS trying to do, he explains, was to perfect the planter box to meet the standards of the finest hand craftsmen.

"That was a pretty tough goal for an amateur," he admits. But he believes he has succeeded.

He has begun turning out eight-sided redwood boxes with the sawed panels perfectly fitted and joined without nails. These boxes for indoor use vary from six inches to 10 inches in diameter at the top, tapering to a narrower base, and stand from six to 12 inches high.

The boxes are then mounted on a base with legs. And the whole piece stained and varnished to a glossy finish.

Slater says he can also build them bigger and give them a more rustic finish for use as an outdoor planter.

He adds that he has had two major problems in perfecting his product.

"I HAD A hard time finding just the right adhesive," he says. But ultimately he came up with the one he regards as perfect for his needs. Exactly what it is "is a trade secret," he adds.

And he had some difficulty devising a drain hole in the bottom so that surplus water would run from the container. That problem, too, has been solved.

So now Slater feels he is ready to begin selling the planter boxes which, he adds, are unlike any others he has ever seen.

But he is undecided as yet as to how to price them. "A small one takes me 10 hours, a big one as long as 18 hours," he says. "It is slow work, since it is all hand-fitted."

And due to his bad back, Slater must work in spurts instead of steadily.

Because of that, Slater says he will be able to turn out only a limited number of the planters. "But perhaps they will be all the more appreciated, if they are scarce."

Friends, neighbors and relatives who have seen the completed planters have all been favorably impressed.

Slater did his logging in his native Oregon, moved to San Francisco, and then, in 1954, to Marin. His series of accidents began while he was employed in construction work.

THERE WERE separate accidents in 1955 and 1960 while in construction work, and 1967, the last a fall from ladder while he was engaged apartment house maintena Finally, a year ago, came fourth mishap, a car accide "in which my neck and an a were messed up."

"I just couldn't make it a

A FINISHED planter box is given final scrutiny by its maker Woodro E. Slater. This one, along with the usual highly polished finish, he h also decorated with a carved design. It makes, Slater feels, an ide indoor container for houseplants. But he also builds larger ones f the outdoors — all of redwood.

more," he says.

In a hobby that could become a part-time business Slater has found a means of keeping his mind and hands active.

His venture took a big step forward when he succeeded in purchasing a small table saw that he installed in the small and crowded garage where he works.

So far his only project besides his planter boxes has been a portable cosmetic dresser complete with lighting, mirror and storage that he made for his wife.

"AS SOON AS I work out a couple of problems with it, I may have something there, too," he says.

But in the meantime, the man who thinks he has built a better — and prettier — container for indoor plantings hopes the public will, if not exactly beat a path to his door, at least show up from time to time to take a look at what he has turned out.

By then, he just might have settled on a price.

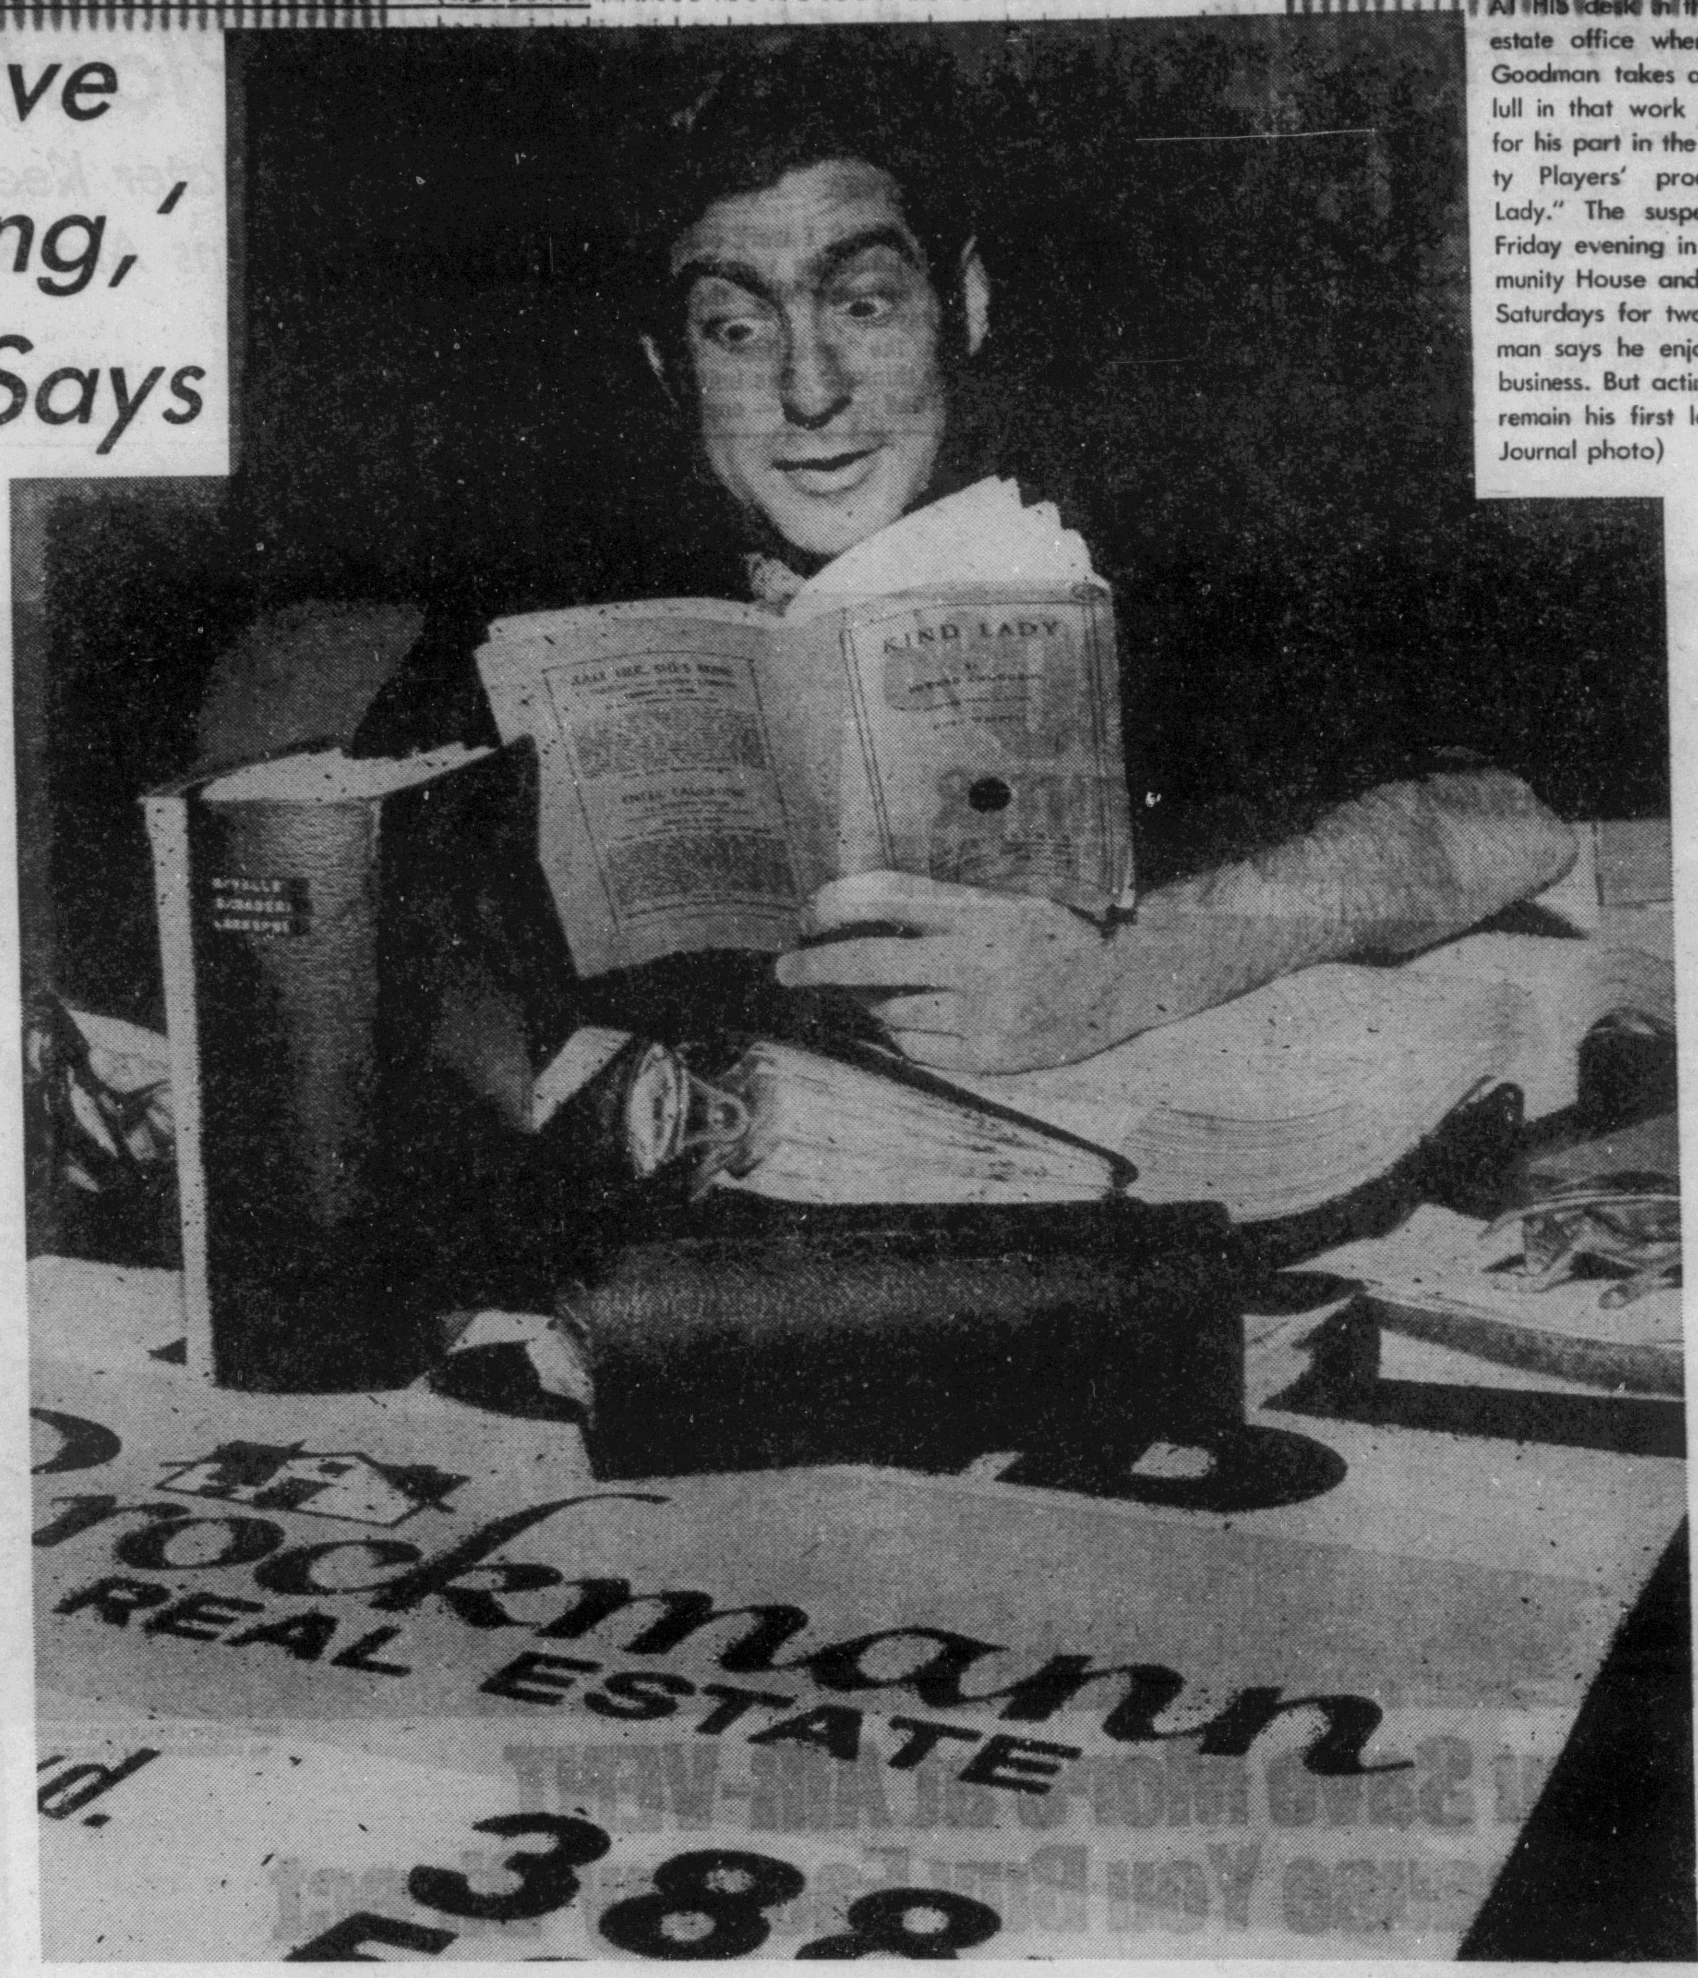
'I Love Acting,' He Says



At his desk in the Mill Valley real estate office where he works, Dan Goodman takes an advantage of a lull in that work to study his script for his part in the Novato Community Players' production of "Kind Lady." The suspense drama opens Friday evening in the Novato Community House and plays Fridays and Saturdays for two weekends. Goodman says he enjoys the real estate business. But acting and entertaining remain his first loves. (Independent-Journal photo)

Dan Goodman Sells Real Estate, But He Dreams Of Entertaining

By DON KEOWN

Dan Goodman describes himself as a full-time real estate salesman, a semi-professional entertainer and an aspiring actor.

And he admits that throughout his adult life he has been wrestling with the impulse to make the big jump and attempt to earn his living in show business.

Why then, hasn't he done so?

"I guess it's a matter of guts," he grins. "I just haven't been able to convince myself fully that I would be able to carry myself financially until the break came.

"You read so much about actors and entertainers starving while they wait for that break.

"I guess you would have to say I'm more a realist than an idealist."

Still, Goodman continues to dream of what might have been, or what yet may be. And in the meantime he sells real estate — "a job I like better than anything else I've ever done, except acting and entertaining." And he looks for opportunities on the little theater stage, at club functions, at civic affairs, at private parties, etc., to satisfy the craving within him for greasepaint and footlights.

HIS NEXT opportunity comes next Friday and Saturday and Feb. 19 and 20 when he performs with the Novato Community Players in the Novato Community House in their production of the suspense drama, "Kind Lady."

"It will be an updated version of the play that was first performed on Broadway in 1935 with Gladys George in the lead," he says. "And the setting has been switched from London to San Francisco's Nob Hill."

In the past Goodman's amateur theater credits have included "The Male Animal," "Guys and Dolls," "The Number," "My Three Angels,"

"Mr. Roberts," "Anniversary Waltz," "Look Homeward Angel," "A Mighty Man Is He," "Anastasia," "Imaginary Invalid," "Born Yesterday" and "Front Page."

BUT "KIND Lady" will mark only the second amateur play he has played in since 1964. He had the lead in the Ross Valley Players' production of "Anniversary Waltz" last May.

Real estate, his appearances as a semi-professional stand-up comedian and monologist, and table tennis, another sometimes overpowering interest, have all kept him too occupied to try for many parts in plays.

And some of those scattered attempts at roles have built up inside him "one of my pet peeves." It is aimed at "the director who thinks he possesses such psychic powers that he can determine during auditions of less than two minutes whether you can play the role for which you have read only a few words."

He cites a personal experience in which, one of a dozen men present for an audition, he was halted after reading "exactly 12 words" by the director who then signaled for the next candidate to read for the character.

And yet another director who allowed him to read but 22 words before the ritualistic cutoff: "Fine. Thank you very much."

"MY POINT is that people who turn up for auditions are doing the director a favor, for the more people who compete, the greater the variety of talent from which selections can be made," Goodman says. "The director should at least give these people the courtesy of permitting them to read a portion of a scene or several lines before giving them the ax."

This, he adds, is especially important because the best qualified actor might be handicapped by nervousness in reading the first few lines.

Still, says Goodman, looking back, "I have found working with most groups enjoyable, and I hope that little theater remains very much a part of our community activities."

"I personally find it great therapy and a good hobby," he adds. "It serves as my outlet — as my means of expression."

THIS MAY find him delivering a comedy monologue, reciting poetry, lecturing with slides on Greenland or delivering Anton Chekhov's "Harmfulness of Tobacco."

"Then," he says, "you are really on your own. If you make it big with the audience, the credit is all yours. You are the king.

"But, of course, the reverse — total failure — can happen. And then, that can be a most humiliating experience."

For these acts Goodman says "I must have memorized several hundred poems." But he adds: "And I've forgotten at least 80 per cent of them."

His biggest thrill came in 1968 when he and his close friend and partner Ken Lambert of San Mateo were granted an audition for the Merv Griffin Show on CBS television. They didn't make the show.

"I don't know to this date whether he disliked our material or was unimpressed with our talent," Goodman says. "But I was told that for a non full-time professional like me to even get an audition for a national television program was an achievement. So I was grateful simply for the invitation to audition."

He and Lambert work together frequently.

LAMBERT, HE says, is "a talented song and dance man with a natural flair for comedy." A professional entertainer, he came from Britain where he appeared on the British Broad-

Dan Goodman: Realty Or Stage?

He has toured the Canadian nightclub circuit, and in the United States he has been featured on the Horace Heidt program and has appeared in a number of Circle Star Theater productions at San Carlos.

He is particularly adept at the dialects of the British Isles — Cockney, Lancashire, Welsh, Scottish, Irish.

GOODMAN OFTEN appears with him under the name Denny Roberts that he also uses sometimes in little theater. The two mesh together in comedy skits, music and dancing, but also take the stage "solo" to do their own things.

For Goodman, this might be his interpretation of a popular song — anything from "September Song" to "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" — in the recitative style he has developed.

The liaison between the two is a loose one that allows either partner to perform without the other when the chance arises or the occasion demands.

GOODMAN WAS born in Massachusetts, and got his first taste of acting in school plays. But it was as a high school junior in Southern California that he really discovered the lure of performing. He joined his school's speech or oratory team to compete with the teams of other schools.

"It was a type of histrionics," he says, "and I have had the bug ever since."

Goodman is with Brockmann Realty and insists that despite the nagging urge to take a flyer at the stage, he's not at all discontented with his present occupation.

"What I like about real estate is that it is not the punching-the-time-clock, pressure-type kind of thing," he says. "You are pretty much on your own. And the financial opportunities are excellent, if you have the ability and the drive."

IT ENABLES him, too, to meet people and to widen his already broad circle of acquaintances.

"I feel equally at home around business or entertainment people," he says.

Acting and entertaining, he adds, do not interfere with his real estate work, and have on occasion enabled him to make valuable contacts.

His past experience included eight years in electronics in the fields of logistics and production control. It was not uninteresting, he says, and involved traveling which he enjoyed. "But there was also a lot of pressure and politics involved," he adds.

Still, he will admit, if a call should come tomorrow from Hollywood offering him a good part in a television series, he would pack immediately and head south.

"I LIKE REAL estate," he says. "But I love acting and entertaining."

Then he adds: "The question I am up against, I guess, is an old one: Is it better to realize the ideal, or to idealize the real?"

MARIN CLEANERS

"Why Can't My Dress Belt Be Drycleaned?"

Not only covered belts but covered belt buckles are often unserviceable. Remember, when buying belts, if they have cardboard, artificial leather or paper backing, they will not stand drycleaning. Frequently, too, belts have rubberized interlinings which will dissolve in drycleaning. Some belt linings are dyed with fugitive dyes. When cleaned, the dye from the lining seeps through and stains the belt. There is no way to determine this fault before cleaning.

You can see, Mrs. S.K.O., why your drycleaner doesn't want to risk cleaning a dress belt. Your best protection is to avoid purchasing belts that have the above-mentioned weaknesses.

Ben Farlatti Stands Eager To Lend His Support To Better-Marin Movements

AS PRESIDENT of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, and as an active member of many other civic groups, Bernardino A. (Ben) Farlatti rates as one of his county's hardest workers for a more marvelous Marin.

By THERON NEWELL

Any idea or promotion to better Marin County will find active support from one of the Bay Area's native sons, who after 59 years still thinks that it is the greatest place on earth to live.

That man is Ben Farlatti of 1300 Mar West, Tiburon, a dynamic and personable man of many careers. These include such diverse activities as semi-pro football player, grease monkey, parking garage owner, restaurateur, motel operator, labor mediator and successful business man.

As if that wasn't enough to absorb the energies of any man, he is the most active civic leader and successful behind-the-scenes politician.

Although his parents were living in Fairfax when he was due to arrive, his mother went to San Francisco where he was born so that he would be a third generation San Franciscan. In spite of that Bernardino A. Farlatti turned out to be one of the biggest boosters of Marin County.

BEN, AS HE was nicknamed, attended school in Fairfax, Tamalpais High School and the College of Marin.

He played football both in high school and college. He liked it so much that he joined a semi-pro football team, the Petaluma Bone Crushers.

Football wasn't his only interest then. While in high school he started working for service stations. That led to a job with Gilmore Oil Co. which was finally absorbed by Standard Oil of New York.

"I worked for Gilmore for 20 years, and when I quit I was sales manager for more than 500 stations in Southern California," he said.

While in the petroleum business he became interested in parking lots, at first in connection with service stations. He has since been involved in the construction of parking garages all over the United States, and is still a consultant in the parking business.

WHEN HE constructed a six-story garage in Reno, Nev., there was a space left on the first floor next to the Truckee River. so he turned that into a restaurant, named, of course, The Riverfront.

His reputation in Marin County as a restaurateur was made when he was manager and operator of The Lodge in Novato from 1963 to July 1966 and the Tiburon Lodge from Jly 1966 to September 1969. He also ran the Brigadoon Motel in Vacaville.

His partner in these enterprises was Mrs. Farlatti, the former Virginia Hingle of Bellingham, Wash., whom he married nine years ago. She has since opened a beauty shop in the Strawberry Town and Country Shopping Center.

Although he is successful in business, his hobbies of civic affairs and acting behind-the-scenes in politics receive a lot of his attentions. "They take more of my time than they should, but I enjoy them," he said.

HE ORGANIZED and was the first president of the Marin County Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1935.

"Our project was the Greenbrae bridge, which eventually was built," he said.

He has served two terms as chairman of the Democrat Central Committee.

"Although I am a Democrat, in the recent election I supported Peter Behr (for state senator) and George Murphy (for United States senator)."

In 1937, he joined the Rotary Club in Mill Valley.

"I have been a member of six Rotary clubs in two states and am now back as a member of my original club," he said.

He was general chairman of the Rotary Clubs Conference in San Francisco.

Farlatti is Marin County chairman for the Freeways and Highways Committee and vice-chairman of Golden Gate Corridor Committee.

"I believe in the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District leasing ferries immediately to help move the people between San Francisco and Marin County," he said.

His mother was one of the founders of the Marin County Humane Society and he is carrying on the family tradition as a member of the board of directors of the Humane Society.

Always a booster of the area, he is past president of the Tiburon Chamber of Commerce, president of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau, a member of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and a director and member of the executive committee of the Redwood Empire Association.

HE IS ALSO vice president of the Marvelous Marin Breakfast Club.

He is a past president of the Marin County Restaurant and Tavern Owners Association and trustee for the trust fund representing the Culinary and Hotel Workers Union.

It is through his political views and observations that Farlatti has attracted the most attention in his county. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the Board of Supervisors in 1968. In that campaign he advocated better transportation for the county, missile sites for Angel Island, and anything to further business.

"I've seen the county make a lot of changes since I was a boy, and predominately they have been for the better," he said.

But it is in bad shape in transportation, both highways and public transportation, he added.

IT WILL ALWAYS be a bedroom community, with perhaps some more small, clean industry like McGraw-Hill and Fairchild," he said.

Farlatti cannot foresee any joint use of Hamilton Air Force Base unless the county constructs a parallel runway on private land and uses the tower and other landing facilities of the base. He was doubtful that any industrial complex would grow around such an airport.

"Novato is completely overrated as a business area," he said bluntly of North Marin.

He thinks the next big expansion for a shopping center will be just across the Sonoma County line or perhaps as far north as Petaluma. He said that the downtown plan for Novato, made by Sedway and Cooke, planning consultants, is too sophisticated for Novato.

Farlatti thinks that in the near future the cities and Marin County will join into "the city and county of Marin."

"We should have one fire department so that equipment can be moved around where it will do the most good and not have such a duplication of facilities and management," he said.

He also believes that there ought to be just one police force in the county.

"I think that Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos is doing a great job," he said.

He would also like to see a merger of the Marin Municipal and North Marin County Water districts. The same applies to all the sanitary districts in the county.

The only function of government which Farlatti would like to keep more localized is planning.

"Why should some central agency tell people in West Marin or the other rural or smaller communities how to plan their own communities?" he asked in support of his own point of view.

Farlatti expressed concern over the Hippie groups and the increased use of dope among the younger generation.

"I feel sorry for those people. Many of them are more degenerate than animals. Some young people are starting families where both the parents take dope. I'm concerned about the life of such children," he said.

Another concern of Farlatti is the increase of lawlessness both among individuals and organized minorities.

"However, the political picture is changing," he said. He sees a tapering off of the use of drugs and perhaps a stregthening of law enforcement.

"The shooting of Judge Harold J. Haley was the most horrible thing that has happened in Marin County, but maybe he gave his life for a good cause," Farlatti said.

By Way of explanation, he said that he thinks since then, that judges all over the country have become less lenient with criminals and are handing out stiffer sentences.

THE BIGGEST change in the political scene, he thinks, is giving the 18-year-olds the vote.

"There are 11 million persons between 18 and 21 in the country and if they vote in the same ratio as they do in school elections, that means that there will be about two million new votes in the next election.

"Although I supported the Kennedys I hated to see John V. Tunney copy the Kennedy style so much," he said. "After all, he has a personality of his own."

Farlatti noted, however, that this Kennedy image does still appeal to the young voters.

"Remember that the last presidential elections have been very close; so with the young vote, I predict that Ted Kennedy and John Tunney will be the next president and vice president."

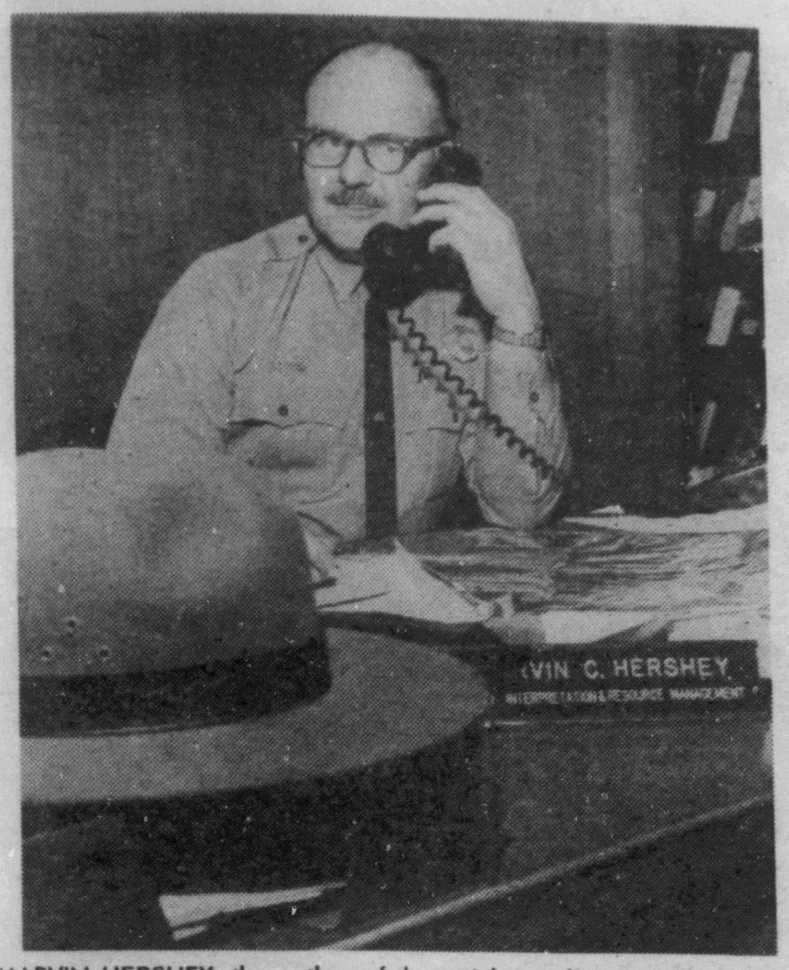
WHEN winter rains have provided the necessary impetus to wash out the impeding sandbar at the Muir Beach mouth of Redwood Creek and have also established the required water level, then the coho or silver salmon are ready to begin their return to the upper reaches of the creek that were their first home. It will be a long, difficult journey for the salmon, from Muir Beach, at left, through the rapids and against the currents of Redwood Creek, below, until the quiet waters where the spawning will take place are reached. (National Park Service photos)



MARVIN HERSHEY, the author of the article on these pages telling of one of nature's most mysterious events, the spawning run of the silver salmon, is head ranger at Muir Woods National Monument. He began with the National Park Service in 1952 as a seasonal ranger at Glacier National Park, and has worked permanently for the system since 1955 with service at Crater Lake, Olympic and Everglades parks. The Coho Come Home

Redwood Creek Is Scene Of An Exciting Natural Phenomenon

By MARVIN HERSHEY

When the coho salmon, or silver salmon as they are frequently called, begin their journey up Redwood Creek through Muir Woods National Monument, it is an exciting event.

Preceded by the extensive periods of rain necessary to both maintain a steady water level and to wash out the sandbar at Muir Beach, the salmon migration is a welcome diversion for park personnel and visitors during short winter days.

The average spawning coho is about 24 inches long and nine pounds in weight. Some may reach a length of 30 inches at maturity and weigh in excess of 18 pounds. The females are normally several inches longer than the males.

Both sexes have black spots confined to the back, which incidentaliy makes difficult the separation of the female silver salmon from the steelheads which also migrate up Redwood Creek during later spawning periods.

Both local residents and employees maintain a vigil for the first salmon of the season to fight his way up the rushing waters in which he was born three years previously, and from which he has been separated for the past two.

Perhaps it is unfair to equate familiarity with the cascading

IT IS A thrilling sight for personnel and winter-time visitors to Muir Woods National Monument when the first coho or s i l v e r salmon are sighted breaking water in Redwood Creek. After an absence of two years, the salmon are returning to the waters where they began their lives. There they will spawn. Their life cycle then completed, they will die. The coho run usually begins on Redwood Creek in middle late December. And each winter sees about three major runs up the Muir Woods stream. The last sometimes occurs as late as mid-March in some years. As photograhs from Muir Woods National Monument files show, it is a desperate and fatiguing trip the determined salmon undertake. And one they p u r s u e with a persistence that challenges the worst obstacles in falls, ripples and currents until the quieter waters are safely reached.

The Final Acts In The Life Cycle Of The Silver Salmon

With Return To Its First Home and Spawning, This Splendid Fish Is Ready For Death

waters of the salmon's upstream journey and the quiet eddies which characterize the creek during the first year of the fish's life cycle. More accurately, all that is familiar is likely the chemistry of the water. For the topography of the stream bed is modified each year, and of course even more so in two. The ripples and falls, which were merely encounters in the passage downstream, become fatiguing obstacles in the muddy waters of the upstream migration.

THE FIRST spawners are usually observed in December at the monument, a stream distance of three miles from the ocean. Some first observations are recorded as late as January.

In the past three years, the first salmon were seen on Dec. 18th, 19th and 21st, an interestingly close timetable.

Each winter sees about three major runs in reaches of the creek at Muir Woods. Several have occurred in the past 25 years as late as mid-March. They may number no more than a dozen to 30 fish in any one period.

There have been reports of many more in an earlier day, but such counts have not been made a matter of record. On Jan. 10, 1970, in the approximately one mile stretch of Redwood Creek encompassed by the monument, 42 salmon were counted, a gratifying increase over any number recorded in the past decade.

Numerous theories have been suggested to explain the uncanny abilities of these fish to return to the waters of their birth. One suggests celestial clues; another, that such navigational aids as landmarks on the continental shelves direct the fish; and still another reasons that electrical charges related to the earth's magnetic field and ocean currents navigate the salmonoids.

Particularly in view of their limited migrational range, which probably does not extend above the state of Washington nor beyond several hundred miles into the Pacific, the silver salmon of Redwood Creek very likely find their way through natural stimuli provided by the singular chemical composition of every body of water.

As the large quantities of water pour forth into the ocean at Muir Beach, the individual chemistry of the creek is diffused miles into the ocean. Not barring the assistance of other olfactory senses and barometric pressure patterns, the mature salmon are triggered for a tenacious course home.

As the fish struggles in the waters of his early environment, his responses are surely not unlike those of an adult returning to his childhood surroundings. Despite vast changes, there still remains a thread of the ordinary.

AFTER HAVING traveled hundreds and even thousands of miles, the salmon are ready to engage in the last function of their lives. The act of spawning alone is worth anyone's effort to witness, and particularly so at Muir Woods where two primary trails give access to the stream within inches of the bank at many locations.

Of course observations are the best when the water is comparatively clear — that is, usually within a day or two after a significant rain. however, even muddy waters do not obstruct a view of the activity, since most nests are located in relatively shallow stream areas.

Spawning begins when a female, accompanied by one or more males, deposits her eggs into a nest of pebbles or sand called a redd. The construction of the redd is done by powerful tails gorging the stream bottom, dislodging material which is carried a short distance downstream. This material serves the important purpose also of helping provide alternate layers of gravel on succeeding nests.

THE NEST building activity is not so prounounced with the silver salmon of Redwood Creek as with species elsewhere, and can go easily unobserved.

The location of each redd is carefully selected. It must not be disturbed by the swift current, nor so near the stream bank that the fertilized eggs are left high and dry by receding waters. Above all, the water passing over the nest must be sufficiently rapid to supply a large and constant volume of oxygen.

Spawning adults may attend a half dozen or as many as a dozen such locations in a selected 200 foot length of stream, spawning at each several or many times.

NESTING locations established, and with the male slightly behind but immediately by her side, the female thrusts forward, turns on her side and vibrates rapidly. The male simultaneously passes over the location, vibrating also in a more nearly upright position and appearing at times to even nudge the female in his eagerness to eject his milt over her eggs.

The short, rhythmatic thrusts are predictable and a prelude to the female's release of her eggs. The instant response of the male is so perfect that very nearly 100 per cent of the eggs are fertilized, numbering 200 to 300 at a time.

In sequence the procedure is repeated over and over, from redd to redd, until about 3,500 eggs are deposited per each female. The only varying factor is the occasional fertilization by a different male.

FREQUENTLY, but not always dramatically, males will contest one another for the repeated privilege of becoming a parent. The hooked mouths of the males make them good fighters, but multiple numbers of females make extended encounters unnecessary or even foolish.

As the fish near the end of their spawning activity, noticeable physiological changes occur. Having not eaten for 10 days, the fat content of their bodies have been tangibly reduced, and the battered salmon have exhausted themselves to an irreversible level. Large patches of bruised skin exhibit bright, discolored fungus, which frequently make them look grotesque in the peaceful shoals now providing them refuge. The turbulent waters which only shortly before challenged their grace and strength are no longer obtainable.

THE SPENT forms will linger near the lanks for but a few days after the last spawning activity. Procreation achieved, the salmon take on a waiting appearance for the death which will soon overtake them.

Perhaps because of problems of maneuverability at this point, the fish are seldom observed in the company of other fish, furthering an air of compassion.

As the end approaches, the salmon are unable to maintain their equilibrium and are finally swept into the current or onto the water's edge.

ITS LONG JOURNEY up Redwood Creek has left the salmon emaciated and bruised, its once gleaming body discolored by fungus. But it had clung to life until it has completed the spawning processes. Then death ended its life cycle and the current deposited the fish beside the stream bed.

New Zealand's Local Bus May Be Slow, But It's Never Dull

THE COUNTRYSIDE in New England enchants the visitor with a succession of very different faces, some in immediate proximity to one another. In the Taranaki District on North Island we have sheep grazing in a green, pastoral meadow, a tropical palm tree, and a majestic snow-capped volcano — Mount Egmont.

By THOMAS TALAMINI

I've traveled many places in the South Pacific, and it's always an interesting experience to try the "local" bus.

It may be slow, uncomfortable, noisy, dirty and even smelly, but it's one way to really get close to the people, literally and figuratively.

Somehow I associate this type of transportation with places like Fiji, Tahiti, Samoa, New Caledonia . . .never with New Zialand, which basically is a bit of olde England with a South Seas accent.

Well, I was wrong! New Zealand does have a "local" bus. It operates a daily service between the capital city of Auckland and Rotorua.

The bus looks better than its counterparts in other South Pacific countries. It's clean, not too noisy and certainly not dirty and smelly (they don't haul fish and copra to market on this one). But it is uncomfortable, incredibly slow . .and fascinating if you have the right attitude.

The bus "whisks" you over the 150 miles of excellent highway in a mere five — yes, five-hours. Actually this isn't bad considering the number of stops made enroute.

The bus driver not only delivers newspaper to dealers along the way, but judging from the time spent at each stop, he must be selling them, too.

At one stop, the driver tried to deliver a package at a service station. However, five minutes later he stomped back into the bus, package still in-hand, and drove off mumbling to himself something about "the bloody fool." This was the only time on the whole trip that we actually made good time.

A few minutes later, however, we halted at another service station, where the delivery was successfully made.

Of course, there's the usual tea stop and a few other apparently unscheduled stops, but the strangest one of all occurred about halfway to Rotorua, when we met a northbound bus. As the other driver entered our bus, our driver got up, told us all that "this driver will take you the rest of the way" and left with a cherry "cheerio".

Like any red-blooded American, I was annoyed at this slow, stop-start service; I'm used to covering 150 miles in a little over two hours, certainly no more than three. And I was irritated at the total disregard of the passengers and their valuable time.

But then I started listening to the conversations of my fellow-captives . . .and they weren't the least bit concerned. They were enjoying the relaxation, the scenery and each other's company.

And then it hit me. This is what New Zealand is all about. A place to relax, to unwind, to fish, to swim, to look at mile after mile of beautiful scenery. And I began to look about me.

The locals look a lot like you and me and they speak English of a sort. They "reckon" a lot; the men have "mates" rather than pals and the women might go to the hairdresser and get a "perm" and even shop for some small items at "Woolies" (Woolworths).

Of course, both men and women take "sickies" (sick leave at work) now and then; sometimes they're actually crook (ill).

It isn't difficult to find something to say when you're jammed that close together. My first words came when I tried to get up at one of our many stops. I turned to my "partner" and said: "Pardon me, but I can't seem to stand up. You're sitting on my coat tail."

From that point on, the trip was fine. He was from Greymouth, along the West Coast of New Zealand's South Island. And after hearing him describe the area, I decided I would visit the West Coast on this trip, and I did! This area became the highlight of my three-week stay in New Zealand.

Arizona Has Treats For Sports Fans

Golf, Baseball, Horse Racing And Rodeos Are All On Tap

Following the $125,000 Thunderbird Open in Phoenix held in January comes the $100,000 Tucson Open on Feb. 18, 19, 20 and 21. Then six major league baseball teams move into the state's southern sun belt for spring training.

Between now and summer there is also a full calendar of professional and collegiate basketball, ice hockey, horse racing, greyhound meets, polo, horse shows and rodeos.

THE ARIZONA Memorial coliseum is home for the Phoenix Suns of the National Basketball Association and their games continue through March, as does the schedule of the Phoenix Roadrunners of the Western Hockey League.

The National and American League baseball teams start their training in the state the last week in February and don't break camp until the end of the first week in April.

The San Francisco Giants will be headquartered at a large complex near Casa Grande. However, for their Cactus League exhibition games they use the Phoenix Municipal Stadium as their home park.

THE CHICAGO Cubs both train and play their home games at the Scottsdals Stadium, while the Milwaukee Braves are based in Tempe, and the Oakland Athletics get ready at Rendezvous Park in Mesa, both of which are just next-door.

In all, four major league teams are "at home" within about 15 miles of downtown Phoenix.

The Cleveland Indians practice and play their Cactus League home games at Tucson, and the San Diego Padres use Yuma, on the Colorado River at the California state line, as their spring base.

The daily Cactus League games throughout March and early April involve all six teams as well as a number of visiting ones like the Los Angeles Dodgers. Not every city has games every day, but each day does normally see several games being played somewhere in the state, all within easy reach of Phoenix.

In addition to these springtime major league exhibition games, Arizona also has two regular Triple-A baseball clubs of its own.

The Tucson Toros, a farm team for the American League's Chicago White Sox, are in the highly rated Pacific Coast League, as are the Phoenix Giants, whose home games are played in the Phoenix Municipal Stadium. Both of these Arizona teams are only half-a-step down from the major leagues.

THIS YEAR, too, the American Legion National Baseball Tournament, with teams from all over the nation in competition, will be held from Sept. 2-7 in Tucson. Another major sports event in Tucson will be the National Collegiate Golf Championships, from June 21-25.

A professional hockey franchise is also being considered for Tucson, but it is still in the future, certainly not for the 1971 season.

THE TUCSON National Golf Club will be the scene of the $100,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament Feb. 18 and 21 as one of the highlights of the busy Arizona sports schedule for the winter and spring of 1971.

"We are cynical of our officials, not only because we know them so well but because we know ourselves and what we are capable of, given the opportunity. Lawyers, doctors, accountants, shopkeepers, truck drivers, clerks, cops — who can resist a deal?

The book lives up to its subtitle — "A Classic Case of Big-City Corruption" — for it deals with a kind of crookedness that has permeated American society for generations. And it involves a cast so typical of the squalid wheeling and dealing in municipal government that one might almost suspect author Goodman has created them as typical protagonists from this unceasing cycle of corruption.

Goodman, of course, has done no such thing. What he is producing is journalism, not literature.

He has given us a summary of the 1960s scandal in its Water Supply, Gas and Electricity Department that rocked the administration of New York City Mayor John Lindsay. As always, public shock and outrage were short-lived, and Lindsay weathered the storm, regaining his image as a liberal, reform figure.

Lindsay and his boosters, with their sights set on the presidency, will not thank Goodman for raking it all up again.

Indeed, why did he do so? Generally Goodman has simply summarized the conspiracies to loot the public wallet that revolved around Lindsay's susceptible Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, James L. Marcus, from newspaper accounts, supplementing those sources with interviews of those who would consent to be interviewed.

In the first place, the web of dishonesty spun around Marcus was so complex and confused that it is difficult to comprehend and to appreciate its threads from the bits and pieces of sporadic newspaper reports. Goodman puts it all together quite well, succeeding in making some sense of the plotting and under-cutting that was essentially senseless.

Then, too, those of us away from New York heard comparatively little about the case and generally have had only the vaguest of ideas as to what took place before Marcus and others went to prison (while yet others equally guilty remained free). And there are lessons to be learned from the case for all of us, although scant chance they will be learned.

Anyway, Goodman gives us all this varied cast of manipulators and fixers — the weak, debt-ridden Marcus, totally unequipped for the responsible position to which Mayor Lindsay named him as a political favor and in violation of campaign pledges; an incredible confidence man and informer in the person of one Herbert Itkin; Mafioso figures including Antonio (Tony Ducks) Corallo; millionaire business man Henry Fried and other contractors eager to sup from the public trough; a crooked labor union official; and high executives of the giant Consolidated Edison Co. upon which New Yorkers must rely for their essential utility services. Plus a huge and varied assortment of lesser figures.

And, finally, a late entry in the scheming, Carmine DeSapio, once the Democratic Party boss of all New York, a politician on the decline, but still with sufficient influence and muscle to stick his oar into the smelly muck, even though, ironically, he was of the opposite party from the one that had put Marcus into office.

Goodman delineates the roles of all these shabby characters while operating under the handicap that not one of them could be believed if it served his purpose not to tell the truth.

"If you lie enough, you begin to live your lie," said Itkin, who rarely told the truth but nevertheless was the prosecution's chief witness.

The whole case is a tangled mess of dishonesty and opportunism. And while Marcus and DeSapio became the chief goats sacrificed to appease short-lived public anger, it is plain the former was more a tool exploited by others than a mover in the plotting, and that the latter did not see and seize his chance to share in the booty until the corruption was long under way.

"Men undertake to direct the fortunes of the state only when they doubt their capacity to manage their private affairs," observed Tocqueville of America.

That certainly applied to Marcus. But there was something deeper at the core of the dishonesty that swirled around his handsome but empty head.

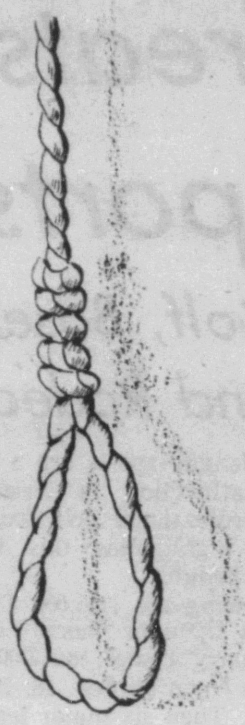
"Cutting a corner, slipping through a loophole, making a killing, putting one over, we squeeze what we can out of each other," writes Goodman, "and if this story is at all representative, we don't even find much pleasure in the game. Profitable it may sometimes be, but flat and stale it surely is.

"Our chiseling has lost its kick, like the booze in 'The Iceman Cometh.' That may be a hint of imminent redemption, or it may just mean that the Iceman has arrived and settled down in City Hall."

What may be most disturbing to the liberal and reform minded across the country about the Marcus case is the responsibility that their hero John Lindsay must bear for an impossible-to-defend appointment and his blindness to his error. One remembers, too, that this same Lindsay stood up and spoke for Spiro Agnew for the vice presidential nomination at the Republican Convention of 1968. Is he really their man of conscience and substance for President in 1972? Or just another pretty face?

Sleuths & Suspense

THE GREEN HELL TREASURE by Robert L. Fish; Putnam's, 185 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.



Robert L. Fish was never in finer form than in this adventure yarn in which his entertaining team of Capt. Jose da Silva of the Brazilian police and the American, Wilson of Interpol, travel to Barbados to try to wind up a case which had begun 15 years earlier with the cracking of a ship's safe and the theft of the passengers' valuables.

The culprits were arrested, but the loot remained unrecovered. Now the lone survivor among the robbers had completed his prison term. He was almost certain to make a try for the hidden jewelry.

Da Silva and Wilson have the help of a pretty and ingenious Interpol girl agent as they wage their war of wits and nerves with the heister and his allies.

Fish has a little trouble at the end tying up all his loose ends satsifactorily. But so good has been that which has come before that to complain about it seems like ungracious quibbling.

THE IDEAL solution to the automobile repair problem, of course, is to know your service man. Select one worthy of your trust; then place your confidence in him.

But of course, trust is sometimes misplaced and then abused. And sometimes circumstances compel the automobile owner to deal with strangers.

Then is that "complete motor overhaul" the mechanic recommends really necessary? Or will a "tune-up" do just as well?

To help automobile owners answer that and similar questions for themselves, Anthony Till, a veteran automotive man, mechanic and currently an executive with a Southern California dealership, has written "What You Should Know Before You Have Your Car Repaired" (Sherbourne Press, $4.95). Previously Till wrote "What You Should Know Before You Buy A Car."

His newest book describes the inner workings of repair shops and garages and accessory supply houses, exposes high-pressure tactics sometimes used and discusses how repairs are usually made (generally not actual repairing at all, but the replacing of parts).

The book includes a glossary of the jargon of the trade, and perhaps most important, a general hourly flat-rate schedule.

TWO MORE additions to Sterling's Little Craft Books Series:

"Scissorscraft" by Lini Grol, an assortment of projects from wall hangings to greeting cards that can be made by hollow cutting paper.

"Macrame" by Imelda Manalo Pesch, a revival of an ancient craft of Turkish and Italian origin. By creative knotting, belts, handbags, necklaces, etc., are produced.

Both books are detailed in their directions, both illustrated and both priced at $2.95.

NEWEST addition to the Sunset Travel Guide Series of Lane Magazine and Book Co., Menlo Park, is "Baja California" by Ken and Caroline Bates working with the Sunset editors.

The profusely illustrated guide covers both the luxury and less elaborate resorts along the coast and the primitive interior. Along with photographs, there are maps, accommodation suggestions, hunting and fishing regulations, customs information, etc. Towns from Tijuana to San Lucas are described and side trips suggested.

BALLANTINE continues to expand its paperback Illustrated History of World War II Series, books No. 19 and No. 20 being "Allied Secret Weapons: The War of Science" by Brian J. Ford, and "Midway: The Turning Point" by A. J. Barker.

THE ECOLOGY issue is reflected in such Ballantine paperback titles as "The Basic Book of Organic Gardening," an original edited by Robert Rodale; "Teaching for Survival," a handbook in environmental education by Mark Terry, also an original, and "Life and Death of the Salt Marsh," a reprint of the book by John and Mildred Teal.

One Of America's Pockets Of Poverty

In her abundance and complacency, America sometimes forgets that she has upon her sprawling body some of the ugliest festers to be found anywhere on earth.

We call these sores poverty pockets, and they are to be found in ghetto slums, on Indian reservations, in migrant labor camps, etc.

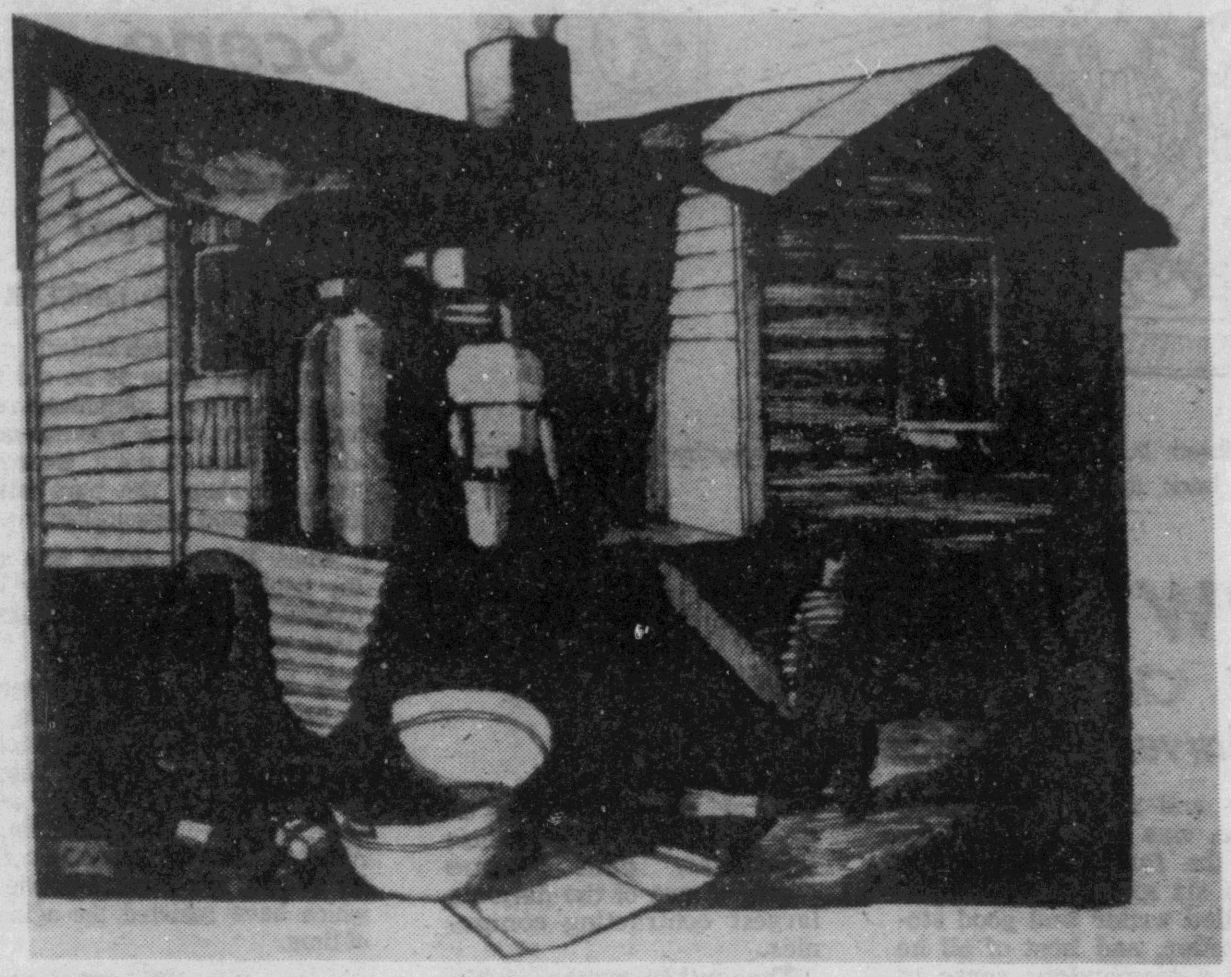
Nowhere is the squalor more shocking than it is in the Appalachian Hills where poor whites — "isolated, illiterate, fossilized" — live in the most abject and apathetic want imaginable. There unemployment is the way of life. And ignorance and exploitation make certain it retains its debilitating grip.

Because of their remoteness, it is easier to put these poverty-ridden mountaineers out of our minds. We do not encounter them almost daily as our consciences must confront the city slums. And they have no Cesar Chavezes to voice their plight.

They do, however, now have an exceptional book that delineates in terrible detail the utter hopelessness of their barren lives. The book is "The Hollow" by Bill Surface, author and magazine writer. And once you read it, you will never again be able to relegate the poor of Appalachia to the obscure corners of your mind.

The book's jacket compares Surface's work as a social document to Oscar Lewis' ground-breaking "La Vida" that threw a hot spotlight upon the miseries of urban Puerto Rican immigrants. This is high praise, indeed. But it is not undeserved.

What Surface has done is to reside in one of the hidden hollows in eastern Kentucky's mountains, observing intently, with compassion and yet unyielding honesty, the lives of one of the families that inhabit the cluster of shacks. The span is five consecutive days. And the picture of how 37-year-old, perpetually jobless Coy, his wife June and their 10 children exist in appalling filth and permanent want is etched deeply, searingly into the reader's mind.



IN SQUALID SHACKS such as this one, and in much worse, the poor of Appalachia rear their families. The art is from the jacket of Bill Surface's "The Hollow" reviewed here.

Just how Surface managed to observe so closely without intruding upon or interrupting the daily lives of his subjects is not made clear. But there can be no doubt that he has accomplished that feat to a remarkable degree.

And the manner in which he captures their dialect — the distinctive speech of the hills — bespeaks the special sensitivity with which he undertook this assignment. That empathy has permitted him to interpret their thinking with the same unquestionable accuracy he demonstrates in recording their words.

Surface has then supplemented his observations from the hollow with interviews of those who, live with, work with, suffer with or take advantage of his subjects. These in no way brighten the picture.

What emerges is a shameful pattern of exploitation. In their ignorance, the Coys of Appalachia fall easy victims to the greedy. Business men, physicians, politicians, mine owners, bootleggers, union leaders, do-gooders, all feed upon their naivete.

Even well-intentioned programs to help the poor are almost always so ill-conceived that they serve more to destroy the spirit than they do to uplift the body. Invariably, the bulk of the monies poured into the region to war against its poverty winds up in the bank accounts of the already affluent while the poor eke out a squalid survival on the leavings. So that always there is the stark contrast of wealth and want positioned side by side.

Surface's comment that "a million dollars worth of coal and natural gas devoid of county or state production tax, continues to be extracted each day from the mountains where most of the inhabitants must be supported by other people's taxes" takes note of a pattern that has developed everywhere where there are exploiters and exploited.

In some areas the exploited have begun to rebel in anger. But there is no evidence in Surface's revealing book that the downtrodden poor of Appalachia are about to do so.

From time to time, the employed and formerly employed miners have arisen to challenge the arrogance of the mine owners, sometimes through their unions and sometimes despite their unions. But Surface is writing about a whole different strata of Appalachia society, the men who are not employed and have not been employed for decades, and who nourish not the slightest hope of future employment. To whom the dole has become the norm.

Says Coy of the broken steps to his shack: "'bout time ya get ' em fixed, somethin' else'll break someers else" and "ya wouldn't be no better off even if'n you did fix 'em." So the steps stay broken. And the children remain uneducated and malnourished, because, as far as Coy and June can see, they wouldn't be any better off if educated or if fed a balanced diet.

Pride and hope gone, Coy and June are now passing that same legacy on to their runny-nosed, soiled brood, who, almost certainly, will do the same for their own offspring. And society stands by indifferently, or when moved to act, acts futilely or even inflicts yet more damage to the shredded remnants of the hill people's character.

Yes, "The Hollow" can be a book as important as the Oscar Lewis classic. But one must remember that long after "La Vida," Puerto Rican migrants still live huddled in slums, beset by poverty and prejudice.

And for "The Hollow" to have even limited effect, it must first be read. Do Americans want to read such ugly truths? Well, they are beginning, belatedly, to show an interest in the devastation they have inflicted upon nature. Can they muster an equal amount of concern for devastated human souls?

The circus, as everyone knows, is something to see, but the authors have made it something to read about too.

In a collection of pictures, prose and poetry, they touch upon the history, the animals, the people, the life and the spirit of the circus.

There are selections about the circus written by such literary figures as Charles Dickens, Carl Sandburg and Booth Tarkington and by such experts as P. T. Barnum, Henry Ringling North and Clyde Beatty.

The Gilbreths Of 'Cheaper By Dozen' Fame Again Prove A Marvelously Entertaining Family

It's well worth taking time out to read this account of the fabulous, brilliant Gilbreth family, who became world famous two decades ago with the publication of "Cheaper by the Dozen" and "Belles on Their Toes."

While the earlier books (co-authored by Gilbreth and his sister, Ernestine Gilbreth Carey, and made into movies by Twentieth Century Fox) told of the high-jinks of a household of high-spirited boys and girls, this latest book traces the background of the clan and tells of Frank and Lillie Gilbreth's courtship, marriage and careers as pioneers in scientific management.

The author, who is a writer and newspaper executive, was the first-born son in the family of six boys and six girls. Gilbreth is a skilled writer and good story-teller, and best of all he has a tremendous sense of humor. His ability to describe people, situations and reactions make this true-life story wonderful reading.

In this book Gilbreth tells how his mother's maternal grandparents came to San Francisco, quickly made a fortune in the shoe business and retired to a palatial mansion in Oakland. Lillian Moller Gilbreth was born in Oakland in 1878, grew up with a traditional silver spoon background and became one of the first women to attend the University of California at Berkeley.

The brash, fun-loving 35-year old Gilbreth, who at 18 had started as a penniless bricklayer, had become owner of one of the nation's largest contracting companies.

The author writes of his father, "No one enjoyed the Gay Nineties more than Frank. He loved to eat, drink, ride horses and bicycles, squire pretty girls, go to the theater and dance."

Lillie and Frank were married. On their honeymoon trip aboard a transcontinental train taking them to their first home in New York they decided to have a dozen children, specifying six of each sex. And they did.

The courage, brilliance, zest for living and humor of this family all unfold in this marvelously entertaining book. And as for the Gilbreths — they make you happy you belong to the same human race.

Motion Picture Actress Diane Cliento Turns Author And Produces A Book That Holds Reader's Interest

Matthew Jackson had a Scottish grandfather and a West African Grandmother. Proud of this heritage and of being a hybrid, he was determined that his home, Hambro, a small island in the Bahamas, would prosper and his people remain free of outside interference. His dream was to earn enough money to bring shiploads of top soil to his island and train the people to cultivate the land.

The story, after he leaves Hambro for London to realize this dream, is told through his words and those whose lives he touches. The woman who loves him, the man who hates him and the man who leads him to stardom and fortune tell in their own words of their own lives, their meeting with Matthew and the effect he has on each of them.

With the wealth he has acquired in London, the dream for his island is realized, and Matthew and the woman he loves return to Hambro to a bitter lesson and an unhappy ending.

Diane Cliento is a stage and film actress, recently turned author. This is her second novel and she has done a very creditable job.

Visitors From The Past And Old World Ireland Haunt A Novelist Working In Contemporary Hollywood

People, speaking of past acquaintances, occasionally say, "I wonder what they would think if they could see me now?"

On this theme, Brian Moore has fashioned a story of a man visited by visions from his past — his dead father and mother, old friends, teachers, lovers who intrude on his present life.

The contrast is sharp since he is living as a novelist writing a movie script in Hollywood, while his "visitors" come from straight-laced, old-world Ireland.

It is a haunting experience for those in middle age to glance backward to where they came from, and look at where they are in the light of the past.

Moore manages to view past and present at the same time with perception, humor and a sharp eye for characterization.

The result is a story of a man's life telescoped in an unusual manner that is more provoking than if it were related in the usual chronological order.

Mitch Miller Tunes Still Sound Great

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

Remember Mitch Miller?

You don't have to be old to recall his great sing-along records. Even those who are under 30 may have warm thoughts about the man with the beard and his songsters.

When Miller's music was at the height of its popularity it exuded a good feeling because times were not so tense.

So now, when all roads seem to be leading to nowhere, is a good time to bring back Mitch and his boys and girls. They may be heard on a two-LP album, "34 All-Time Great Sing Along Selections" (Columbia G 302350). All the tunes are oldies which have resisted the aging of time.

Among them are "That Old Gang of Mine," "Tip-Toe Through the Tulips," "Shine on Harvest Moon," "Singin' in the Rain" and "The Whiffenpoof Song."

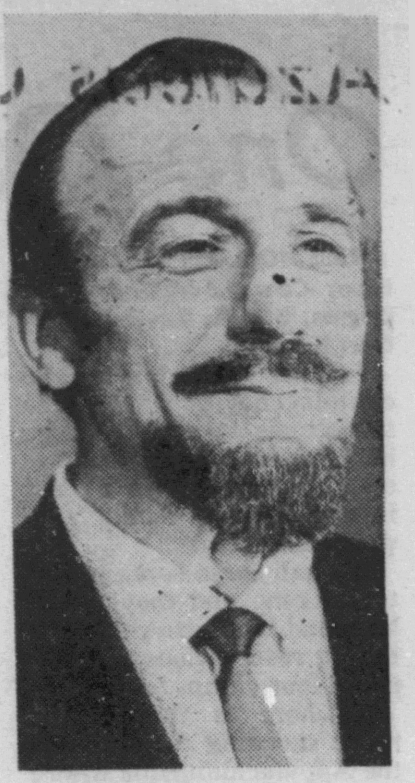
It is the kind of music that will make you forget your worries.

There may also be some temptation to sing along with The New Christy Minstrels on "You Need Someone to Love" (Gregar GG-102). Unlike Mitch Miller's music, the Minstrels' selections belong to 1970.

In addition to the title tune, songs include "Close to You," "Make It With You," "Turtles and Trees" and others.

For those who like a mixture of artists, "The Super Hits, Volume Five" (Atlantic SD 8274) offer numbers by Aretha Franklin "Call Me", Led Zeppelin "Whole Lotta Love," Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young "Ohio" and Blues Image "Ride Captain Ride," among others.

SELECTED SINGLES: "To the Other Man" by Luther Ingram (Koko KOA-2106), "Rose Garden" by Joe South (Capitol P-3008), "As Easy as Singing" by Georgy (Uni 55269), "Home Sweet Oklahoma" by Leon Russell and The Shelter People (Shelter 7302), "Requiem for a Rainy Day" by The Second Coming (Mercury 73147), "Trapped In a Love" by the Barrino Brothers (Invicturs Is-9083).



MITCH MILLER
Remember him?

TAPE DECK-OPEN-REEL: "The Temptations Live at London's Talk of the Town" (Gordy M953), an Ampex tape release, is a playback of the show that electrified London and won them an audience with the archbishop of Canterbury. It opens with a fast-moving medley and then The Temptations get down to business.

EIGHT-TRACK cartridge: 'The Latin Splendor of Werner Muller" (London M 14139), an Ampex tape release, is a brassy presentation of such fine tunes as "Delicado," "Light My Fire" and "Perfidio" in a tempo suited to dancing.

Sugarloaf Is Hit In First For Liberty

By JOHN SUNIER

"SUGARLOAF" is both the name of the new rock group whose song "Green-Eyed Lady" was a recent Top-30 hit, and the title of their first Liberty album (7640). Keyboard man Jerry Corbetta, who even plays clavichord as well as piano and organ, is vital to the group's muscular sound. The imaginative bass lines are laid out by Bob Raymound. These young performers, hailing from Denver, have really got it together and can offer something solid in the midst of the plethora of plastic rock.

For youth interest, it's difficult to beat pianist Craig Hundley, who was something like 14 when his first album was released. His latest, "Rhapsody in Blue" (World Pacific 21900), features Allyn Ferguson's orchestral backing on the tracks of Side 1, including a Reader's Digest version of "Rahpsody in Blue."

Hundley's choice of tunes is imaginative and different and what he does with them equal to the top jazz pianists of any age.

The Different Types Vary Widely In Flowering Dates

Most people think azaleas are lovely spring flowers. When you stop to consider, though, you realize that most people are only half right.

Azaleas are lovely, indeed. But they begin to bloom in the fall, carry it through the winter and are still going strong by the Ides of March.

In California you see azaleas in bloom as early as September and as late as May — well over half the year!

Not all azaleas bloom at the same time, however, which accounts for this continuous array of beauty. There are several types of azaleas and many different varieties in each type.

Azaleas are primarily shade lovers and are relied upon — because of their luxuriant foliage and lovely blooms — as basic landscape shrubs in the shaded areas of the garden.

IN FEBRUARY there is a host of azaleas to be found blooming in local nurseries, all of them members of the group called Belgian Indicas. This is a varied group of hybrid azaleas with mostly double flowers — and the wide range of colors is breath-taking.

Color choices include several shades of pink, rose and red — salmon and glistening white. There are combinations of colors which are best described by the viewer — they're that spectacular.

Another classification is the Southern Indicas, the so-called Sun Azaleas. The popularity of this group has greatly increased in recent years — not only for their tolerance for warmer conditions but because of their large blooms and awesome display of garden color.

THEY AREN'T completely sun-loving, but they will tolerate much more sun than other azaleas.

Shopping may turn up unique Kurume Azaleas, and here in Northern California, deciduous forms such as Mollis hybrids. These are handsome accents where they thrive.

Most important in growing azaleas, advises the California Association of Nurserymen, is to provide good drainage and abundant moisture for the plants. Drainage is assured by incorporating organic materials (leaf mold, peat moss, bark products, etc.) with the soil when the azaleas are planted.

Simplest way is to utilize a ready-to-use nurserymen's planter mix — a mixture specially formulated for azaleas.

Garden Page

AZALEAS can provide months spectacular garden color. A the choice is a most varied a For instance, the Southern Ind Azalea, the Phoenicia, is sho here in its tree form, growing a container. But the Phoeni can also be purchased as a shr It boasts huge single, lavend blooms that create a sensati wherever it is used. And unl other members of the family, Southern Indica Azaleas can wi stand a considerable amount sunshine in Marin's growing c ditions. Just make certain t you keep them well supplied v moisture. For shadier grow sites, there are the Belgian In cas and several other types azaleas that are also splendif ous performers.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✔ Begonia tubers are on the market again. Sprout them in flats of peat and leaf mold and sand before potting them up or setting them out in the garden.

✔ An asparagus bed can be planted now, which will last for many years and provide tasty fare for the dinner table.

✔ Many annuals are avail ble in nursery flats to give yo a quick start on spring colo These include pansies and vio las, calendulas and fairy prim roses. You'll find pots blooming English primroses t use in borders or in containers.

✔ Spray for peach leaf cu before buds open on the tre branches. This fungus diseas attacks nectarines as well a peaches.

✔ Take advantage of the bareroot planting season fo many trees and shrubs. Thei dormacy will be ending befor too long.

The Grandiflora Roses Have Come A Long Way Since 1953

This classification is the newest in the Rose Kingdom — Grandifloras were first rated as a class in 1953, and in this relatively short span of years exciting varieties have provided bountiful beauty throughout the world.

GRANDIFLORA Roses are robust-growing plants with profuse blooms borne singly and in clusters. A cross of the hybrid tea and the floribunda, they produce long-stemmed flowers which are excellent for cutting and indoor decoration.

Because most Grandifloras grow tall, they are ideal selections for the landscape, according to the California Association of Nurserymen. Modern gardeners use the larger-growing specimens in the background of rose gardens, use them with other flowering shrubs, and as tall accent plants throughout the garden.

FEBRUARY IS the height of the bareroot planting season, and nurseries will have a good selection of Grandiflora Roses right now. In bareroot form the dormant plants are easily transplanted into the garden where they'll begin to create garden magic which you may enjoy starting this spring.

Of the three 1971 All-America Rose Selection winners, Aquarius is a grandiflora. This sturdy pink blend bloomer is the seventh grandiflora in the past 10 years to receive All-American honors.

Of the last seven All-American Grandifloras, six were developed by California rose hybridizers. They thrive throughout the Golden State.

QUEEN ELIZABETH is a favorite pink rose; the scarlet-orange of Montezuma is sure to please, as is the clear yellow of Buccaneer. Camelot is a shrimp pink grandiflora; John S. Armstrong is a deep red; and Lucky Lady is a cream-pink.

Your nursery can outline simple planting procedures, and provide information on how to gain maximum results in beauty from your roses.

Not All Seedlings Resemble Parents

Certain annuals, such as double hollyhocks, after they have been in your garden for a few years, may have seedlings growing around them.

Don't be too disappointed if those you allow to grow have single flowers when they bloom.

Pruning — Vital But Simple Job

Novice gardeners often shy away from pruning, fearing the unknown. And those bold enough to have a go at it often make the wrong cuts.

We mention this only to emphasize the importance of knowing, before you prune, why and how the job should be done. Your garden supply dealer can lend his advice and, more important, can show you orsuggest a pruning manual to insure that your pruning benefits the plant.

IN ACTUAL FACT, pruning is a simple and easy job. And when done on a sunny winter day it can be a downright pleasant experience.

We prune for a variety of reasons: to increase flowering potential, as in the case of roses and fuchsias; to increase quality and productivity of fruit trees and vines; and to shape a tree or shrub, adding to its beauty or interest. When you understand the "why," it is a simple additional step to understanding "how".

Most deciduous shrubs and trees, roses included, should be pruned this month at the latest. The exceptions to this rule are the shrubs and trees which flower in early spring, such as flowering peaches, lilacs and weigela. We hold off on these so we may enjoy their bloom and then prune immediately when it fades.

Often we start pruning thes while they are blooming so th we may enjoy the cut spra indoors.

ROSES ARE FAR and awa the most commonly plante shrub that need pruning durin the dormant season, so an ad ed word about them woul seem in order. Here agai however, a pruning manual i indispensible.

Time your pruning of ros so that you start before the ne growth buds have obviously b gun to swell. Eliminate cros ing canes, giving preference new canes formed during t previous year and if they a well placed and sturdy. Cut ju above a bud and on a slant.

You Can Vacation In Your Backyard

How To Avoid Traffic Jams

More and more, people are finding their vacation and weekend visits to once favorite resorts frustrating rather than relaxing.

What were once little known hideaways where one could escape the noise, congestion and cares of city and town life are now places where everyone else goes, too, in search of that solitude that is no longer there.

And always there is the highway traffic that must be faced, going to and fro.

ONE SOLUTION is to convert your own backyard into a mini vacation land. Swimming pools, patios, gardens, gazebos, fences that shut out the clamor of the hurry-up world outside — all these enable the family to vacation without leaving home.

Not unnaturally, the California Redwood Association suggests you construct your backyard paradise from redwood, pointing out that Spanish friars and California pioneers long ago discovered the value of redwood in their patios and vineyards.

Not the least of its qualities are its easy workability. Its pleasing appearance and its resistance to attacks by insects and fungi are also selling features.

REDWOOD, TOO, is a dimensionally stable lumber that does not warp, cup or shrink.

The California Redwood Association, 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, 94111, offers through its Service Library a number of colorful idea booklets such as "Redwood Fences," "Redwood Decks" and "Redwood Garden Structures" supplemented by "how-to-do-it" data sheets on construction and finishing techniques.

WHEN PLANNED properly, it can be more than a definement of property or garden boundaries. And it need not be simply a screen.

Fences imaginatively styled and carefully erected can have great aesthetic appeal. The California Redwood Association especially suggests that redwood fences be left unfinished to weather to a pleasing silvery-gray appearance.

YOU CAN HAVE a sun deck, a shaded conversation deck set off in a corner, a view deck from which to admire the scenery, an outdoor living deck upon which to cook and relax. Or just a deck to serve all these many purposes.

Trellises and pergolas are two more delightful structural additions that give a backyard that vacation look. Here redwood's dimensional stability, despite moisture and changes in temperature, is particularly important.

The gazebo, tea house, summer house, or whatever you call your garden shelter is the topping on the cake. Not only does it afford privacy. But it gives your garden that final distinctive touch.

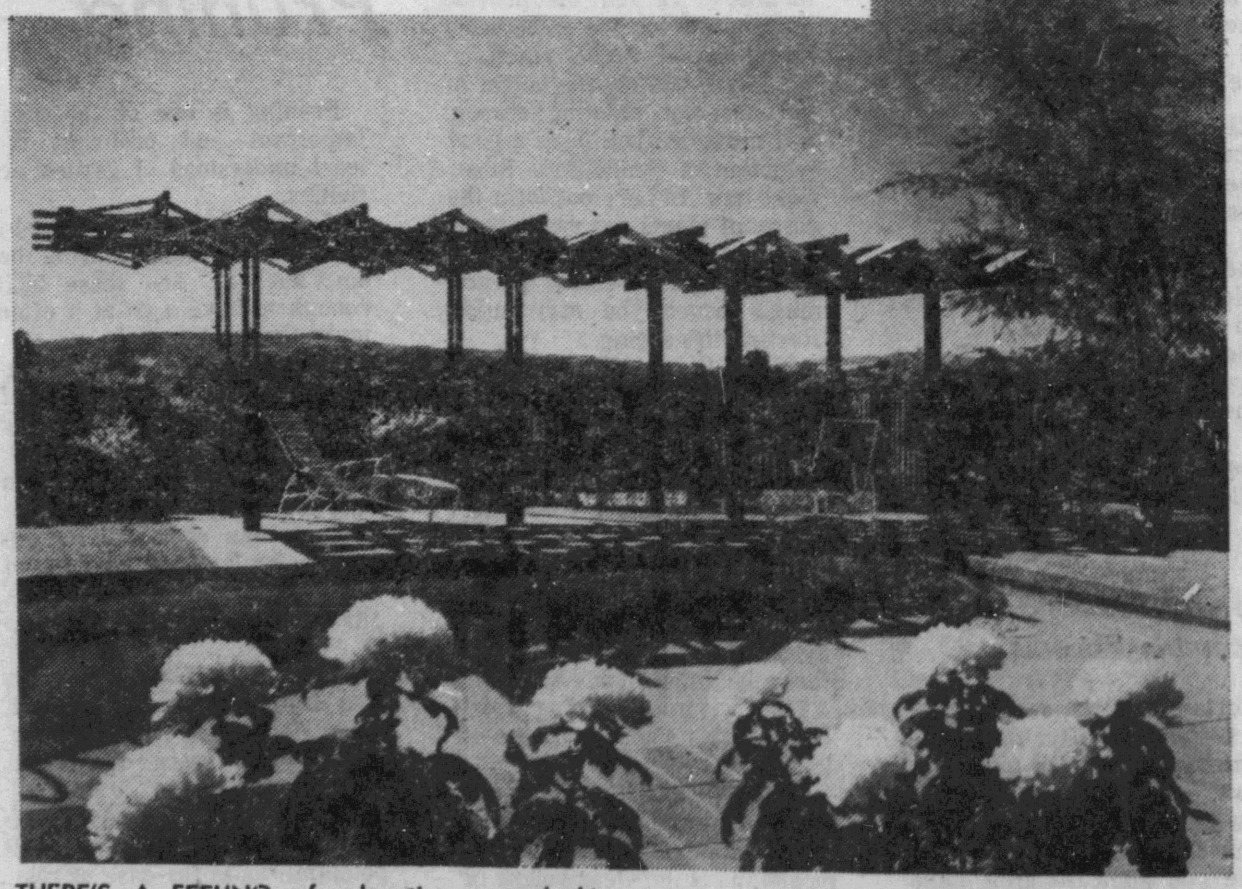
THIS BACKYARD RETREAT was designed by Mark Askew, using redwood for the poolside shelter, benches, table and lamp. The bench winds from sunshine to shade, permitting the users to take their choice. A redwood fence adds a final harmonizing touch as well as containing the scene.

HOW A FENCE can lend harmony and charm to a graden as well as delineate its boundaries is demonstrated by this charming redwood screen that landscape architects Paul and Katy Steinmetz of Marin have designed for an Oriental setting.



THERE'S A FEELING of relaxation around this swimming pool, thanks to the attractive redwood pergola with canvas strips for sun protection. The California Redwood Association points out that water and sun will not affect the dimensionally-stable redwood. John Vogley designed this mini environment that should keep any vactioner at home.

Executive Suite In The Home

You Can Build A Desk That Has Everything

By STEVE ELLINGSON

No matter how small your home or apartment, it can accommodate a complete "executive center" for running the household, handling family accounts or catching up on correspondence.

The handsome desk shown in the photograph with Sue Burnett of NBC's "Laugh-In" television series has everything you will find in a downtown office. Still — it projects into the room only 22 inches. It's 46 inches high and 34 inches wide when closed.

YOU WILL NOTICE the desk has spaces for keeping office supplies of all kinds, together with an ample vertical filing system. There are adjustable shelves for ledgers, more files, books, a typewriter and countless other home office requirements. The large pull-out writing surface doubles as a typewriter table.

You couldn't find a more ideal item for those who want to stay organized for work at home, and at the same time conserve precious living quarters.

IF YOU ARE tired of setting up a card table every time you want to balance a checkbook, make out a grocery list or write a letter, this home office is for you. It's a project that can be undertaken by any amateur with confidence when he uses the easy-to-follow pattern.

The pattern lists the needed materials along with lots of illustrations showing the various stages of construction. The cost is slight when you do-it-yourself.

To obtain the easy-to-follow Home Office Pattern No. 478, send $2 (add 25 cents for air mail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409.

NEW FEATURE IN MAGAZINE

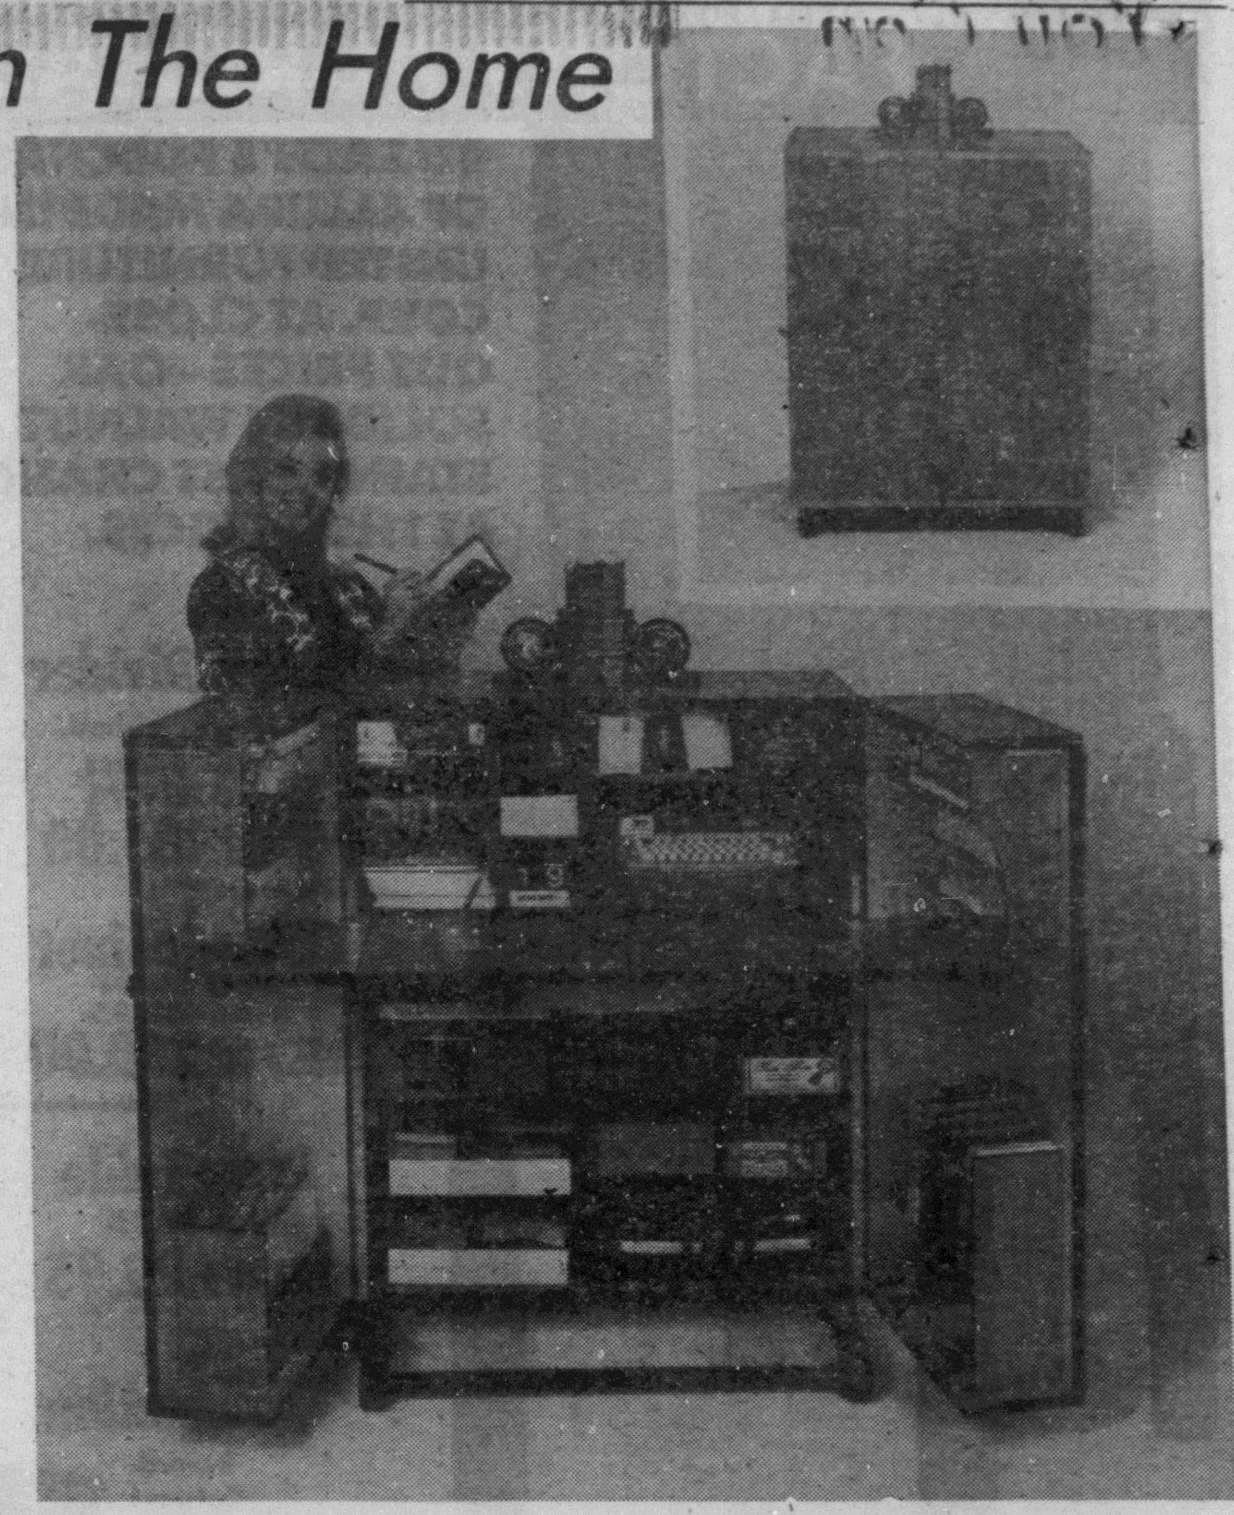
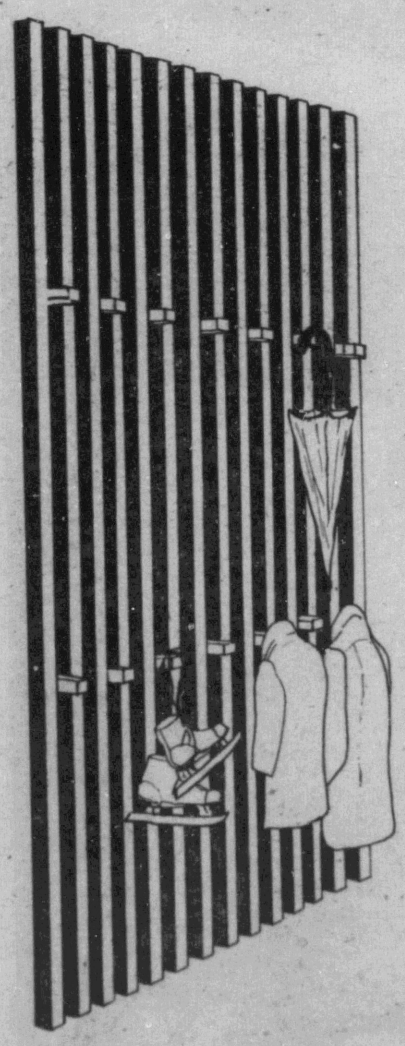
The new feature was introduced in last week's magazine and will continue to appear frequently on the handyman's pages of your I-J weekend supplement.

The Ellingson patterns have been presented to the public for many years and now rate as the most-used do-it-yourself feature to be carried by American newspapers.



WITH DOORS CLOSED, at upper right, this handyman-built desk takes up almost no space and gives no hint of the many supplies and the working space it contains for the homemaker when opened.

WALL HANGING



A PEG pattern of one-by-two-inch spacers in an entry screen of two-by-four-inch pine or fir makes an attractive place for guests to hang their coats.

Jim Drury Knows His Horses

Jim Drury, in his ninth year playing "The Virginian" retitled "The Men from Shiloh" this season, is one television cowboy who geniunely knows the front from the back end of a horse.

Drury's avocation and business interest is raising and breeding saddle horses.

He owns Appaloosas and Arabians, pastured in separate locations in Northern California. This year he is buying a ranch in the San Fernando Valley and will keep both herds nearer home.

JIM, WHO was born in New York, isn't sentimental about horse flesh. He looks on his equines as a business invertment, just as he would cattle.

Television has made Drury financially well off. Home is a rambling 4,000-square foot ranch-style dwelling into which he and his second wife, Phyllis, moved earlier this year.

They are in the process of remodeling the five-bedroom abode and redecorating. First order of business was construction of a swimming pool. The Drurys are taking their time about furnishing their house a piece at a time.

JIM DRURY
A working rancher

Phyllis, too, was married previously. Her three sons live with the couple: Fritze, 15; Christopher, 13; and Timothy, 12. On weekends and holidays they are joined by Jim Mickie, 12; and Tim, 9; Jim's sons by his first marriage.

Outside domestic help comes in two or three times a week to spare Phyllis the heavy work.

Drury enjoys entertaining at home and going out on the town when time permits. He is one performer who likes to attend premieres and other Hollywood functions.

He and his gang of offspring head for Catalina whenever then can — which is often — where they have become expert SCUBA divers.

With the new format on "The Men from Shiloh," Drury finds himself working fewer weeks a year but with more intensity. His at Universal Studios run from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on the average. But he works only five months.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Composer Burt Bacharach will star in a one-hour special for CBS on March 14. The show will spotlight his activities in the various music fields in which he works. Others on the show will be Barbra Streisand, Tom Jones and ballet star Rudolf Nureyev.

The National Academy of Arts and Sciences has extended through March 16 the eligibility period for the 1970-71 Emmy Awards. The earlier deadline had been Feb. 28. Eligibility dates from March 16, 1970.

The non-commercial Public Broadcasting Service video network will telecast three ABC news specials on ecology under a grant by Xerox Corporation, which sponsored the original airing of the programs on ABC-TV in 1969. The specials are: "Mission Possible: They Care for a City," "Mission Possible: They Care for the Land" and "Mission Possible: They Care for the Nation." The PBS telecasts will be on March 9, 10 and 11.

Comedian Flip Wilson will be the host-narrator for a one-hour Long Distance Bell special, "The Record Makers," due on NBC April 2. The program will examine how champions are developed in various fields. The careers of Bing Crosby, Willie Mays, Gary Gabelich, Johnny Unitas, Sir Francis Chichester and Willie Shoemaker are among those to be examined. Top achievers in education, science and business also will be subjects.

'OINT REYES — C.B. GEARHART
